Calculation by nine decimals settles the question. 1 Prabhava in A.D. 649-50 really began 169-439979088 days after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti and 41 Plavaṅga began 169-439978320 days earlier than No. 1 Prabhava. So 41 Plavaṅga actually began 0-000000768^d or .066 of a second after the moment of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti. Consequently it began and ended within the solar year; it was not current at mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, and on that basis did not give its name to the year; it was suppressed. But if it had begun a tenth of a second earlier it would have been current at the critical instant and the solar year would have been named after it. I am confident that the Hindu framers of pañchāṅgs would have insisted on the year A.D. 649-50 being named after 40 Parābhava even though that saṁvatsara expired less than a tenth of a second after the beginning of the year and 41 Plavaṅga was current from that instant till shortly before its close. The rule was strict as to the naming of the year according to actual currency at Mēsha saṁkrānti, and it would have been adhered to.

208. We have yet to learn, and our knowledge can only come from careful and painstaking research and study of a large number of inscription-dates, how far the practice of naming a solar year after a Jovian saṁvatsara was extended to the luni-solar year in those parts of India where such reckoning was used, and when such extension took place. In the Indian Calendar (§ 57, p. 53) it was noted that evidence exists to shew that such a practice was followed, at least for a time in some tracts; and the system adopted would doubtless be similar to that obtaining in the case of the solar year, but applied to the luni-solar year; that is to say, the year would be called after the name of the saṁvatsara current at the moment of beginning of the luni-solar year, or at the exact moment when, at the time of the new moon at the end of the lunar month Phālguna, the longitude of the moon's centre coincided with that of the sun. This moment always takes place earlier than the moment of the solar Mēsha saṁkrānti, and of course the Jovian name thus given to the luni-solar year might be one different from that given to the solar year with which it was mostly connected. Careful calculation as to the arc travelled by Jupiter between the moment of beginnings of the luni-solar and solar year would have to be made by the framers of luni-solar pañchāṅgs for each year separately, in order to find the appropriate saṁvatsara whose name the luni-solar year was to bear. This cannot be determined by any general table. In such a system no expunction of a saṁvatsara can take place except in a luni-solar year which has an intercalary month, since the luni-solar common year is in length roughly seven days less than the saṁvatsara.

209. I begin Table XLII from the year A.D. 400 when a cycle began, and not from an earlier date, because at present the earliest certain date yet found in India which contains the saṁvatsara-name of a year belongs to the 8th century A.D. Scholars are not quite clear about the Chalukya inscription of A.D. 602 (see Indian Chronography, p. 3). It seemed useless to begin from an earlier date.

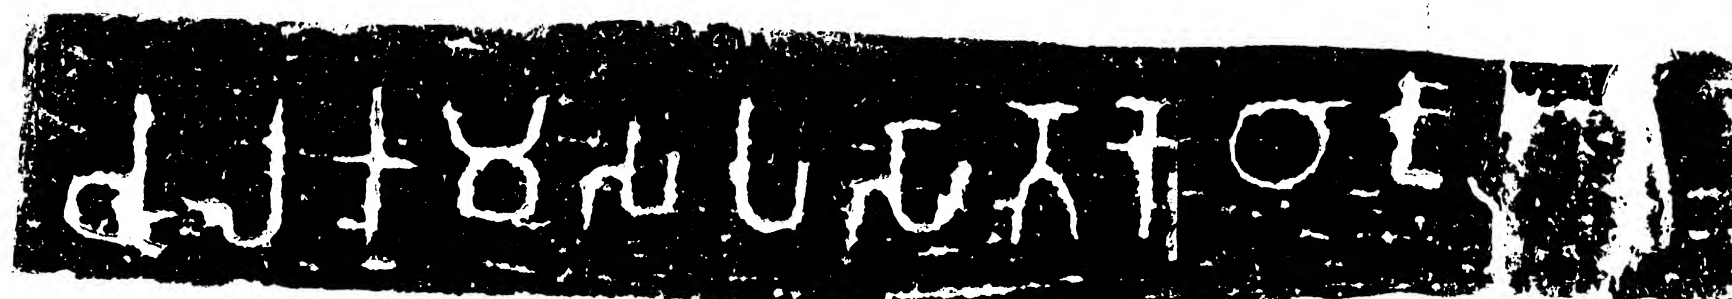

210. The present Tables XXVII B to XXXI E supplement the work of Tables XXVII to XXXI A published in Indian Chronography, and enable the beginning and ending time of a Jovian saṁvatsara to be ascertained by any of the principal Indian Siddhāntas, when calculation is made on the basis of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti.

211. The present Table XXVII B follows the Present Śūrya Siddhānta without the bija (or correction introduced in A.D. 1478) on the basis of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, Table XXVII of Indian Chronography being calculated by apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti; and Table XXVII B is to be used with Table XXVII A just as is Table XXVII. The rule is given in § 146, p. 51, and examples in § 147, and (pp. 117-120) "Examples" 48 to 52.

(2) The word vāpī most probably refers to the numerous rock-cut reservoirs on the hills.

(3) The last word in line 2 seems to be Isana, Skt. Īśāna, which occurs in the Sārnāth Inscription of Mahipāla of the Vikrama year 1083. It has been taken by Dr. Vogel¹ as one of the names of Śiva; but most probably it means a temple, as its use in this inscription seems to indicate.

(4) The word udyōtita, which means "caused to shine," indicates that the wells and temple of the Tirthaṅkaras were repaired.

(5) The last part of line 4 and the first words of line 5 is unintelligible.

TRANSLATION.

"In the year 5 of the victorious reign of illustrious Udyōtakēśari (Uddyōtakēśari), on the illustrious Kumāra mountain, decayed tanks and decayed temples were caused to shine, (and) at that place the images of the twenty-four Tirthaṅkaras were set up. At the time of the dedication Jasanandi . . . in the place (? Temple) of the illustrious Pārasyanātha (Pārsvanātha)"

XVII.—Inscription in the Ganesagumpha.

This record is incised on the back wall of the right-hand side chamber in the Gaṇeśagumphā. The characters belong to the latter half of the eighth or the first half of the ninth century A.D. It mentions a king named Śāntikara, who is not known from any other record. The inscription is in verse and seems to record some dedication made by Bhimaṭa, a physician, the son of Nannāṭa. The second line, which contains the name of the object of the dedication, is unfortunately in a very bad state of preservation, and consequently the purport of the inscription is not very clear.

TEXT.

- 1 Śri Śāntikara(1)-saurājyād-āchandrārkkam
- 2 grihē (2) grihē | Khadi (3)(?)samjñō punaḥ praṅgē(?) ga-
- 3 jāśya(4)-virajō janō (5) || Ijyā-garbha-samud-
- 4 bhūto Nannāṭasya sūtō bhishak | Bhimaṭo
- 5 yāchatō vānyapraṣṭham (6) samvatsarāt=punaḥ ||

NOTES.

(1) A line of Kings whose names end with the affix kara is mentioned in a copper-plate grant which I have recently received from a Zamindar of Cuttack. But Śāntikara is not mentioned there.

(2) The word grihē is repeated in l. 2. Most probably the first is a mistake for śubhē. The expression śubhē grihē also occurs in Vairādēva's record outside the Śon-bhāṇḍār cave in Rājgir.²

(3) The first word of the second verse seems to be Khadi; it may also be read vēdi, but it is unintelligible.

(4) Gajāśya is one of the names of Gaṇeśa, so here may be a reference to the image of Gaṇeśa which is carved on the walls of this chamber.

(5) Virajō janō may also be read Virajōdanē.

(6) The form vānyapraṣṭha is unusual. Pandit Binod Bihari Bidyabinod suggests that it may be dhānyapraṣṭha, i.e., a measure of rice.³

³ [It is more probably a secondary noun derived from vanapraṣṭha, an anchorite.—S. K.]

(V. 11) The whole sky even in summer manifestly looked like that of the rainy season, the rays of the sun above becoming obstructed by the abundant dust raised by the lofty steeds of Śubhatuṅga (Kṛishṇarāja).

(V. 12) Who is able to obstruct the assault of that excellent lord of men, when he moves on with his force, violent with exalted pride?

(V. 13) In crushing down all affliction Akālavārsha (the untimely rainer), behaving as he likes, incessantly and instantaneously rains (i.e. fulfils) their wishes to the miserable and helpless ones and to his favourites.

(V. 14) He got a son, (who was) a sun in causing the lotus (which is) the world to expand; who was a Mandara mountain in churning the ocean of battle; who was an axe to the creepers (in the shape of) the collection of his wicked foes; who was high-minded; an ornament amongst kings, Prabhutuṅga by name;

(V. 15) (Kṛishṇarāja) by whom the collection of his foes was destroyed, while he was raining gifts on worthy people and did away with arrogance, as a lotus pond is by an elephant (who rains ichor and breaks down the post).

(V. 16) That king who long securely enjoyed (the rule of) the earth, which is always immovable by nature; but over which earthquakes spread; which is resplendent with the (various) castes; with excellent subjects; worthy of praise; pleasant through the enjoyment of good objects; highly embellished with creatures; whose surface is adorned with (his) camp; adorned with the excellencies of Kāñchi, as a lover (would enjoy his own damsel, firm by nature, in whom agitation is expanded; who is resplendent with paint, who bears excellent children; who is worthy of praise; who is lucky in properly enjoying the pleasures of the senses; who is highly adorned with emotions; who embellishes her body with bracelets, and who is adorned by the string of a girdle).

(V. 17) By him this donation, highly meritorious through the bestowal of land, was effected, looking on this life as worthless and as fickle like wind and lightning.

(Ll. 22-32) at the request of Gōvindarāja. He, Prithivīvallabha, the Mahārājādhirāja, the Paramēśvara, the Paramabhaṭṭāraka, the illustrious Akālavārsha, issues (the following) order to all the heads of rāshṭras and vishayas and to the Mahattaras: be it known to you that, at the request of Vāsishṭhaśrikumāra and at the request of Jaivanti Pāṇiaya the village called Kumārigrāma has been given to the Brāhmaṇas residing in the Karahāṭa ten thousand, in order to increase the merit and fame of his mother and father and of himself, in the year six hundred increased by ninety of the Śaka king, in the year Plavaṅga, on the new-moon day of Vaiśākha, on the occasion of an eclipse of the sun, (while residing) in the victorious camp against the Gaṅgas in the town Maṇṇa. And two shares have been given to Bhaṭṭa-Vāsudēva, who is honoured with the highest honour by Brāhmaṇas and kings, and who is conversant with the sense of all the Vēdas and śāstras. (It is situated) to the west of Khambhagrāma, Vōrimagrāma and Daḍimagrāma; to the north of the Khadiravēṇa hills; to the east of Alandiyagrāma and Thiuragrāma, and to the south of the river Mūla; in this way it is well defined with its four boundaries, and it has been combined with Bhamarōparā, Araluva and Sindigrāma, is situated within the Pūnaka-vishaya and has been made free of all oppression (through taxes). And this gift should be respected by future kings, of our lineage or others, in the same way as their own gifts. And it has been said by the venerable Vyāsa (three of the customary verses follow).

(V. 22) By the order of the glorious Kṛishṇarāja, attended by a crowd of kings, this charter, which illuminates his noble fame, has been written by Indra, who is not elated by prosperity, whose mind is applied to the welfare of others, and who even desires to assist him (Kṛishṇarāja), the foremost amongst his friends in wealth.

No. 26.—SILIMPUR STONE-SLAB INSCRIPTION OF THE TIME OF JAYAPALA-DEVA.

By RADHA GOVINDA BASAK, M.A.; RAJSHAHI.

The slab of black stone which bears this inscription was discovered in 1319 B.S. in Mauzā Silimpur, Police Station Khethāl, in the Bogrā District of the Rājshāhī Division in the Presidency of Bengal. It was found by a peasant who was levelling ground for the purpose of cultivation in the Zamindārī of Babu Vijaya Gōvinda Basu Chowdhuri of the village Khalsi in the Mānikgañj Subdivision of the District of Dacca, two cubits under the surface of the earth. The place where it was unearthed and its surroundings are still full of ruins of temples, buildings, large tanks, etc., belonging to the mediæval ages. After its discovery the stone remained in the possession of the Muhammadan cultivator; but in the month of Māgh 1321 B.S. [January-February, 1915] some of Vijaya Bābu's officers went to Silimpur on business, and possessed themselves of the inscribed slab, although the illiterate cultivator was at first most unwilling to part with it. It was then removed to Khalsi in Mānikgañj, whence I received information of this discovery from my friends, Bābu Birēndra Kumār Sarkār, B.A., and Bābu Sitānāth Ghōsh, B.A., teachers of the Mānikgañj High School. I then went to Mānikgañj to have a sight of the inscribed slab. Vijaya Bābu's men then made a present of the stone to the Varēndra Research Society, and I accepted it on behalf of the Society. The slab is now deposited in the Museum of the Society at Rājshāhī. I edit the inscription, for the first time, from the original slab, which was placed at my disposal by the Society.

The inscription contains 25 lines of writing, which cover a space of 1' 4½" broad by 8¼" high. The writing is very beautifully and carefully executed. The letters are incised very deep. With the exception of a few letters in lines 5-7, which have become slightly effaced, and of three letters only, two in line 1 and one in line 24, which have been partly broken, the whole inscription is in an excellent state of preservation. From the fact that the slab has a projection of about an inch on both sides like two wings, it seems probable that it had been built into a wall of the temple which is stated to have been erected by the person eulogised in the prastuti. A most interesting feature of this inscription is that it is almost free from spelling mistakes, due either to the ignorance of the scribe or the engraver, which are so common in other stones and copper-plates found in Bengal and other parts of India. The text itself contains a verse (v. 29) which gives high praise to the scrupulous care of the engraver Sōmēśvara, a Māgadhan artist. The size of the letters is about ¼".

The characters in which the inscription is written belong to a variety of the Northern alphabet which was used, especially in Bengal and Magadha, in the 11th century A.D. On comparing each individual character of our inscription with that of the two stone-inscriptions¹ written in the 15th year of king Naya-pāla-dēva's reign, it has been found that the script is almost exactly the same everywhere. Some difficulty has occasionally been felt in deciphering the text on account of the close resemblance of the signs for some pairs of letters—e.g. the signs for pa and ya, ta and bha, and the subscript u and subscript r. The distinction between the forms

¹ In my examination of the script of these two inscriptions I have used the facsimile of the Kṛishṇa-dvārikā temple inscription, which was presented to the Varēndra Research Society by Bābu Rākhāl Dās Banerjee, M.A., and Mr. Prabhāt Kumār Mukherjee, Barrister-at-Law, and the copy of the facsimile of the Narasiṅha-dēva temple inscription, published opposite p. 234 of the Bengali History of Bengal, by Rākhāl Bābu. I also got an opportunity, in this connection, to compare the letters of the Palm-leaf MSS. of the Ashṭa-sāhasrikā Prajñāpāramitā (Cambridge University collection) written in the 14th year of Naya-pāla, from the reprint of a page published in Rākhāl Bābu's book (opposite p. 234). Much likeness is also observed between this script and that of the Sarnāth inscription of Kumāra-dēvi—(Ep. Ind., Vol. IX, plate opposite p. 324).

TRANSLATION.

(Line 1)—Fortune ! Ōm !

(Verse 1)—Homage to Śambhu, lovely with the moon kissing his lofty head as a fan, who is the foundation-column for the beginning of the cities of the Three Worlds !

(Verse 2)—Having his bosom tightly clasped to the two lovely swelling breasts of the Lady Fortune, bearing on his banner the spirit of victory in battles adorned by an arm of fame unique in the world, displaying his majesty in firmness like that of the earth's ramparts, associated in the sportive play of the genius of the mighty Kādamba kingdom, everlastingly may the Lord of the Western Ocean flourish !

(Verse 3)—The blessed Lord of the Three Worlds [Śiva], when in his fury he had conquered Tripura with the graceful eye in his brow, as his excitement caused weariness, came and stood in the lofty shade of a grove of brilliant kadambas ; and as he let fall the bright sweat upon the ground, there was born a home of Fortune, the Kādamba lineage that is a base for multitudes of jewels in kings' diadems.

(Verse 4)—In this lineage there flourished many whose forms appeared in beauty, whose glory was encircled by the tusks of the elephants of the regions of space, and who accomplished the removal of their foes' lives.

Among these great sovereigns—

(Verse 5)—The accomplished actor in the dance of that actress the spirit of victory, the brilliant new gem dear to the Lady Earth, who arose in the land with a radiance that lit up as with a lamp the hall of the world—hurrah ! was Chaṭṭayadēva, the exalted Lord of the Western Ocean, who displayed the majesty of the King of Gods and possessed miraculous heroism, an ordinary man ?

(Verse 6)—As he took Kavaḍi-dvīpa and many other regions, built a bridge with lines of ships reaching as far as Laṅkā, (and) claimed tribute among grim barbarians, exceedingly exalted was the dominion of the Kādamba sovereign, which many called a religious estate for the establishment (of the worship) of Rāṇa.

(Verse 7)—When gardens on every side, white-plastered houses, alleys, horse-stables, flower-gardens, agreeably connected bazaars, harlots' quarters, and tanks were charming the eye, the Lord of the Ocean [Chaṭṭaya] duly proceeded on (his) ships over the sea in sport, along with (the whole population of) Gōve, with great pomp as far as the land of Surāshṭra.³

(Verse 8)—“ If words of reproach be spoken, the rustics must duly satisfy the lord Sōmanātha with camphor, and then shew their purity together in the earth ” : having thus spoken, and having assigned a lower price for root-camphor,⁴ king Chaṭṭaya, who terrified hostile armies, became an ornament to the world.

⁴ Camphor, which has always been an item in the worship of gods, seems to have been a rather expensive article : compare vol. IV, above, p. 138.

- Page 303, verse 15,—The missing letters at the end of l. 21 and the beginning of l. 22 may be mella (i.e. chakram=ellam=aleyal). Elvar=alakke must in my opinion be a reference to El(r)-ara(aro)-lakke, 'the seven and a half lakh' country of the Chalukyas, of whom Jayakēśin was a feudatory. Jimkarise may well stand for jēmkarise, which means 'buzzed.' Ōḍisit=ettisidam must be ōḍisi tettisidam, and virōdhi-bem-kolvan must be written as one word. The incident here related may refer to the reverse sustained by the Śilāras, who were relatives of the Chālukyan emperor, at the hands of Jayakēśin I (see Kan. Dyn. Distr., p. 567). Or Ālvāra may stand for Ālpara, in which case the Ālupa king will be the ripurāja, 'enemy king,' mentioned in l. 22.—H. K. S.
- „ 303, verse 16,—for palava[∪]yam kumareyam* read palav[=āne]yam kudureyam.—H. K. S.
- „ 303, text l. 25,—for kalyāṇadol read Kalyāṇadol.—H. K. S.
- „ 304, „ l. 34,—for mudreyam read mudreyim.—H. K. S.
- „ 310, verse 10,—for exceedingly exalted Rāma read many said that Lankā was a Brahman settlement established by Rāma. On this he ceased (to demand tribute). This prowess (aḷavu) of Chattā is very great.—H. K. S.
- „ 310, verse 11,—for Thāṇeya read Thāṇeya.
- „ 310, „ 15 and n. 5,—see Additions and Corrections to p. 303, v. 15.
- „ 310, „ 17,—see above on p. 303, l. 25.
- „ 323, ll. 5-9,—for she who rides on fiery elephants read she who has the gait of a scent elephant.—H. K. S.
- „ 334, verse 5,—Perhaps the sense is that the kings of mountains etc. have acquired their unique degree of firmness etc. by gift from Gojjiga-dōva. So the poets sing.—H. K. S.
- „ 355, l. 21,—It is difficult to accept the interpretation of Dr. Barnett; for Kuṇḍaliśvara in this verse of common occurrence has been generally interpreted to mean 'chief of serpents.' Consequently kuṇḍaliśvara-mahābhujah would be one whose arms are as long and powerful as the chief of serpents (i.e. Ādiśeṣha).—H. K. S.

JOHN FAITHFULL FLEET, C.I.E., PH.D.

The passing of so prominent an Oriental epigraphist as Dr. Fleet has raised a desire that some notice of him should find a place in a publication to which he was a constant and valued contributor. Born in 1847, he died in 1917, and thus fulfilled the term assigned by the Psalmist to the span of human life. But after his retirement from public service in 1897, when he settled in Ealing, he was subject in his latter years to continual ill-health. On the last occasion on which I met him he said on this account he had not been into London for eight months. His devotion to Oriental studies, however, was not relaxed to the last.

He was the son of John George Fleet, of the Roystons, Chiswick, his mother being Esther Faithfull, the daughter of a clergyman; and he was educated at Merchant Taylors School which bears on its rolls, among others, the distinguished name of Robert Clive. In 1865 he passed for the Indian Civil Service, and in the probationary period which followed studied Sanskrit under Professor Goldstücker of the University College, London. Eventually he was posted in 1867 to the Bombay Presidency. Here his official career was chiefly spent in the Southern Mahratta country, so called for administrative purposes, but on the basis of language more correctly termed the Karnaṭaka Prānt. He was thus brought into contact with Kannaḍa (or Kanarese), the prevailing vernacular; and as Educational Inspector in the Southern Division in 1872, and Assistant Political Agent at Kollhapur in 1875, he was led to take up the study of it. He was decorated with the Order of C.I.E. in 1884; became Collector and Magistrate of Sholapur in 1886, and Senior Collector in 1889. His further appointments were—Commissioner of the Southern Division in 1891, next year of the Central Division, and in 1893 Commissioner of Customs.

Meanwhile his attention had early been drawn to the numerous inscriptions thickly scattered in the districts where his duties lay, and he applied himself to a systematic research of these invaluable memorials of the past, many of which are densely inscribed on stone slabs of large dimensions, on which the busy and incurious Saxon often gazes with blank amazement at so much apparently misplaced expenditure of energy, and in which the people of the country as a rule exhibit not the slightest interest. Of these, and others on metal plates, he began to collect facsimiles, which he deciphered, and he published the results in the Bombay Asiatic Journal and other works; especially in the Indian Antiquary, started by Dr. Burgess in 1872 and still going, of which he became the joint Editor with Captain (now Sir) R. C. Temple from 1885 to 1891.

Before this he had published in 1878, under the title of Pāli, Sanskrit and Old Canarese Inscriptions, copies of photographs taken by Colonel Dixon in 1865 for the Mysore Government, with some others, giving merely the dates and names of the kings under whom the records were issued. The translation of those belonging to Mysore, which formed the bulk, was placed in my hands and appeared in 1879 in a volume named Mysore Inscriptions.

The bent of his talents being recognized, a special appointment was created for him as Epigraphist to the Government of India, which he held from January 1883 to June 1886, when it was abolished. The object was to entrust to him the task of bringing out Vol. III of the Corpus Inscriptionum Indicarum, relating to the Early Gupta Kings; Vol. I, containing the Edicts of Aśoka, had been published by General Sir A. Cunningham, and Vol. II, intended for the inscriptions of the Indo-Scythians and the Satraps of Saurāṣṭra, had for the time been held back. On taking up the project, he found the usual state of things so well known to those who have done similar work. The Government was under the impression that the copies in their records were all-sufficient, and only required a skilled expert to interpret and publish them. But, as a matter of fact, the copies were, as is mostly the case, untrustworthy and worthless for scientific purposes. Nor was better material to be obtained except by personal investigation of the inscriptions themselves in situ. The scrupulous care needed to secure voracious counterparts was little appreciated by the authorities, who were disappointed to find that a task which they had expected to be disposed of in a comparatively short period was, as it appeared to them, spun out interminably. Besides the journeys in India, a voyage to England was necessary to superintend the photo-lithographic reproduction of the inscriptions, the minute accuracy of which was an essential feature of the work. For these various reasons the printing was not completed till July 1887, and the volume was published in 1888.

It is as exhaustive a production as the importance of the subject demands, and was intended by the author to be a model for all similar work. But a century would not suffice to carry out with corresponding particularity a Corpus Inscriptionum of all that India can supply. Moreover, bulky as the volume is—hardly ‘handy and accessible,’ as originally contemplated by General Cunningham,—it is only a part of what was in the mind of the editor to produce. ‘It will not,’ he says, ‘be thoroughly complete without the Historical Chapters that should form the second part of it. And the writing of these will entail so enormous an amount of miscellaneous reading and annotation . . . that I doubt much whether those chapters will ever be written by me’—(and they never were).

The hopelessness of the prospect being manifest, it was arranged by Dr. Burgess to issue a quarterly supplement to the Indian Antiquary, under the name of Epigraphia Indica, in which inscriptions should be published as they were found, trusting to the Index to facilitate references. Its Vol. I, issued in 1892, was thus to be regarded as Vol. IV of the Corpus. This scheme is still in operation and has proved of the greatest value, though much delayed by changes of Editors and other causes due to the war. In this publication Dr. Fleet bore a full share.

Other works by him, of more than local importance, are his articles in Vol. I of the Gazetteer of Bombay of 1895, in which he has given an account of the Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts from the earliest historical times to the Musalmān conquest of 1318 A.D., as derived from inscriptions. It teems with information of the first importance, nowhere else then available, though the narrative is perhaps too much interrupted by minute specifications of dates, often given in double years.

Then we have his comprehensive chapter on Epigraphy in Vol. II, Historical, of the new Imperial Gazetteer of India of 1908. In this he not only summarizes what has been done, but points out the ends to be still kept in view and appeals for help from all hands.

Lastly comes his article on Indian Inscriptions in the Encyclopædia Britannica, 11th edition, 1911, which is a masterly review of the whole subject and bears witness to his intimate knowledge of this great field of research.

One point further must be noticed in connexion with his attainments. The examination of the complicated system of Indian Chronology was taken up by him with characteristic eagerness, as being much to his taste. In his Gupta Inscriptions he has stated his obligations to Mr. S. B. Dikshit for the help derived from him in this matter. His publications since then bear sufficient evidence of his deep penetration into this intricate branch of inquiry, so that he was constantly appealed to as an authority for the verification of dates, which he was always ready to investigate. It is not to be wondered at that some such puzzles were not found to be soluble; but inscriptions, it is feared, have been condemned as false or doubtful owing to a too rigid application of rules, which resulted in their dates being pronounced ‘irregular,’ often for the reason that the week day did not work out correctly. A solution of many of these discrepancies has now been presented by Dr. Venkata Subbiah, of the Mysore Archaeological Department, in his important brochure, just published, called Some Śaka Dates in Inscriptions, which is calculated to clear the air in regard to these points.

It remains to state that Dr. Fleet was Honorary Secretary of the Royal Asiatic Society from 1906 till his death; and in 1912 received the Gold Medal of the Society for his eminent services to Oriental learning. If only for inducing Professor Kielhorn to turn his attention to Indian epigraphy and chronology, he would be entitled to this. But he also, no doubt, exerted an influence in stimulating Indian scholars in the country itself to take an interest in these studies, for the prosecution of which they possess certain manifest advantages to which Europeans can in no wise lay claim. The number of such is increasing, and their efficiency is reaching a high standard. One is actually holding the position of Epigraphist to the Government of India.

In conclusion it may be said that—whether we regard his pioneer work at the beginning, his sustained interest in a pursuit which has a growing fascination of its own, or the results obtained by his efforts in bringing to light so many valuable materials to elucidate the early history of India, especially in the western parts,—Dr. Fleet has a claim to be held in honourable remembrance as in the front rank of the devoted band of eminent Bombay scholars who have distinguished themselves in antiquarian researches.

The subjoined is a list of Dr. Fleet's contributions to the Epigraphia Indica.

EPIGRAPHIA INDICA.

VOLUME XIII.

No. 1.—TRIPLICANE PLATES OF PANTA-MAILARA, DATED SAKA-SAMVAT 1350, IN THE REIGN OF DEVARAYA II.

By T. A. GOPINATHA RAO, M.A., TRIVANDRUM.

The subjoined inscription is engraved on five copper-plates, strung together by a ring which bears no seal. The set belongs to the house of Kavibhūṣaṇam Tātāchārya of Tripligane and was kindly secured for me by my friend, Mr. M. K. Nārāyaṇasāmi Ayyar, B.A., B.L., High Court Vakil, Madras. I edit the inscription from the original as also from impressions prepared under my supervision.

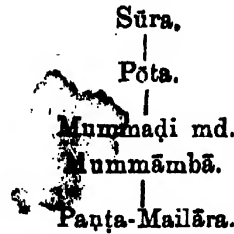

The writing begins on the second side of the first plate and ends on the first side of the last plate. The shape of the plates is the same as in the Vijayanagara ones of a similar period; they have a curved top, with a hole in the centre for the ring. The plates are numbered consecutively on the back of each plate with Telugu-Kannaḍa numerals, which are engraved to the left of the ring-hole: but in the case of the fifth, or the last plate, the numeral five is engraved on the first side. The alphabet of the record is Telugu and the language partly Sanskrit and partly Telugu. The latter is employed in describing the boundaries, etc. of the village granted. At the end is engraved the word Śrī Virāṇākṣa, the sign-manual of the kings of the first Vijayanagara dynasty. The engraving has been done satisfactorily and the record is in an excellent state of preservation.

Harihara II
Dēvarāya I
Vijaya-Bukka
Pratāpa-Dēvarāya II.

While the king was seated on the throne of his ancestors at Vijayanagara, his feudatory, Panta-Mailara, requested his sovereign to be pleased to grant the village of Takkellapāṇu to the Brāhmaṇa Śiṅgarārya, who was his guru. The record gives the following pedigree for Mailāra :—

Paṇṭa-Mailāra bore the birudas Dharaṇivarāha, Ohauhattamalla and Ghaṇṭanāda. The date of the inscription is Śaka 1350 (expressed by vyōma, bāṇa, anala and śaśi) which corresponded to the cyclic year Kilaka, Monday, the first (Pratipad)-tithi of the bright fortnight in the month of Āshāḍha. It is mentioned that the father and grandfather of the donee were respectively named Tātāchārya and Venkaṭāchārya; that the member of the family, Śiṅgarārya, belonged to the Śaṭhamarshaṇa *gōtra*¹ and that his śakha was Yajus. The village of Takkeḷḷapāḍu was situated in the Addaṅki-sima in Kamma-vishaya. Regarding the date of the document Mr. L. D. Swamikkannu Pillai writes :—"Ś. 1350, Kilaka, Monday, Śukla 1 in Āshāḍha=Monday, 14th June, A.D. 1428. The tithi ended at 12½ ghaṭikās after mean sunrise."

The present record is the second copper-plate grant of the chief Paṇṭa-Mailāra, so far discovered. The first was published by Messrs. Butterworth and Vēṇugōpāla Chetty in their collection of the inscriptions in the Nellore district.² This document is exactly similar to the other as far as verse 18; the rest is necessarily different. The Paṇṭa-kula to which Mailāra

"Sect, Vādāma; family, Śōṭṭai; Śaṭhamarshaṇa-gōtra; Yajus-śākhā;

The genealogy of the Tātāchārya family, as gathered from the Prapaṇṇamṛitam, is given below for the benefit of the students of the history of Śrivaishṇavas :—

Eṭṭūr Narasiṃhāchārya, (Śiṅgarāchārya).

Pañcha-matā-bhaṇḍaṇam Tātāchārya.

Lakshmīkumāra Tātāchārya alias Kōṭi-kanyakā-dānam Tātāchārya (contemporary of Venkaṭapatiḍēvarāya I.).

² Copper-plate No. 18, Chejerla grant of Dēvarāya II., S. 1351, Vol. I, pp. 149-154; written in the Nandī-nāgarī characters.

belonged, is described in the Tottaramāṭi plates¹ and the Konkudurn grant² as belonging to the fourth caste (i.e. the Śūdra caste). The name Paṇṭa-kula is mentioned therein as composed of several branches, of which the most important were the one of the Redḍis ruling independently over the south Telugu country with Koṇḍaviḍu as its capital, and another of the same kings ruling over the north Telugu country with Rājamahēndrapura (Rajahmundry) as the capital. In the genealogical portion of neither of these families do we come across the names Sūra, Pōta or Mummaḍi, the ancestors of Paṇṭa-Mailāra. Perhaps this chief belonged to a minor branch of the Paṇṭa-kula. The Telugu poet Śrīnātha, who was the Vidyādhikārin of the Koṇḍaviḍu chiefs, laments the death of a Mailāru in a verse³ which is quoted by Rāo Bahadūr Virōśa-līngam Pantulu in his 'Lives of Telugu Poets.'⁴ This Mailāru was, perhaps, the same as the Paṇṭa-Mailāra of the document under consideration who is said to have served Dēvarāya II. in his campaigns against his enemies, and pleased his lord by paying him rich tributes of invaluable gems and other costly articles. On the whole, he seems to have been in the good graces of Dēvarāya II. Nothing further is known of Paṇṭa-Mailāra.

The donee, Śīngarārya,⁵ belonged to the Śrīsaila-vaṃśa. The family derives its name from Periya Tirumalai-nambi, the maternal uncle of the great Viśiṣṭādvaita teacher, Śrī-Rāmānuja. He was one of the five important disciples of Yāmunārya (alias Ālavandār), and was an authority in the exposition of the Rāmāyaṇa, in which his descendants also became famous. The members of this family are better known by the title Tātāchārya. It is said that the god Venkaṭēśa of Tirupati was very pleased with Periya Tirumalai-nambi for the parental care he was taking of his image at Tirumala, and on one occasion the god is said to have addressed him as 'mama tāta' (my father); and ever since Periya Tirumalai-nambi came to be recognised by the name Tātāchārya, a title which his descendants also began to assume. The Tātāchāryas became the gurus of the kings of Vijayanagara; the way they succeeded in bringing the emperors of Vijayanagara to their faith is narrated in the Prapaṇṇāmṛitam, a summary of which has been given in my paper on the Daḷavāy Agrahāram plates of Venkaṭapatidēvarāya I.⁶ The Tātāchāryas are found among the Vaḍagalais and the Teṅgalais alike, but the majority are only Vaḍagalais; the name Tātāchārya has therefore almost exclusively become a Vaḍagalai one at the present time, and I am told the Teṅgalai Tātāchāryas despise this Vaḍagalai appellation, Tātāchārya, and hence the paucity of the suffix among the Teṅgalai members of the Śrīsaila-vaṃśa. The owner of the copper-plate grant under consideration is a Teṅgalai Tātāchārya belonging to the Addanki branch of the family and is in all probability the lineal descendant of the donee of the document. There are Teṅgalai Tātāchāryas residing in Śrīmushṇam, Śrīvilliputtūr, etc.

⁴ In the 1911 edition, p. 132.

⁵ There is every probability that the donee of the inscription under discussion is the Addanki Śīngarāchārya given in the list of the Periya Tirumūḍiyāḍaṭen; but there is this difference between the plates and the book, that while the former give the names Venkaṭāchārya and Tātāchārya as those of the grandfather and the father respectively, of Śīngarārya, the latter mentions Venkaṭāchārya as the father of Śīngarāchārya. It is very probable that the printed copy of the book which contains this pedigree is wrong, as none of the manuscripts of the work in my possession makes any mention of this line at all.

⁶ See above, Vol. XII, p. 162.

The biruda Ghaṭṭanāda held by Paṇṭa-Mailāra, is explained in v. 16. It is stated therein that when Paṇṭa-Mailāra rang his bell in the battle-field, the hostile forces would be overtaken with fear.¹

The names of places that occur in the document are Addaniki, Alivalapāḍu, Takkeḷḷapāḍu, Kupperāvipāḍu, Janakavarāma, Paṅgulūru, and Bāvinṭitula. All these places are in the Ongole tāluka of the Guntur District. Kupperāvipāḍu might be identified with the modern Kopperapāḍu. The other names still retain their old forms.

(Verse 1.) May the illustrious primeval Boar, being carried upwards by whom (being married by whom) the earth became pregnant with gems, be auspicious to you.

(V. 2.) May the elephant (Gaṇeśa), whose trunk is always moist with the flowings from his temples,⁹ having worshipped whom Śiva and others obtain the fruition desired (by them), bring you happiness.

(V. 3.) May the moon, the store-house of ambrosia of the gods, wearing whose digit the lord of demons (Bhūtāśa, that is, Śiva) became the lord of kings, (or, moon-crowned, Rājāśkhara), be a source of delight to you.

(V. 4.) From the moon who was born from the mind of the primeval man (Vishṇu) arose the race of the Yadus in which, as the fruit of Vasudēva's merit, appeared Hari himself (in the form of Kṛishṇa) associated with the hosts of gods.

(V. 5.) In that pure race was born a king named Harihara of pure character, just as the moon (was born) from the milk-ocean.

(V. 6.) The two (functions), the protection of the good and the punishment of the wicked, are indeed divided in (between) Hari (Vishṇu) and Hara (Śiva); but he (Harihara) combined their functions in his own person, by bearing their name (Harihara) and majesty.

(V. 7.) His son was the glorious Dēvarāya, who attained great fortune, who was a very king of the gods (Indra) on earth and who by his constant dāna (cutting, smiting) expunged the word dēhi (the possessor of a body) in the case of enemies, and by his dāna (gift) the word give in the case of suppliants.

(V. 8.) From him, who was the store-house of virtue, was born, as Jayanta from Indra, king Vijaya-Bukka, who was eminent, by whom enemies were vanquished, and who resembled Vijaya (Arjuna).

(V. 9.) His son was Pratāpa-Dēvarāya, of unlimited glory, (and) accomplished in courting the beauties, Fortune, Fame, Earth and Sarasvatī.

(Vv. 10-13.) Being enthroned at Vijayanagara which had come to him by (regular) succession in his family, he conquered (both) internal and external enemies by his intellect and valour (respectively). While his royal title was extolled by his subjects who were pleased, because he protected the system of castes, he protected the earth which has the four oceans for its girdle under one umbrella (i.e. as universal sovereign). Him the learned constantly called Mūruṇārāgaṇḍa (the champion or vanquisher of the three kings), Arirāyavibhāḷaka (the destroyer of hostile kings), and Hindurāya-suratrāṇa (a Sultan among Hindu kings). Formerly Rāma, son of Daśaratha, had (the attributes) magnanimity, fortitude, valour, courage, mercy, liberality, truthfulness and reverence; (but) now it is king Dēvarāya (who possesses these virtues).

(Vv. 14-18.) King Mailāra was assiduous in serving his (Dēvarāya's) feet, with (his) wisdom, devotion, and valour, just as Hanumān was in respect of those of Rāma; he who was the great-grandson of king Sūra, the grandson of king Pōta, the son of Mummāmbā and Mummaḍindra, and was of pure conduct; who had the biruda Dharāntvarāha, and who was famed as Chauhattamalla; Paṇṭa-Mailāra, who caused fear to hostile provincial chiefs by the ringing of his bell (Ghaṇṭānāda). In this manner, doing by threefold means what was pleasing and good to the king, destroying hostile kings by his wisdom and valour, always paying homage (to the king) with different kinds of gems and excellent articles, with his mind intent on (the king's) service, he caused delight to the mind (of the king). Then Pratāpa-Dēvarāya, being pleased with his service and valour, and having honoured Mailāra, joyfully granted him a boon.¹

(Vv. 19-20.) He, the victorious, asked for a boon, which brought good to his lord and himself, not horses, nor elephants, nor ornaments, nor wealth—, but to make a land-grant, which purifies both the giver and him who induced to give, to his good guru, Śiṅgarāya.

¹ The translation of verses 1, 2, 4, 5, and 8 to 18 is by Messrs. Butterworth and Venugopala Chetti.

(Vv. 21-22.) The illustrious Venkaṭāchārya was the purōdhas (purōhita) of the lord of Venkaṭagiri (i.e. the god Venkaṭāśa of Tirumala), the guru of the (whole) world, the consort of Śrī (Lakshmi); filled with the relish of the nectar of whose fame the chakoras, viz. the quarters (of the earth), even now abandon the taste for moon-light¹ like those (birds).

(Vv. 23-28.) He had a son the illustrious Tātāchārya, who was a store-house of grace; to the worshippers of whose lotus foot, even the ocean of samsāra (round of births) becomes shallow like a pond. To him who had seen the end of the fourteen dharmas and (?) vidyās, was born a son named Śingarārya, the placing of whose hand, accompanied with mantras, on the heads of his disciples, was a remedy to the incurable typhoid, samsāra. For having established the religion of Bhagavat (Vishnu) according to the Vēdas he is known in the world as the teacher who is the sole support of the doctrine of the Vēdas (Vēdamārgaika-pratishṭhā-chārya). This Śingarāchārya, who was born in the Śathamarshaṣa gōtra, had studied with the aṅgas and upāṅgas the Yajur-vēda and who was famous in the religion of Vishnu, is shining in the world. To him, who is the abode of learning and austerities, who is the guru to me, as well as to the world, grant a village in your name. This is the boon I ask for.

(Vv. 29-32.) Thus requested, the king Dēvarāja, being pleased and filled with devotion, honoured this guru with ornaments, gold, flowers, etc., and granted to the excellent guru named Nṛisimha, by the pouring of water and with dakṣiṇā, (to last) as long as moon and stars (endure), the village of Takkeḷlapāḍu, together with the lands for its subsistence, situated in the Addaṅki-śima of the Kamma-vishaya, together with the eight kinds of enjoyment, in the presence of (the god) Virūpāksha of the Hōmakūṭa hill, situated on the bank of the Tuṅga-bhadra, in the Bhāskara-kṣhētra, on a Monday, the first tithi of the bright fortnight of the month Āshāḍha, in the year Kilaka, which was corresponding to the Śaka year represented by śasi, anala, bāṇa and vyōma, (1350).

(V. 33.) All prosperity to the inhabitants of this village which is the place of Śrīnivāsa and which has all items of enjoyment.

(Vv. 34-37.) Dēvarāja's exhortation to his successors (and other kings) to protect this charity of his, and in support of the need for such protection the usual imprecatory and benedictory verses are quoted.

(Ll. 106-126.) The details of boundaries of the village granted are (thus) noted in the language of the country (i.e. in Telugu): on the east the hill-stream (nakkalavāṅgu) in the juncture (sandhi) of Kupperāvīpāḍu; the boundary on the south-east the mound of Billamanēni in the sandhi of Rāvinūtula and Kupperāvīpāḍu; on the south, the western bank of the tank of Narāsiṣṭhikunṭa in the sandhi of Rāvinūtula; on the south-west side, the hill-stream and the pillow-like black boulder (Nallagunḍu)² in the sandhi of Rāvinūtula and Aluvalapāḍu; the boundary on the west (is) the mound (marked by) the linga-stone (Līngamḍibba) in the sandhi of Aluvalapāḍu; on the north-west the boundary (is) the pond (called) Jaṅgamukunṭa, in the sandhi of Aluvalapāḍu and Janakavaram; the boundary on the north of the village (is) the white boulder (Tollugunḍu) in the sandhi of Paṅgulūru; the boundary on the north-east of the village is the standing stone in the sandhi of Paṅgulūru and Kupperāvīpāḍu. So much about the settlement of the boundaries.

(Vv. 38-41.) Imprecatory verses.

(V. 42.) Praise of Dēvarāja, and blessing.

(L. 138.) Śrī-Virūpāksha, (in Telugu characters).

No. 2.—NIDAGUNDI INSCRIPTION OF THE TIME OF VIKRAMADITYA VI
AND THE KADAMBA TAILAPA II: A.D. 1107.

By LIONEL D. BARNETT.

Nidagundi is a village about four miles towards the south-south-west from Shiggaon, the head-quarters of the Baṅkāpūr taluka of the Dhārwar District, Bombay. It is shown in the Map of the Dhārwar Collectorate (1874) as 'Needgoondē', and in the Indian Atlas sheet 42 (1827, with additions to 1891) as 'Neergoondē', in lat. 14° 56', long. 75° 15'. A record from this village, of the time of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Amoghavarsha I and dating from about A.D. 874, which has been edited by Dr. Fleet in vol. 7 above, p. 212, shows that the ancient form of its name was Nidugundage, which is also found in line 9-10 of the record now edited, and that it was the chief town of a group of villages known as the Nidugundage twelve. The inscription which I now edit, from an ink-impression placed at my disposal by Dr. Fleet, is on a stone tablet which was found somewhere at this same village, and was removed, for safe storage, along with the stone bearing the other record mentioned just above, to the Kachēri at Shiggaon.

Part of the top of the stone bearing this record is broken away and lost; and of the sculptures which were there there remain now only the following: in the centre, a liṅga on an abhiśhēka-stand; on the right, the bull Nandi, kneeling towards the liṅga, with the moon above him; and on the left, the lower part of a figure seated with its legs crossed on a small pedestal.—The area covered by the inscription is rather irregular in shape: its extreme measures are about 1' 8" in width by 2' 3" in height. The record is mostly in a state of excellent preservation: the few letters which are damaged or missing can be supplied without any uncertainty, except in the last line.

The characters are Kanarese, of a nearly upright rounded type characteristic of the period. They are not very elegantly formed, and they are of unequal size: in the first five lines they vary in height between $\frac{3}{4}$ " and 1", and in the rest of the inscription their height is approximately between $\frac{5}{8}$ " and $\frac{7}{8}$ ". They present the abbreviated forms of m and y noticed under Yōwūr inscription F (above, Vol. XII, p. 335): the m appears as the sixth akshara in l. 16, the y at the end of l. 18.—The language is Kanarese prose throughout, except for the minatory Sanskrit verse in ll. 21-23. The Kanarese is almost of the medieval type: the liquid l only occurs once (in iḷḷu, l. 16, beside irḷḷu, l. 14), elsewhere appearing as ḷ; and initial p is changed to h in hēriṅge (l. 14), hanna (l. 15), hēr (l. 17), while remaining in Pānuṃgall (l. 9), paṇav (l. 15), pērin (l. 17).

The purport of the inscription is to record donations by various traders to the Mūlāsthāna god, or chief god of the locality—the Metropolitan deity, as he may be called. This title is fairly common; for examples see above, vol. 5, pp. 22, 143, 149; Epi. Carn., vol. 3, Mysore, pp. 181, 189, 201. The record is dated in the reign of the Western Chālukya king Tribhuvanamalla- (Vikramāditya VI), under whom, it tells us, the Kaḍamba prince Tailapa, who among other titles bears that of Banavāsī-puravar-ādhiśvara, "lord of Banavāsī a best of cities", was ruling over the Pānuṃgal five-hundred, i.e. the province, comprising five hundred cities, towns, and villages, of which the capital was Pānuṃgal. This latter person is the Kaḍamba prince Tailapa II, son of Śāntivarman II: he is known to have ruled until A.D. 1129, in succession to Kirtivarman II, as a feudatory of Vikramāditya VI and Somēśvara III. The name of his family is presented here (line 7) as Kaḍamba, with the short a in the first syllable, and apparently the cerebral ḍ in the second. This form is found in a few other records, but is on the whole unusual. In the case both of this family and of that of the Kādambas of Goa, the customary form was Kādamba, at any rate in prose passages.

The other persons mentioned are of no importance in themselves; but the names of most of the traders concerned in the transaction are of interest as illustrating the use of hypocoristic or affectionate diminutive forms, which is peculiarly common among men of their class. Malli (l. 12), which is often found elsewhere, is probably a diminutive of Mallikārjuna; it is also common in the fuller forms Mallāṇa and Mallāya, which show the affixes of courtesy -āṇa (i.e. anna, "elder brother") and -āya (i.e. ayya, "Sir"). Dhōṇi (ibid.) is probably an error for Dōṇi, which has its fuller counterpart in Dōṇaya (above, vol. 5, pp. 73, 97) and Dōṇa-sarman (ib., p. 121), derived from Drōṇa. Kēti (l. 13) is often found in the forms Kēṭāṇa and Kēṭāya. Ohāmi (ib.) is obviously a diminutive of some name such as Chāmunḍarāya, and Siṁḍāṇa (l. 15) of something like Sindarasa (Epi. Carn., vol. 3, Mysore, p. 140). Siṁḍāṇa (l. 16) is well known. The subject of the formation of Dravidian names is one that would well repay further study.¹

The details of the date of this inscription (l. 10 f.) are: the cyclic year Sarvajit, being the thirty-second of the Chālukya-Vikrama reckoning, i.e. of the reign of the Western Chālukya king Vikramāditya VI: the first tithi of the bright fortnight of Chaitra; Ādivāra (Sunday). Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks:—"This date is an interesting one, partly as being of the first day of the lunar year, and partly for another reason which will be seen below. The Sarvajit sahvatsara in question began, as a Chaitrādi lunar year according to the southern lunisolar system of the cycle, on 25 February, A.D. 1107. This day itself was Chaitra śukla 1; the tithi, as a true tithi, ending on it at about 18 hours 8 minutes after mean sunrise (for Ujjain). But the day was a Monday; whereas the record gives Sunday. The tithi, indeed, began on the Sunday, at exactly 18 hours 13 minutes; and being the opening tithi of the new year, it might quite well, as an occasion of celebration, have been used and cited with the day on which it began, if conditions had permitted: but the time at which it began, 13 minutes after midnight, makes it very unlikely that it can have been so used, as a true tithi, for purposes such as those registered by this record. Accordingly, from this point of view, with the tithi taken as the true tithi, the date would have to be classed as irregular, in the usual sense that the given details do not work out satisfactorily and seem to involve a mistake of some kind. But as a mean tithi the tithi began at 6 hours 13 min. after mean sunrise on the Sunday; that is, at 13 minutes after midday, which would leave the whole of the afternoon and the evening for doing anything to celebrate the occasion. Accordingly, from this point of view, as presenting a mean tithi used for purposes of celebration with the day on which it began, the date may perhaps be taken as a satisfactory one, answering to Sunday, 24 February, A.D. 1107. But all that we can really say is that the day may be either Sunday, the 24th, or Monday, the 25th February."

As regards places, the record mentions first, in line 9, the province known as the Pānumgal five-hundred: this took its name from Pānumgal, Hānumgal, which is the modern Hāngal, the head-quarters of the Hāngal tāluka of the Dhārwar District. It mentions Nidagundi itself as Nidugundage in lines 9-10: the nāḍu to which reference is made in line 10 is of course the Nidugundage twelve mentioned on the previous page. Tiḷivaḷḷi, which is mentioned in line 12, must be the large village still bearing the same name, which is shown as

"Tilsewulee" and "Teelowly" in the two maps quoted above; it is in lat. 14° 37', long. 75° 17', twenty-one miles south-half-east from Nidagundi: the place has at least three inscriptions, of A.D. 1053 (?), 1238, and 1237, and a fourth, a fragment, the date of which is lost.¹

For a full account of the Kādambas of Hāṅgal, with a genealogical table and references to various unpublished as well as published records, see Dr. Fleet's Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts in the Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency, vol. I, part 2, pp. 558-64.² The pedigree as far as Tailapa II is given in the Kargudari inscription of A.D. 1108 published in Ind. Ant., vol. 10, p. 251³: it starts with a mythical Mayūravarma, who is undoubtedly intended to be the real Mayūrasarma, the original founder of the Kādamba power, whose achievements are recited in the Tālgund inscription of about the period A.D. 500—550.⁴ To the time of Kāmadēva, the last member of the line, belongs the Ablūr inscription E, dating from about A.D. 1200, published in vol. 5 above, p. 245, which recites the revival of Śaivism by the famous Ekāntada-Rāmayya.

TRANSLATION.

(Line 1) While the victorious reign of king Tribhuvanamalla, asylum of the whole world, favourite of Fortune and the Earth, paramount Emperor, supreme lord, supreme master, decoration of Satyāśraya's race, ornament of the Chalukyas, is proceeding in its course of increasing success (to endure) as long as the moon, sun, and stars :—

(Line 6) While the great feudatory lord the noble Tailapa, who bears all the titles such as : " fosterling of the lotuses of his feet, great feudatory lord who has attained the five mahāśabdas, lord of Banavāsī best of cities, ornament of the Kaṇambas," was governing with impartiality the five-hundred of Pānuṅgal ; (and) while Māra-Gāvunda of Nidugundage was holding the office of head-man of the village :—

(Line 10) On Sunday, the first day of the bright fortnight of Chaitra of the cyclic year Sarvajit, being the thirty-second year of the Chālukya-Vikrama era, the following persons : Uttava-Setṭi of Tiliwalli, Kambhaya's (son) Malli-Setṭi, Dhōpi's (son) Āki-Setṭi, (and) Kariya Keti-Setṭi's (son) Ohāmi-Setṭi, acting in concert, granted as a pious donation to the Mālasthāna god one visa on every load ; the *mottakara*¹ Sindapa and the Ugura three-hundred² granted as a visiting-fee one pana ; the fruit-merchant Singapa and the five-hundred and four (of his colleagues), acting in concert, granted as a pious donation the excess-weight³ of one load on every gātra.

(Line 17) To him who maintains this pious foundation will accrue the same fruit as if he had bestowed a thousand kine as *ubhaya-mukhis*⁴ on a thousand Brāhmanas in Benares or Kurukshetra ; to him who infringes this pious foundation will accrue the five-fold deadly sin of slaying a thousand Brāhmanas and a thousand kine in Benares or Kurukshetra. He who should appropriate land, whether granted by himself or granted by others, is born as a worm in dung for sixty thousand years.

No. 3.—TWO INSCRIPTIONS FROM BELGAUM, NOW IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

BY LIONEL D. BARNETT.

The two inscriptions published herewith are engraved on large stone tablets which are now in the Department of British and Medieval Antiquities of the British Museum. The stones belonged originally to one or another of three Jain temples, the remains of which stand in the Fort at Belgaum, Bombay Presidency⁵ : and from the records themselves we learn that the temple was founded at some time about A.D. 1200 by Bichapa or Bichirāja, an official of the Ratta prince Kārtavīrya IV, and was named Ratta-Jinalaya, " the Jain temple of the Rattas." Transcriptions of the two records—(not very accurate ones)—are given in Sir Walter

² Persons styled " the Ugura three-hundred " are mentioned in other records also ; e.g. the Mandi inscriptions of A.D. 1228 and 1252, J. B. B. R. A. S., vol. 12, pp. 22, 40. The meaning of the expression is not known.

⁵ For an account of these temples, with Plates, see Burgess, Archæol. Surv. West. India, vol. 1, p. 1. The Fort dates from long after the time of the inscriptions.

Elliot's MS. Collection of South-Indian Inscriptions, vol. 2, pp. 328b, 331b, of the Royal Asiatic Society's copy; and from the titlings of these it seems that at some time about 1830 the stones were still at Belgaum, standing in the compound of a bungalow occupied by Major Jervis, who appears to have been then the Executive Engineer, P. W. D. They seem to have been sent by Major Jervis to the Museum of the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, where at any rate one of them, B, was in 1874.¹ How and when they found their way eventually to the British Museum, I have not yet been able to ascertain.

A.—OF THE TIME OF THE RATTÀ PRINCE KARTAVIRYA IV: A.D. 1204.

This inscription is incised on a massive stone slab, without ornament, of which the cornice on the top, inscribed with the introductory verse, is about 3 ft. 11 in. in width. The total height is a trifle over 4 ft. Under the cornice the stone is perfectly plain; the side on the proper right is perpendicular, while that on the proper left is recurvate on top, and thence descends vertically. There is a crack or flaw vertically down the face of the tablet; and, as with B, its surface is damaged here and there. But the record is mostly in a state of good preservation; and the whole seems to be readable without any substantial doubt. I am indebted to Mr. H. Krishna Sastri for certain suggestions which have improved my original readings and interpretations.

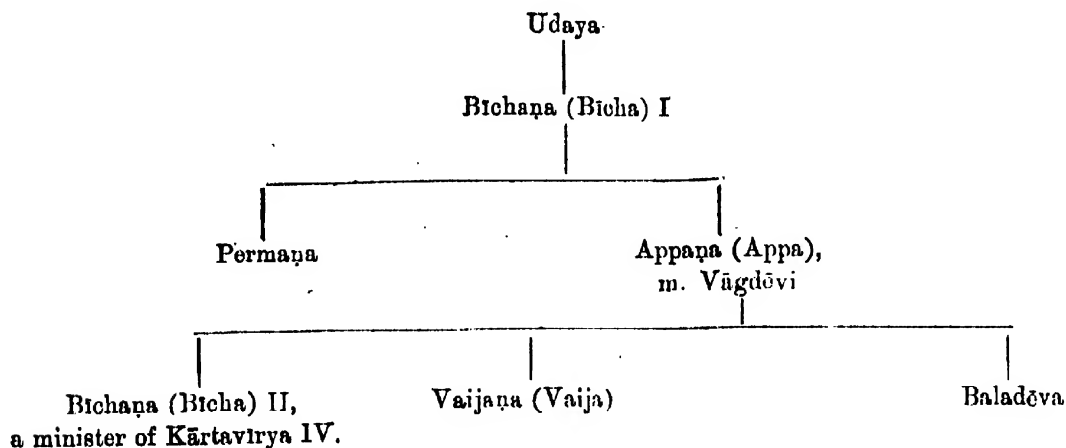

The character of the inscription is Kanarese, the letters being well shaped and rounded, of a type common about A.D. 1200. Their average height is about $\frac{1}{4}$ ". The special characters for m and v noted above, vol. 12, p. 335, occur fairly often; and that for y (ibid.) is found twice (taṁnaya, l. 7, and kaviya, l. 18). Some flourishes appear in the top and bottom lines. The language is Kanarese, except for the Sanskrit prelude (l. 1) and the two verses beginning Bahubhir=vasudhā and *Api Gaṅg-ādī*² (l. 60). The Kanarese of the metrical portion (verses 2-29, 61-63) is of the old dialect; the prose part (ll. 37-59) is medieval. With regard to vocabulary, there are several words of lexical interest: bāppu (l. 26; see above, vol. 12, p. 270), Vaḍḍavāra (l. 40; cf. above, vol. 12, p. 147), baje (l. 41), hatti (l. 42), gavani (l. 43; cf. Tel. gavini), dhavaḷāra (l. 44; in Kittel's Dictionary only dhavaḷagāra is given), bhallumki (l. 47), mummuri-damḍa (ll. 48, 49; cf. above, vol. 5, pp. 19, 23), diṁka-sāligaru (l. 50), nelameṭṭu (l. 51), chīra (l. 52), kaḍage (l. 53), hagara (l. 58). With respect to orthography there is little to note: the letter ḷ nowhere appears, and in the prose initial h is regularly substituted for p, except in pēridodaṁ (l. 52) and pēriṁge (l. 54).

The inscription refers itself to the time of the Mahamaṇḍalēvara Kārtavīrya IV, one of the Rattā princes of Saundatti: for a full account of him and the family to which he belonged, see Dr. Fleet's Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts, in the Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency, vol. 1, part 2, pp. 549-58. It mentions also his younger brother Mallikārjuna, whom it styles Yuvarāja and describes as ruling conjointly with him (line 38). In the genealogical direction, verses 2 to 14 (ll. 3-19) contain panegyrics of Sēna II; his son Kārtavīrya III, whose wife was Padmāvatī or Padmaladēvi; his son Lakshma, i.e. Lakṣmidēva I, who married Chandrikadēvi or Chandaladēvi; and his sons Kārtavīrya IV himself and Mallikārjuna. The king Kṛishṇa, who is mentioned in verse 3 as the ultimate origin of the family of the Rattā princes, is the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa III.³ In B, verse 4, the family name is presented as Rāshtrakūṭa: the more usual form was Rattā, which we have in A, line 39, and B, verse 20 and line 33. After that, verses 15 to 29 (ll. 19-37) descant on the merits of the family of Bichana or Bichirāja, a Chief Scribe and Minister of Kārtavīrya, whose pedigree is as follows :

Appana is described as śrīkaraṇa, "a Scribe" (B, verses 18, 20), and as śrīkaraṇ-āgra-gaṇya, "worthy to be counted foremost among Scribes" (A, verse 21), and as śrīkaraṇ-āgrāṇi, "a leader of Scribes" (B, verse 17). The epithet śrīkaraṇ-āgra-gaṇya is also applied to his eldest son, the second Bichana (B, l. 33), who is further mentioned as śrīkaraṇ-adhipa, "chief of the Scribes," of Kārtavīrya IV (B, verse 23), and as a sachiva or "minister" of the same prince (A, verses 25, 26 ; B, verse 19). And we learn from A, line 39, and B, l. 33, that it was this Bichana who founded the Raṭṭa-Jinālaya temple at Belgaum.

The object of the record (l. 37 ff.) was to register donations which were made on a specified date in the time of Kārtavīrya IV, falling in December, A.D. 1204, for the upkeep of the Jain temple named Raṭṭa-Jinālaya at Belgaum, which had been founded by the afore-said Bichana or Bichirāja II.¹ The grants were given to a trustee, Śubhachandra-bhaṭṭāraka-dēva, the Āchārya of the said temple, who, as we shall see from the inscription B, was attached to Hanasoge, a town in the Yedatore tāluka of the Mysore District, which once had a Jain establishment of some importance²: he was a disciple of Nēmichandra, disciple of Maladhārī-dēva, and belonged to the Pustaka Gachchha, the Deśiya Gaṇa, and the Koṇḍakuṇḍa Anvaya of the Mūla Saṁgha (B, verses 23-5, and ll. 34-5). The first of the grants, given by Kārtavīrya IV himself (ll. 37-45), included an assignment of land at Vēṇugraṇe, i.e. Belgaum, on the sthala-vṛitti tenure (l. 41), a form of holding for which payment was made in kind from the produce.³ The other grants consisted of imposts both in kind and in coin on various commodities of trade (ll. 45-59), and certain shops (l. 59). This part of the record is of much importance, as it throws considerable light on the economic organization of a great town of the period; and it is specially interesting to learn from lines 50, 51, that the mercantile community of Belgaum already included foreign settlers from Lāḷa, i.e. Lāṭa, Gujarāt, and the Malayāḷam country. Then come two minatory Sanskrit verses (ll. 60, 61), and two Kanarese verses and a prose Kanarese colophon naming the composer of the record (ll. 61-3): he is Bālachandra-dēva, styled Kavi-Kandarpa, a disciple of Mādhavachandra.

The date is exactly the same in both these two records; the details (A, l. 40; B, l. 35) are: the Śaka year 1127; the cyclic year Raktākshi; the second tithi of the bright fortnight of Pushya; Vaddavāra (Saturday); a saṁkrānta or passage of the sun into a sign of the zodiac. Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks:—"The Raktākshi saṁvatsara was Śaka 1127 current, A.D. 1204-5. For this year the given tithi, Pausa śukla 2, answers quite regularly to Saturday, 25 December, A.D. 1204, on which day it ended at about 4 hrs. 32 min. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain). And on this day at 2 hrs. 3 min. the sun entered the sign Makara (Capricornus) and came to the winter solstice, which has always been a great occasion for festivities and donations. This date is interesting (1) in citing the current Śaka year, instead of the much more usual expired year; (2) in giving still another instance of the use of the name Vaddavāra to denote Saturday (see vol. 12 above, p. 147); and (3) in satisfying the rule that a tithi used with a saṁkrānti should be the tithi which is actually current at the moment of the saṁkrānti."

The places mentioned in this record are not many. On line 48 mention is made of the Kūṇḍi three-thousand province, regarding which see Dr. Fleet's paper in Ind. Ant., vol. 39 (1900), p. 278; it was the hereditary territory of the Raṭṭas, and consisted chiefly of a large part of the present Belgaum District; its capital was Saṇḍatti, the head-quarters of the Parasgaḍ tāluka of that district. Vēṇugrāma (ll. 38, 44, 48, 50), or Vēṇugrāme (ll. 41, 42), is Belgaum itself; in other inscriptions its name occurs as Vēḷugrāme; and it is known from other records to have been the chief town of a small district of seventy villages;¹ it seems to have been a second capital of the Raṭṭa princes. Kaṇāmburige (l. 44) is the modern Kaṇbargi, about three miles north-east from Belgaum; it is shown as "Kunburgoe" in the Indian Atlas sheet 41 (1852) and as "Kānbargi" in the Bombay Survey sheet 275. On line 46 is mentioned a town Maghapattī, which I cannot identify. Mention is made on line 49 of Lāḷa, that is, Lāṭa, Gujarāt, and on ll. 50, 51, of the Maleyāḷa country, in connection with traders from those parts who evidently were settled in Belgaum, as they joined in making the grants.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1)—Victorious be the teaching of the Lord of the Three Worlds, enjoined by the Jinas, which bears the infallible token of the blessed and supremely profound doctrine of alternatives!

Homage to Śānti the Passionless!

(Verse 2)—The new ocean (consisting of) the blest Jinas' doctrine, a home for the creation of gems and nectar richly welling forth without churning, whose water is the pity for living creatures, immeasurably profound, boundless—be it radiant!

(Verse 3)—In the series of monarchs born of the lineage of king Kṛishṇa, which was known as a new pearl-necklace of the damsel Fortune, the world-renowned king Śeṇa [II] was resplendent, as a brilliant central gem.

⁴ Metre: Mahāśaṅkharā.

⁷ Here follows on the stone the symbol of the chakra.

(Verse 4)—To this lord Sēna, who was known as the monarch of the realm of excellent Kūṇḍi, was (born) a son whose prowess terrified irresistible hostile kings, Kārtavīrya [III], peerless in valour.

(Verse 5)—Of this lord the good wife was Padmāvati, a second Padmāvati¹ in fostering the Jain doctrine, a Lakshmi admired by sages,² even as of the Thunderbolt-bearer (the wife was) Pulōma's daughter [Śāchi].

(Verse 6)—To this couple was born king Lakshma [Lakshmidēva I], adorned by the diadems of lords of earth, as is born to the bounteous Ocean and (the river) Tāmbraparṇā the flawless pearl.

(Verse 7)—How shall I describe the grandeur of the arm of king Lakshmidēva? Hostile lords of the earth, afraid of the redness of the evening (sky) because they deemed it the red dust caused by the tread of his warriors' feet, and of the roar of the settling cloud because they deemed it the rattling of his horses' hoofs, never rested in their various seats—O hearken!—and were constantly fleeing away at all times.

(Verse 8)—The punitive policy of kings (consists in) detecting offenders; happily, when Lakshma, the lord of earth, was reigning with mighty authority, neither offence nor punishment existed, so skilful was he!

(Verse 9)—When the Creator in the course of his magic, quite putting aside Fortune born from the Ocean of Nectar, created a second (Fortune), he assigned to Kṛishṇa³ as mate the fickle (Fortune), and graciously bestowed this (second) most constant lady of stainless exalted estate upon Lakshmidēva, highest of the company of sovereigns: to such an exceeding degree did Chandrikādēvi display beauty.

(Verse 10)—Are any men on earth collectively able to extol (adequately) the series of virtue of the good lady Chandrikā, treasure of famed fortune? As she won by her virtue the approval of the monarch Lakshma, prince of chivalry, if she had engaged the king of serpents, he,—look you!—knowing the merits of her character, would have been able to extol her with the whole series of his tongues.

(Verse 11)—When Chandaladēvi, the good wife of king Lakshmidēva, flourished on earth and with her model hand bestowed gold on an occasion of a saṁkrānti, the black colour of the incrustation on the gold, appearing in connection with her fingers, seemed like a bee thirsting for the flowers of her nails of terrestrial coral upon the creeping plants of desire which were her arms.

(Verse 12)—To king Lakshma, who was like the blessed Vasudēva, and to this renowned Chandaladēvi, who was illustrious as the flawless princess Dēvaki, were (born) sons like Baladēva and Kōśava, the controllers of the circling earth, (namely) Kārtavīrya [IV], lord of the earth, and the young prince Mallikārjuna, (who were) endowed with abundant valour.

(Verse 13)—When Kārtavīrya, firm in valour, advanced with his host to conquer the regions of the world, and other lords of earth, turning their backs, plunged into the water, it evaporated through the heat of their bodies, and (again) swelled through the waves of sweat streaming forth under the influence of the emotion of intense terror arising in their minds: men in error averred that this was the ebb and flow of a real ocean.

(Verse 14)—“This desirable troop of steeds, this troop of elephants, this company of damsels, were ours; (but) in contests of elephants, in battles in the open field, in strife of opposing hosts, this man, this hero Kārtavīrya, has taken them!”—thus ruefully reflects the crowd of his enemies sitting in the house of bondage.

³ And, secondarily: “a Lakshmi admired by Budha.”

(Verse 15)—Living upon the Sumēru (which is) the blest Raṭṭa race, how flourished as a tree of desire a fortunate family, the support of the sages, a home of happiness !

(Verse 16)—A crest-jewel to this worshipful family, a son to the lotuses (that are) godly men, a prophylactic gem to the company of sages, a wishing-gem to the needy, flourished Udaya.

(Verse 17)—Possessing a multitude of delightful merits, a residence of Fortune, observing agreeable religious duties,¹ Bicha, a lotus of men, blossomed forth from the stainless lake (that was) Udaya.

(Verse 18)—Bichaṇa, a treasure of distinguished fortune, flourished as a family-house of virtue, a resort for sport of good deeds, a birth-mansion of Fortune, a darbar-court for merit, a place for Sarasvatī to practise the arts, an abode where walked the company of religious duties, a house for the fostering of stainless conduct.

(Verse 19)—To Bicha, whose speech was extolled by worthy poets, were (born) sons like eyes of the spirit of the Lord Jina's doctrine, active for the good of their own souls, (namely) Permaṇa and Appaṇa.

(Verse 20)—Known as being devoted to the blessed feet of the Lord Jina which remove guilt, (and) as passing the days in bestowing largesse upon crowds of worthy recipients, Permaṇa was a home for this greatness.

(Verse 21)—As when there is seen constant blossoming of lotus-flowers on the lotus-plant, (as when there are) lotus-plants in the lotus-lake, lotus-lakes in the woods of a park, (or) a pleasure full of fruit in a town, so flourished in the realm of the world-supreme king Karta-vīrya [IV] the Chief Scribe Appa, adorned with goodly qualities, while the universe congratulated itself.

(Verse 22)—(His) faultless speech (was) instructive to the famous Goddess of Speech ; (his) bounty (was that) of the multitude of the celestial trees ; extremely admirable (was his) worship of the lotuses of the Jain succession² ; (he was) a brilliant expounder of scriptural lore splendid as a flag of Indra³ :—in these respects what godly men on this earth are peers of the Scribe Appaṇa, blameless of policy ?

(Verse 23)—Of Appaṇa, known as a residence of unwavering virtues (and) a Brahman of men of skill, the beloved wife, who walked gracefully in the ground of most abundant discretion, was known by the name of Vāgdēvi.

(Verse 24)—To the excellent Vāgdēvi and the lord Appaṇa were (born) sons, as if the trinity of most brilliant gems illuminating the blessed Lord Jina's course, through the previously acquired merit of godly men had verily become incarnate, (namely) Bicha lord of most constant Fortune, Vaija, and Baladēva, delighting the virtuous.

(Verse 25)—As in them were seen bounty to famous and exalted recipients, practice of the virtues of pious observances, construction of dwellings for the good Jinās, (and) a course of policy for the advancement of their sovereign's kingdom, two (of them) obtained distinction on the earth and became glorious : Nimbha, the general of the army of Gaṇḍarāditya, and this Bichirāja, a crown of the ministers of king Kārtavīrya IV, that coral-tree among leaders of the hosts of sons of valour.

² That is, the Jinās and their apostolic successors.

³ Cf. J. J. Meyer, Hindu Tales, p. 143 : " Then amid loud and auspicious cries of joy the standard of Indra was raised, flagged with white banners, adorned with a great multitude of rattles and little bells, covered with suspended beautiful wreaths and garlands, decorated with a string of jewels, decked with a pendant mass of various fruits. Then the nautch girls danced, poetic compositions written by good poets were sung, the multitude of men danced, juggler's tricks that bewildered the eyes were seen, and betel and other things were given to the juggler ; a great deal of camphor, saffron, and water was thrown, great gifts were given, drums and other instruments were sounded " (translated from the story of Dōmūha in Jacobi's Ausgewählte Erzählungen in Māhārāṣṭri). On the legend see Mahābhārata, I. 63.

(Verse 26)—Owing to (his) attraction of worthy men, control over those whom he loved, fascinating influence over friends, extirpation of the wicked, maintenance of the dignity of all other ministers, (and) hatred of all evil designs, Bichana with these elements of policy prospered, renowned for fortune, as counsellor of Kārtavīrya, who was a treasure of the Goddess of Victory.

(Verse 27)—For Jains to bestow their regard upon another's wife is improper : Bioha, going even beyond Jains in his behaviour towards his fellow-creatures, brought and gave to his lord the Goddess of Victory (formerly belonging) to hostile monarchs' arms.

(Verse 28)—Delightful to the heart, this Vaijana, the younger brother of Bioha the site of qualities of all prosperity, was on earth in his single person a Dharma's son [Yudhisṭhira] in dignity, a Love-god in beauty, a son of the Lotus's Friend [Karna] in bounty, an Indra in Jain worship and anointment, a Bṛihaspati in policy, a Rāghava in the exalted sport of war.

(Verse 29)—In swelling the ocean of the famous Jinās' lore, in bringing about the rise of the lotuses of his own kindred, in effecting the desires of sages' minds, a moon without spot, a sun without scorching action, a celestial tree without its insensibility : distinguished on earth was Baladēva, son of Appa.

(Lines 37-38)—Hail ! When the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Kārtavīrya-dēva [IV], possessor of the pañcha-mahātubdā,¹ in company with (his) younger brother the Heir-Apparent Prince Vīra Mallikarjuna-dēva was enjoying the delights of empire in the camp of Vēṇugrāma,—

(Lines 38-40)—for the purposes of the regular worship, anointment, and other religious offices of the divine Śāntinātha of the Raṭṭa temple of the Jinās, which had been constructed by Bichirāja, the Chief Scribe and head of all the ministers,—

(Lines 40-41)—he granted to Śubhachandra-bhaṭṭāraka-dēva, the teacher at that temple of the Jinās, at the time of the saṃkramaṇa on Saturday, the second day of the bright fortnight of Pūṣya of the cyclic year Raktākṣi, the 1127th (year) of the Śaka era, in company with the four thousand burgesses, with pouring of water, (an estate on tenure of) sthāḍa-vṛtti in Vēṇugrāma.

(Lines 41-42)—On the west from the ditch of the *baje*² on the southern side thereof, in the twenty-fourth *hatti*³ of the koḍa-gey,⁴ (he granted) five mattar, together with an *irisi*⁵ structure ;

(Lines 42-45)—In the aforesaid Vēṇugrāma, in the western course of the great eastern street, on the north of the house of Duggiyara Tikana, one house ; in the western course of the western street, one house ; in the western town-gate, one house ; in front of the white-plastered building of the god Kapilēśvara, on the east of the Sāla-basadi (temple), three houses ; on the north of the road going to the Āneya-Kere [the Elephant's Tank], a flower-garden (comprising) two mattar (and) two hundred and seventy-six kamma according to the rood of the aforesaid Vēṇugrāma ; on the west of the great tank on the west of Āṭur of Kaṇamburige,⁶ twelve mattar of arable land ; in the street on the south of the western market, one house, five cubits in width and twenty-one cubits in length.

⁵ Explained in Kittel's Dictionary as "a pitfall to catch tigers, elephants, etc."

⁶ [This is very likely the large tank on the north of the Fort at Belgaum, along the east side of which goes the road to Kapbargi.—J. F. F.]

(Lines 45-49)—Furthermore: Hail! All the Mummuri-danḍas of the place of Vēṇugrāma and the Mummuri-danḍas of both (classes of) itinerant traders, comprising the merchants (paṭṭa-niga) of the Kūṇḍi three-thousand and others, with Samaya-chakravartti Jayapati Setṭi at their head, who are adorned with a series of many virtues, endowed with veracity, purity of conduct, policy, and courtesy, kindly to dependents, maintaining the religion of strict Bapañj according to the courses (enjoined) by the books of the lay-disciples instructed by the saints of the Jina established in the town of Maghapattī, performing meritorious works, receiving the grace of boons from the goddess Padmāvati,¹ causing delight to all folk, highly reputed for just acquisition (of wealth) and practice of trade, carrying in their hands bhallumki staffs;—

(Lines 49-51)—and all the traders of Laḷa,² headed by Paraśurāma Nāyaka, Pommaṇa Nāyaka, and Ammugi Nāyaka; and all the Maleyāla traders, headed by Paḍapa Nāyaka, Koṇḍa Nambi Setṭi, Poṇeyacha Setṭi, and others; and likewise the other traders of the aforesaid place of Vēṇugrāma, headed by the gold-workers and clothiers; and the oil-merchants; and the dimka-sāligas: all these in assembly granted to the sanctuary of the aforesaid divine Śāntinātha a revenue in the following form:—

(Lines 51-52)—On each horse coming from the north, a nelameṭṭu (?) of one quarter (of a paṇa); on one that passes on the south, a toll of one quarter (of a paṇa); on each horse of the Maleyālas, one quarter (of a paṇa); in the case of sixty-five oxen and buffaloes, however they be laden, (there is to be) immunity from all imposts;—

(Lines 52-53)—On each chira of gold-works, on each clothier's shop, cotton-shop, jeweller's shop, perfumery-shop, perfumers' bazaar, (and) goldsmith's booth, one large quarter (of a paṇa) as annual tax under each separate head.

(Lines 53-54)—On each kaḍage of cloth coming from without, one-sixteenth (of a paṇa); on each (parcel of) perfumery coming from without, and on each bhaṇḍa of grass, one gadyāṇa and five tūka on that bhaṇḍa; on each bhaṇḍi of cotton, three tāra; on each load thereof, one *kāṇi*³;—

(Lines 54-55)—On each bhaṇḍi of paddy, one baḷla of paddy; on each load thereof, one māna of paddy; when paddy (to the extent) of an anikaṇa is sold, one baḷla of that paddy; on each bazaar of paddy-shops, a regular sollage of paddy; on each shop for husked rice, an adda of husked rice;—

(Lines 55-56)—On each load of black pepper, one māna of black pepper; on each half-load thereof, a half of a māna; on each peṭṭige of asafoetida, one gadyāṇa and six tūka (on the value of) the asafoetida; on each half-load of green ginger and turmeric, five pala of the bhaṇḍa thereof; on each load thereof, ten pala of green ginger and turmeric; on each oil-mill, a regular adda of oil; on each load of areca-nuts, twenty-five areca-nuts; on each half-load thereof, twelve areca-nuts;—

(Lines 56-59)—On each load of betel-leaves, one hundred betel-leaves; on each parcel, fifty betel-leaves; on each load of cocoanuts, one such fruit; on each load of palm-leaves, two bundles of palm-leaves; on each parcel thereof, one bundle; on each bhaṇḍi of coarse sugar coming from without, fifteen blocks of coarse sugar; on each parcel thereof, one block; on each load of plantains, six such fruits; on each parcel thereof, three fruits; on each load of myrobolans, one baḷla of such fruit; on each hagara of sugarcane, one cane; on each load of potstone, one pala of potstone.

(Line 59)—Likewise, to the aforesaid sanctuary of the divine Śāntinātha were given by king Kartavirya [IV] bazaars, four, on the east of the high-road at the western end of the northern course of the north street.

³ The kāṇi is $\frac{1}{16}$ (here of the paṇa, in modern times of the rupee); the tāra is worth $\frac{1}{4}$ of an anna, so 3 tāra are double of 1 kāṇi; hence the load (hēru) in this case is half the bhaṇḍi.

(Lines 60-61)—Sagara and many other kings have made grants of lands; whosoever has at any time the soil has at the same time the fruit thereof. The slayer of a cow or of a Brāhman may perchance find atonement in the Ganges and other holy places; but in the case of appropriation of the possessions of gods and Brāhmanas there can be no (atonement) for men.

(Lines 61-62)—Whilst the whole earth joyously utters abundant praise, long may the sequence of the extensive empire of the blessed Kārtavīrya, constant in success, continue its course; the pious foundation of the dwelling of the famed stainless Śāntinātha by the world-renowned fortunate Bīchirāja has been well told with great clearness by the Kavi-Kandarpa whose verses possess goodly ornaments of style and lucid meaning.

(Lines 62-63)—Free from faults, remarkable for significance is this decree which the Kavi-Kandarpa, whose verses are equal to nectar, an emperor of the poets of the four tongues, has joyfully related. (This is) the decree related by Bālachandra-dēva, a swan in the lotus-wood of everlasting literature that has risen from tasting the nectar of the utterances of the blessed Mādhavachandra, emperor of masters of the triple lore.

B.—OF THE SAME TIME AND DATE.

This inscription is engraved on a massive stone tablet, having a total height of about 4 feet 7½ inches and a total width of about 4 feet. The greater part of the stone is occupied by the inscription, which is incised on a sunken surface of a width varying between 2 feet 11 inches and 3 feet, enclosed between two outstanding perpendicular borders, carved into bands of varying width, of a maximum breadth of 5½". This area is surmounted by a plain cornice, 2½" high, containing the prelude (line 1) of the inscription; and above this is the top of the stone, carved in the shape of a dome in tiers. Over the centre of the cornice is a small medallion containing the figure of a squatting Jina. The surface of the stone is damaged here and there: but the inscription is mostly in a state of good preservation, and seems to be readable all through without any substantial doubt.

The character is in every respect very similar to that of the previous record, the only difference being that the special forms for m and v are extremely common. The peculiar y, on the other hand, is found only in odayadol, l. 6. The initial ri occurs in rit-ōkti (l. 24): and there is a subscript ri by mistake for ri in the name Hadrigumti (ll. 50-51). The upadhmāniya sign is found in bhāvinaḥ-p°, l. 60; see above, vol. 12, p. 271.—The language is Kanarese, except for the prelude (verse 1) and the two standing verses on ll. 59-61, which are Sanskrit. The metrical Kanarese portions (ll. 2-31, 56-59, 61 f.) are in the old dialect; the prose is medieval. In the metrical parts the vocabulary is normal, the only rare word being sella (l. 15); but the prose portion contains a number of obscure words, chiefly relating to agriculture, which are not to be found in any dictionary.—The orthography is medieval: the archaic ḷ only occurs once, and then it is a mistake for ḷ, viz. in Bharatadol, l. 3. In Appaya, l. 52, for Appaya, we find the frequent change for a to e before y.

In subject this inscription is closely connected with the preceding document, as it records a grant of certain lands to the same temple and the same trustees by the same prince. In verses 3-13 it narrates the pedigree of the Raṭṭa rulers from Sēna II to Kārtavīrya IV, and in verses 14-22 it descants on the merits of the family of Udaya down to Bīchana, but adds nothing to the information gained from the other inscription. Verses 22-25 extol the Jain doctors Maladhāridēva, Nēmichandra, and Śubhachandra. Then follows the formal grant of the village of Umbaravāṇi, in the Koravaḷḷi kampana of the Kūṇḍi three-thousand province, in sarva-namasya tenure, with specification of boundaries, and a record of certain lands given on sthala-vṛitti tenure, all for the benefit of the Raṭṭa-Jinālaya Jain sanctuary in Belgaum (ll. 31-56). Then come two Kanarese verses (ll. 56-59), two Sanskrit stanzas (ll. 59-61), and a metrical Kanarese epilogue (ll. 61-62).

The date of this inscription (l. 35) is exactly the same with that of the preceding record A: its details answer to Saturday, 25 December, A.D. 1204; see p. 18 above.

The places mentioned are fairly numerous. Regarding the Kūṇḍi three-thousand province (l. 36) see p. 18 above. The Koravaḷli kampaṇa, a division of that province (l. 36), has already been localized by a record of A.D. 1208 (Ind. Ant., vol. 19, p. 245), which places in it a village Bhōyija which is the modern Bhōj, about twelve miles towards north-west from Chikōḍi, which latter place, the head-quarters of the Chikōḍi tāluka of the Belgaum District, is shown in the Indian Atlas quarter-sheet 41, N. W. (1905), in lat. 16° 25', long. 74° 38'.¹ Koravaḷli itself, however, which gave its name to the kampaṇa, remains to be identified; but it is not impossible that Koravaḷli may have been the ancient name of Chikōḍi itself.² With that guide we easily identify Umbaravāṇi, which was in the Koravaḷli kampaṇa (l. 36), with Umrāṇi, a village, shown in the same map, about three miles towards south-east from Chikōḍi, and sixteen miles from Bhōj. Among the places mentioned in the specification of the boundaries of Umbaravāṇi, Belgōḍu (l. 40) is certainly the "Belkud" of the quarter-sheet 41, N. E. (1903),—the "Belkoo" of the full sheet 41 of 1852,—three miles south-east from Umrāṇi; Bammaṇavāḍa (l. 40) is, no doubt, "Bombalvad" of the map 41, N. W., two and a half miles south of Umrāṇi; and Karavase (ll. 41, 42) must be the "Kharosi" of the same map,—the "Karooshee" of the old sheet 41,—four miles towards west-south-west from Umrāṇi. Of the other places, Karbūr (l. 45) is Kabbūr, eleven miles towards south-east-by-east from Chikōḍi, and Hīṅgalaje (l. 48) seems to be Nā-Hīṅglaj, seven miles towards west-south-west from Chikōḍi.³ The other local places cannot be found: they were of course in the Kūṇḍi three-thousand, but not necessarily in the Koravaḷli kampaṇa. Hanasōga (l. 35) is Hanasōge in the Yeḍatore tāluka of the Mysore District: see p. 17 above.

¹ Bhōj is in the quarter-sheet 40, S. W. (1903) in lat. 16° 32', long. 74° 30'.

TRANSLATION.

(Verses 1 and 2 are the same as in the preceding inscription.)

(Verse 3)—In the Bharata (division) of Jambūdvīpa the Kūṇḍi province, a choice creation of the Lotus-born [Brahman], fascinates the mind, an abode where are displayed fruits of abundant good deeds of the eyes of all folk.

³ Here follows on the stone the chakra symbol.

⁸ Here follow on the stone two spiral symbols surrounded by rays.

¹¹ Metre: Mattābhavikṛīḍita.

(Verse 4)—A royal swan in the lotus-forest which is the blessed lineage of the Rāshtrakūṭas, a treasure of abounding glory, Sēna [II], beloved of the Earth, who represented two stainless pakshas,¹ ruled it.

(Verse 5)—The moon was (entitled) rāja ["king" or "moon"], bestowing (upon Sēna) with reverence and affection his own younger sister Fortune. Who, with that king Sēna, could be wrathful, and (still) be styled rāja?²

(Verse 6)—On the eastern mountain (viz.) this excellent king Sēna, who possessed constancy and exaltation, there arose the sun that was Kārtavīrya [III], a treasure of brilliant lustre, delightful to lotuses.³

(Verse 7)—The line of reflected images of bending foemen on Kārtavīrya's toe-nails, (one after another) constantly driving out predecessors who had taken refuge at his feet, clung, as it were, in desire to take counsel with him.

(Verse 8)—Establishing order, endowed with stainless virtues, Padmaladēvi, beloved of Kārtavīrya the lord of Earth, in her turn appeared like a second science of polity, causing high success in the triple domain.⁴

(Verse 9)—King Lakshma [Lakshmidēva I], extolled for a multitude of all merits, was born as son to the lord Kārtavīrya, praised of the people, and to his good wife Padmaladēvi, as was born Jayanta to the Lord of Celestials and to Śachi, as the Peacock-rider [Kārttikēya] to Abhava and to the Mountain's Daughter, as Kāma to Hari and (the goddess) named Rāmā.

(Verse 10)—By his form, which infatuated the damsels, by his virtue, which caused the exaltation of the wise,⁵ by his splendour, which aroused an expansion (of delight) in the earth, the lord Lakshmidēva, a tree of desire to the multitude of poets, so appeared to the eyes of the folk that they said: "Say in truth, is he Kāma, or the Spring-god, or the Moon?"

(Verse 11)—The good wife of king Lakshma was Chandradēvi, daughter of a monarch who conquered hostile monarchs, overcoming the pride of mighty serpents,⁶ praised by all people for her noble conduct on the earth.

(Verse 12)—Of this pair the sons were the princes the valiant Kārtavīrya [IV] and Mallikārjuna, (respectively) king and heir-apparent of the Fortune of their natal empire, intensely glorious.

(Verse 13)—As all the folk applaud (him) while he displays sport (consisting in) wounding foemen's breasts,⁷ love for the Spirit of Victory, a course (enjoined) by Manu associated with the triple domain,⁸ a nature whereby he captured foemen's fastnesses (and) held politic converse, glorious was this Kārtavīrya, goodly of form, surpassing Dilipa, conquering hostile kings, intense in valour, flower of knighthood, equal in bounty to the Tree of the Gods.

² The verse implies that Sēna was good only to those who submitted to him and paid tribute, but deposed kings who were ill-disposed towards him.

⁴ Namely, dharma, artha, and kāma, religion, wealth, and love.

⁶ Because she was fairer than any Nāga woman; see Kittel, s.v. ghaṭa-sarpa. For another view see Ind. Ant., vol. 19, p. 248.

⁷ This translation is given with some reserve. Sellam does not appear in the dictionary; I assume that it means the same as sejls, and perhaps may be derived from salva. Cf. Dr. Fleet's remarks in Ind. Ant., vol. 32, p. 226.

⁸ Namely, dharma, artha, and kāma.

(Verse 14)—Styled a moon raising up the ocean of his blest lineage, the lord Udaya's son, a treasure of magnificent fame, was Bicha, celebrated over the earth, displaying courteous [or "moon-like"] conduct.

(Verse 15 is identical with verse 19 of the preceding inscription, introducing Permana and Appana, sons of Bicha.)

(Verse 16)—To him and to Brahman (pertained) exalted skill ; to him and to the Ocean profundity ; to him and to Karṇa, bounteousness ; to him and to Mēru, verily high position ; to him and to the Moon, love of the earth ; to him and to Vārishōṇa,¹ delight in the Jinas' doctrine : in these words how constantly did the company of the righteous joyfully extol Appa as a virtuous man !

(Verse 17)—The Chief Scribe Appa's wife, endowed with brilliant conduct, full of elegance, renowned, having a form of choice hue, bore the fitting name of Vāgdēvi.

(Verse 18)—As to Pāṇḍu, prince of vast fortune, and to the illustrious queen Kuntī were born the famous sons Dharma's son [Yudhisṭhira], Bhīma, and Arjuna, so to king Kārtavīrya's scribe Appana and to the distinguished Vāgdēvi (were born) the lords Bicha, Vaija, and Baladēva, treasures of choice prowess, conquerors of foes.

(Verse 19)—Bicha, the unique crest-jewel of king Kārtavīrya's ministers, acted on earth (in such a manner) that in his splendid career model courtesy was verily an ornament to peerless learning, abundance of brilliant bounty (an ornament) to fortune, stainless conduct (an ornament) to youth, widespread fame (an ornament) to age, truthful speech (an ornament) to eloquence.

(Verse 20)—" This is indeed the mass of radiance of the goodly merit of the scribe Appana's eldest son !—this is a ray of the smiling glance of the Fortune of the Raṭṭa king's minister !—this indeed is verily the risen tide of the waves of the Milk-Ocean (that is) the grace of the emperor of godly men !"—thus described, Bichirāja's fame spread abroad through the triple world.

(Verse 21)—To his renowned lord in times of consideration vision of the lore of statecraft, on the field of stern battle a keen missile of victory, in time of sport a minister of amusement,² was Vaija.

(Verse 22)—The damsels and the troops of bards, who gazed upon him and begged with eagerness (respectively) eyed not and begged not of any other : so comely (and) unsurpassed in bounty was Baladēva.

(Verse 23)—In the lineage of teachers of the blest king Kārtavīrya's chief scribe Bichana flourished the great sage Maladhāridēva, sublime of righteousness and intelligence.

(Verse 24)—This pre-eminent sage's disciple, worshipped by lords of earth, an ornament on the face of the goddess of the most pure Doctrine, famed for extraordinary virtues, was the illustrious prince of sages Nēmichandra.

(Verse 25)—As a treasure of peerless austerities, one whose feet were caressed by coronets of troops of monarchs, did the earth with huge delight extol the lord Śubhachandra-dēva-bhaṭṭāraka.

(Lines 31-33)—Hail ! While the Mahīmaṇḍalāśvara Kārtavīrya-dēva [IV], possessor of the pañcha-mahāśabda,³ in company with (his) younger brother the Heir-Apparent Prince Vira Mallikārjuna-dēva, was enjoying the delights of empire in the camp at Vēṇugrāma,—

Ellis quotes the traditional verse enumerating the eight bhōgas, soil. nidhi-nikṣhēpa-pāshāṇam siddha-sādhyā-jal-ānvitam akṣhiṇy-āgāmi-samyuktam aṣṭa-bhōga-samanvitam. Ellis explains these as : (1) nidhi, treasure trove, (2) ni-kṣhēpa, property deposited in the land and not claimed by another, (3) pāshāṇa, mines, etc., (4) siddha, lands, etc., yielding produce, (5) sādhyā, produce from such lands, etc., (6) waters, (7) privileges actually enjoyed, (8) privileges which may be conferred. Burnell, South Indian Palaeography, p. 118n., renders siddha as "improvements actually made" and sādhyā as "improvements which can be made." See also Kittel, siv.

³ The meaning of this term, which literally denotes "three heaps," is uncertain. Perhaps it is the same as the Telugu muggaḍa, the junction of the boundaries of two or more villages (for examples of which see C. P. Brown's Three Treatises on Mirasi Right, p. 32, in a spurious but fairly old grant).—[I have been inclined for some time to think that this term is equivalent to the tri-samdhā of some other records, and means the point at which the lands of three villages met, in this case of Umbaravāṇi, Mūlavalli and Belgōḍu.—J. (Lines 58-59)—The wicked man who through greed shall transgress in any degree the order of this decree, following an improper course, being a vessel of guilt, malice, (and) evil, shall be short-lived, overwhelmed with disease; his own lands shall be taken away by foes; feeble, suffering intense pain, he shall for ever be born to torture in the seven hells.

(Lines 59-61)—This general principle of pious foundations of kings is to be maintained by you age after age: again and again Rāmachandra makes this entreaty to all those future sovereigns. He who should appropriate land, whether granted by himself or granted by others, is born as a worm in dung for sixty thousand years.

¹ "Land either liable to a trifling quit-rent, or altogether exempt from tax": Kittel, s.v. mānya. In the Tamil country "Sēva-mānyam signifies land entirely free, of which both the Mēl-vāram, the Government share, and the Cudi-vāram, the Inhabitant's share, is enjoyed by the holder of the Mānyam; this tenure can only be lawfully created by the joint act of the Prince and the people; Arḍha-mānyam is land half free, of which the holder enjoys only the Mēl-vāram, it is created by the Prince only" (F. W. Ellis in C. P. Brown's Three Treatises on Mirasi Right, p. 24, n. 13). It would seem that the namasya tenure applied to holdings of Brāhman (cf. the salutation namaskāra appropriate to Brāhman), and by analogy to other holdings in religious endowments, while the mānya tenure was granted to secular persons or for secular purposes; but this distinction does not always hold good in the Tamil Country.

³ A kind of rent-free holding.

(Lines 61-62)—Say, the blest Bichirāja, minister of Kartavīrya [IV] the slayer of a multitude of foes, is exalted in glory ; therefore Bālachandra, a Kavi-Kaudarpa, a sovereign of sages, appreciating merit, has thus rightly declared the decree, so that it conveys an abundance of ornaments of clear words and ideas approved by the learned.

No. 4.—INSCRIPTIONS AT ITTAGI.

By LIONEL D. BARNETT.

The village of Ittagi lies in the south-west corner of the Nizam's territory, about twenty miles to the east of Gadag in the Dhārwar District, Bombay, and some four miles north of the Bannikop station on the Southern Marāṭhā Railway. It is shown as "Ittugi" in the Indian Atlas sheet 58 (1827 and 1893), in lat. $15^{\circ} 27'$, long. $76^{\circ} 1'$. With only the slight difference of the earlier final e, its name is given as Ittāge in the inscriptions, in A, verses 34, 40, 41, 61, and B, line 91 : and it is described in A, verse 34 and line 75, as a mahā-agrahāra or "great assignment to Brāhmaṇas" ; in A, line 70, as simply an agrahāra ; and in B, line 91, as an anādi-agrahāra, "an agrahāra so ancient as never to have had a beginning." The record A further places it (verse 34) in the Beḷvala, i.e. Beḷvola, country, and in the group of villages known as the Nareyamgal twelve (see p. 40 below).

This village has a large temple of Mahādēva (Śiva), the building of which, in or shortly before A.D. 1112, is narrated in the first of the two inscriptions published herewith. This temple, which is in the Chālukyan style of architecture, measures at its extreme points about 120 feet in length and 60 feet in breadth ; and in the massiveness of its construction and the richness of its decoration it fully deserves some of the praises lavished on it in the inscription A, including a mention of it in verse 67 as dēvalaya-chakravartti, "a very emperor among temples." A full description of it, with illustrations, from which its merits can be properly appreciated, will be found in Mr. Cousens' forthcoming volume on "The Chālukyan Architecture of the Kanarese Districts."¹ Fergusson said of it that it "must be regarded as one of the most highly finished and architecturally perfect of the Chalukyan shrines that have come down to us. In the opinion of the late Meadows Taylor, the principal temple is perhaps superior in decorative art even to the Gadag temples. In it 'the carving of some of the pillars and of the lintels and architraves of the doors is quite beyond description. No chased work in silver or gold could possibly be finer.'"²

On the south of the above-mentioned temple there is a smaller temple of the same class of architecture but not of such elaborate work, which is perhaps the temple of Mūrtti-Nārāyaṇa (Vishṇu) that is mentioned in verse 68 of the inscription A. And on the verandah of this temple there recently stood—and, it is presumed, still stands—a detached stone tablet bearing a long record consisting of the two inscriptions which I edit here from ink-impressions received from Mr. Cousens in 1914, and placed at my disposal by Dr. Fleet. A transcription of these two records, in many places very inaccurate,³ is given in Sir Walter Elliot's MS. Collection of South-Indian Inscriptions, in vol. 1, pp. 319 b to 327 a, of the Royal Asiatic Society's copy ; and from the titling of the transcription the temple at which the tablet stands seems to be now known as Mādēśa-Niṅgana guḍi, "the temple of Mādēśa-Niṅga." It is not clear why the record should be at the minor temple rather than in the sanctuary of Mahādēva, to which it properly belongs : possibly, however, the tablet was not built into any structural part of the great temple, but was set up in some place, perhaps the courtyard, in which it would be more visible to the public, and was removed eventually to its present position in order that it should be better preserved.

At the top of the tablet there are sculptures, which, according to the Elliot MS. Collection, are as follows : in the centre, a linga (presumably on an abhishēka-stand, as usual) ; on the left, two standing figures and a cow and calf, with the sun above them ; and on the right, another standing figure and the bull Nandi, with the moon over them.

The tablet bears 95 lines of writing, mostly in a state of excellent preservation, of which lines 1 and 2 cover an area of about 4' 4" in width and 1½" in height, and the rest an area of about 4' 2" in width and 5' 4" in height. It includes, as has been said, two inscriptions : the first of them ends about half-way through line 89 ; and the second begins immediately after it. I mark the two records A and B. I am indebted to Mr. H. Krishna Sastri for some valuable suggestions in dealing with some of the verses in the first of them.

A.—OF THE TIME OF VIKRAMADITYA VI : A.D. 1112.

The characters of this record are upright and finely formed Kanarese, of the time to which the record refers itself, averaging from $\frac{1}{16}$ " to $\frac{1}{8}$ " in height.—The language is Kanarese, with the exception of the two opening stanzas and the stock verses, beginning on line 86, which conclude it, which are Sanskrit. After its opening namaskāras (lines 1, 2), the inscription is in verse as far as line 69 ; as usual, this metrical portion is in the ancient dialect. The remainder (excluding the Sanskrit comminatory verses on lines 86-89), is in the mediæval dialect.—As regards vocabulary, we may note first that in line 41 we have the surname Chaurēra, which apparently means "possessing four images."¹ Other words to be noticed are : lāvaṇa, l. 50 (explained by Kittel as "a list of soldiers or of public servants," but here used in a sense not unlike that of lāvaṇi, "mass," "collection") ; pāvuḷa, ll. 70, 77 f. (see vol. 12 above, p. 270) ; āṭakūṭa, l. 70 ("theatrical performances" ?) ; ghaṭiyīra, l. 77 ("clock" or "gong" ; in Kittel gaḍiyāra, gaḍiyāla, gaḍiyāla) ; vasuge, ll. 78, 80-82 ; takkilu, l. 81 ; vīśaka, l. 82 ; khaṇḍika, ll. 82 f.—The orthography presents several features of interest. The sonne is omitted at the end of verses 3, 5, 8, 9, 11-18, 20-23, 25, 28, 33-35, 37, 39, 46, 48-53, 55, 60-62, 68, 70, 72 and 74. Intervocalic l in Sanskrit words usually, but not always, is changed to ḷ. There is considerable confusion between ḷ, ḷ and r. The ḷ appears as r in erevar, l. 7 ; ārddar, l. 11 ; nōrppaḍa, l. 14, and nōrppaḍam, l. 38 ; erpatt-, l. 15 ; negardd-, ll. 23, 31, and negardda, ll. 44, 55 ; irḷdu, l. 26, with irḷda, l. 38, and irḷdudu, l. 60² ; torttu, l. 30 ; negartteya, ll. 31, 38 ; arkkisaal, l. 36 ; negarḷda, l. 46 ; vērkkuv, l. 63 ; pogartte, l. 68, beside such regular forms as e.g. negaḷda, l. 25. The ḷ appears as ḷ in prabaḷa, l. 10 ; āḷdan, ll. 9, 23 ; āḷḷ-, ll. 10, 16 ; tāḷḷi, l. 21 ; goḷvudu, l. 32 ; on the other hand, ḷ is changed to ḷ in iḷsidam, l. 28 ; iḷida, l. 37 ; iḷipe, l. 66 ; negaḷalu, l. 68 ; baḷiya, l. 70 ; on this confusion see Kittel's Grammar, paragraphs 32, 236. Several times, even in the metrical parts of the first inscription, final m before initial vowels is changed to v. The sound ay is sometimes changed to ey : thus vaḷeya, l. 38 ; Pōṭeya, l. 41 ; taneyam, l. 42 f. ; Basaveya, l. 42 ; udeyam, l. 52, and udey°, l. 58 ; abhyudeya, l. 59 ; sameya, l. 75. The spelling putrikeyer, l. 58, is probably due to a similar phonetic cause. The upadhmanīya sound is represented once only, and here with the character for r, viz. payas-pāra (l. 44); on this, which is perhaps a merely graphic feature, see above, vol. 12, p. 271. Lastly, we may note that the prose parts of both documents shew fluctuation in the use of initial p and its derivative h: thus we find here paḍuvalu, l. 80, poṁ and ponna, l. 83, and pana, l. 83, by the side of hōda, l. 77, hola°, l. 77, haḍuval, l. 78, haḷḷa, l. 78, hattu, l. 78, hanneradu, l. 83.

The inscription begins with salutations to Śiva and other deities, and verses in praise of Śiva, Viṣṇu, and Brahman. It then gives some Purāṇic genealogical and other matter,¹ by way of an introduction to the real pedigree of the Western Chālukyas, one of whom, Vikramāditya VI, was reigning when it was written.

It deals first with the race of Manu (verses 6-14), because the Chālukyas were affiliated to the Mānavya Gōtra. The son of the god Brahman was Manu Svāyambhuva; his son was Priyavrata; his seven sons were Agnidhra, Mōdhātithi, Vapushmat, Jyōtishmat, Dyutimat, Havyana, and Savana, who reigned over the seven dvīpas or concentric islands of the Hindū cosmos. Agnidhra was succeeded by his son Nābhi. Then follows a geography, also in the Purāṇic vein,² after which our poet goes back to his genealogy, telling us that Nābhi's eldest son was Rishabha, and the son of the latter was Bharata, the eponym of the land known as the Bhārata-varsha. The author then makes a passing mention of the "emperor Vikrama" (verse 15), that is, Vikramāditya VI, who, he tells us, was an ornament of the Chālukya race, a scion of the race of Manu, and a very Viṣṇuvardhana, "an increaser of Viṣṇu," with allusion, no doubt, to the fact that the Chālukyas had Viṣṇu as their family god, and the boar, typifying one of his incarnations, as their crest.

The inscription then introduces the Solar Race (prose after verse 15). We are told first that the Manus Svāyambhuva, Svārōchisha, Auttami, Tāmasa, Raivata, and Chākshusha had each in succession ruled the earth for seventy-one cycles of the four ages: this means that six manvantaras or patriarchates have elapsed in the current kalpa or æon.³ There is then introduced the seventh Manu, Vaivasvata, who presides over the manvantara in which we are now: he was a son of Vivasvata, i.e. Vivasvat, the Sun, who was a son of the Prajāpati Kāśyapa by Aditi, daughter of the Prajāpati Dakṣha, and to him there was born Ikshvāku, whose daughter was Ilā.

The Lunar Race, to which the Chālukyas really claimed to belong, by paternal descent, is introduced at this point (verse 16); the previous matter having been given with a view to adding glory to this race by showing an intermarriage of it with the Race of the Sun. The mind-born son of the god Brahman was the great sage Atri. His son, born from the pupil of his eye, was the Moon. The Moon's son was Budha, who had as his wife Ilā, the daughter of Ikshvāku, mentioned just above. And their son was Purūravas, "an increaser of the Lunar Race." Purūravas begat Hārīti Pañchāsikha (verse 17); this person, we may remark, was obviously invented because the early Chālukyas of Bādāmi were Hārīti-putras, descendants of an original ancestress of the Hārīta Gōtra.⁴ In descent from the sons of Hārīti there arose the Chālukya race (verse 18). In this race the record mentions first Satyāśraya (verse 21), meaning Pulakēśin II (A.D. 609-42), whom it styles, without any real foundation, "lord of Ayōdhya":⁵ in this connection the family was also known as the family of Satyāśraya. It then (verse 22) skips on to Taila II* (A.D. 973-96), the founder of the later Chālukya line. And it then enumerates Taila's successors (verse 23) down to the reigning king Vikramāditya VI (A.D. 1076-1126), who is eulogized copiously (verses 24-32), but without any mention of definite details.

³ About this matter see Dr. Fleet's paper on the Kaliyuga in Journ. R. As. Soc., 1911, p. 482.

The record then introduces an officer of Vikramāditya VI, the General Mahādēva, and proceeds to treat of his descent and pious works (verse 31 ff.). In the land of Bhārata-varsha there was the Belvala district (nāḍu). In this district there was a group of villages known as the Nareyaṅgal twelve. And in this group there was the great agrahāra Itṭage, in which there were four-hundred Brāhmaṇ householders (mahājanas). One of them was Pōtaya Chauvēra,¹ of the Ātrēya gōtra (verse 42), who begat Mādhavabhaṭṭa, who begat Basavaya, who begat Dēchirāja, who constructed a tank for his native town and begat by his wife Nijikabbe or Nijāmbike a son named Vāsudēva. Vāsudēva by Valajikabbe begat Nārāyaṇadēva, a very Mūrṭti-Nārāyaṇa or incarnation of the god Nārāyaṇa (Viṣṇu), who married Chandrikāmbike or Chandrikādēvi (vernacularly Chandalabbe). The offspring of this union was our hero Mahādēva (verse 56), who had three wives, Kaḷalādēvi, Mallikādēvi, and Pampalādēvi. In recognition of Itṭage being his birthplace (verse 61 ff.), Mahādēva built there the great temple of Śiva-Mahādēva which is the chief glory of the place. Then (verse 68), in memory of his father Nārāyaṇa, otherwise known as Mūrṭti-Nārāyaṇa, he constructed a temple of Viṣṇu under the name of Mūrṭti-Nārāyaṇa. And after that (verse 69), in memory of his mother Chandrikādēvi, Chandalabbo, he raised a sanctuary to the god Chandalōśvara, to which, with somewhat doubtful appropriateness, he added a residence of public women (sūḷeyar). And finally he crowned his labours by building a temple of his own tutelary deity Bhairava (verse 70) and a maṭha or monastery (verse 71), and making in the precincts of the temple of Mahādēva a tank named Dēvi-geṇe, "the Tank of the Goddess" (verse 73). This account of the General Mahādēva ends by naming in verses 74, 75, sixteen other places at which he did acts of piety which made him famous, including, it is said, even Vārāṇasi (Benares).

This brings us to the business part of the record, beginning in line 69; namely, the record of grants made to the temple of Mahādēva. We are told first that the king Vikramāditya VI himself gave to the temple an entire village named Benṇekallu : no date is given for this grant. The rest of the record (line 71 ff.) is occupied with the donations made on a certain day in the year Nandana, the thirty-seventh year of the reign of Vikramāditya VI, by the General Mahādēva. And from the opening of this passage we learn that Mahādēva, in addition to being a Daṇḍanāyaka, held also the offices of Mahāpradhāna or High Minister, Kannaḍa-Saṁdhivigrahi or Saṁdhivigrahi for the Kanarese country, and Mane-vergaḍe or Master of the Household, and also had the title of "a Mahāsāmantādhipati who possesses the pañcha-mahāśabda."² The donations were given by him in trust to the Four-hundred Mahājanas, headed by the Ūroḍe or village head-man, of Itṭage, which is styled here (line 75) a mahā-agrahāra.

The details of the date of this inscription (line 76) are : the cyclic year Nandana, being the thirty-seventh year of the Chālukya-Vikrama-varsha, that is, of the reign of Vikramāditya VI ; the full-moon of Bhādrapada ; Ādityavāra (Sunday) ; an eclipse of the moon. Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks :—"This Nandana saṁvatsara was the Śaka year 1034 expired, A.D. 1112-13. For this year the given tithi, the full-moon of Bhādrapada, answers as a true tithi to 7 September, A.D. 1112, on which day it ended at exactly 20 hours 13 minutes after mean sunrise (for Ujjain). But the day was a Saturday, whereas the record specifies a Sunday ; and the tithi as a true tithi cannot by any means be carried on to the Sunday. Accordingly, from this point of view the date is an irregular one. But the given tithi as a mean tithi ended at 2 hours 29 minutes after mean sunrise on the Sunday : and the date in this way may perhaps be accepted as working out satisfactorily. There was, however, no eclipse of the moon, either visible or invisible in India, at this full-moon, or, indeed, at any time in A.D. 1112. And, though a similar case of a mean tithi giving perhaps a satisfactory result has been found in the case of the Nidagundi inscription of A.D. 1107 (see page 13 above), much more evidence is wanted before we can accept mean tithis, even as occasional instances, in the face of the general indications that all the details of the Hindū calendar were determined by true time from long before the period to which this record belongs. In this case, all that we can really say is that the date may be either Saturday the 7th, or Sunday the 8th, September, A.D. 1112, but the date is an irregular one, at any rate in respect of the alleged eclipse. The passage also contains the term saṁkrānti: it says sōma-grahana-saṁkrānti-vyatiṭṭad-amdu. This term cannot have been used here in its ordinary meaning, namely, of the entrance of the sun into a sign of the zodiac, as the nearest such saṁkrāntis were Kanyā on 27 August and Tūlā on 26 September. It has perhaps been used here, in the simple meaning of 'a coming together,' to denote the beginning of the supposed eclipse, the first contact of the moon and the sun, for which the technical term is usually sparsa, 'touching.' The same expression sōma-grahana-saṁkrānti-vyatiṭṭad-amdu is found also in the inscription B, line 93."

Of the various places mentioned in this inscription, some can be identified, but others remain for further inquiry. We have to note first that the record locates Itṭage (verse 34) in the Nareyaṁgal twelve and the Belvala district (naḍu). The Belvala or properly Belvola district is well known as a three-hundred district, the chief town of which seems to have been Anṇigere, now known as Anṇigēri, in the Nawalgund tāluka of the Dhārwar District. And Nareyaṁgal, which gave its name to the Nareyaṁgal twelve, is Narēgal in the Rōp tāluka of Dhārwar, about twenty-six miles east-north-east from Anṇigēri and twelve miles towards the north-west from Itṭagi: there are inscriptions there, published in the Journ. Bombay Branch R. As. Soc., vol. 11, p. 219 ff. Kukkanūru, the chief town of a group of thirty villages (lines 70, 77), still exists under exactly the same name three miles north-by-east from Itṭagi; it, also, was in the Belvola three-hundred:¹ it has some unpublished inscriptions and several old temples.² Bennekallu, in the Kukkanūru thirty (line 71), is evidently the "Bennikul" of the Atlas sheet 58, five miles south-east from Kukkanūr and five and a half miles east of Itṭagi. And Talakallu (line 77) is the "Tallukulloo" of the same map, eight miles south-south-east from Kukkanūr. Among the places mentioned in verses 74, 75, as the localities where other pious acts were done by the General Mahādōva, Savasi (l. 67) is "Saunshi," i.e. Saunshi, which is shown in the Indian Atlas quarter-sheet 41, S. E. (1904), in lat. 15° 12', long. 75° 21': seven miles south-east from it is Gudigere, the "Gudgeri" of the map; these two places are mentioned as forming together "the Savasi- or Samasi-Gudigere agrahāra" in a Tālgund inscription of A.D. 997, and the record seems to mark this as one of "the eighteen agrahāras" which are mentioned in various inscriptions.³ Kundumgoḷa is, no doubt, Kundgōḷ, an outlying town of the Jamkhaṇḍi State about five miles north-west from Saunshi. Kundgōḷ and Saunshi are stations on the Southern Mahratta Railway on the Harihar side of Hubli. Vēḷugrāme is Belgaum, the chief town of the Belgaum District, Bombay. Vārāṇasi is of course Benares. Svāmi-Pampā-sthala is, no doubt, the well known Hampe, Hampi, the still inhabited part of the great city Vijayanagara in the Bellary District, Madras. Mōḍeganūr is mentioned in other records as a neḷevīḍu or standing camp of the Kaḷachurya kings Sōmēśvara, Saṅkama, and Āhavamalla¹: it cannot at present be traced, but should probably be found somewhere in the Nizam's territory. Lattalūr, the name of which is also found in inscriptions in the forms Lattanūr and Latalaura, is Lātūr, a town in the Bidar District of the Nizam's territory, shown in the Indian Atlas sheet 56 (1845) in lat. 18° 24', long. 76° 38': it is noteworthy as having been the original home of the ancestors of the Rāshṭrakūṭa kings of Mālkahēd (see vol. 7 above, p. 223 ff.). Veṇṇekal is very likely the Benṇekallu mentioned above.

TRANSLATION.

(Line 1) Ōm, Ōm ! Homage to Śiva ! Ōm ! Homage to the Lord Vāsudēva ! Ōm ! Homage to Brahman ! Homage to the blessed Gaṇapati, homage ! To the blessed Sarasvatī homage ! Ōm !

(Verse 1) Homage to Śambhu, beauteous with the yak-tail fan which is the moon kissing his lofty head, the foundation-column for the construction of the cities of the threefold world !

(Verse 2) Victorious is the Boar-form of Viṣṇu as it revealed itself stirring up the ocean, with the universe resting on the tip of its lofty right tusk.

To the blessed Śaṅkara homage, homage !

³ Metre : Vāsutatlukā.

(Verse 3) May he who is worshipped by Fortune's lord [Vishṇu] and Vāpi's lord [Brahman], who is the male actor in the play of that cunning dancing-girl the Primal Matter, the sole seat of lordship, fortune, and power adored by the three worlds that naturally arise by his will, to whom the Vēdas are known,¹ who is able to milk a crowd of celestial kine of good works, he whose diadem is the crescent moon, ever produce for this universe a growth of perfect happiness!

(Verse 4) The Beloved of Fortune [Vishṇu], worshipped by all, appeared like a lotus-pool, being a place for the play of the carp which are the lovely eyes of Lady Fortune, having abundant water suggested by the (blue) colour of his body, displaying a mass of filaments (consisting) of the rays from the Kaustubha (jewel), charming with the blue lotuses of his eyes and the golden lotus from his belly.

(Verse 5) There arose the great, supreme, pure Lotus-throned [Brahman], Sarasvatī's lover, the Virāṭ who is the great author of the Vēdas, engrossed in the creation of the series of the trinity Bhūr-Bhuvā-Svar, whose lotus-feet are worshipped by the entire world, the seat of the blessed event of whose birth was the golden lotus from the navel of Kamalā's Darling [Vishṇu].

(Verse 6) To this Self-born Being of the Lotus was born a son, Svāyambhuva Manu; his son was king Priyavrata; as his sons arose the monarchs Agnīdhra and others. To these latter Priyavrata, darling of the earth, noblest in the exalted knightly races, apportioned the seven continents.

(Verse 7) Jambūdvīpa, remarkable as having the Salt Ocean surrounding it, was the scene of the display of Agnīdhra's empire. The spacious Plaksha, encircled by (the Ocean of) Sugarcane, was protected by Mādhatithi perfect of excellence. Sālmali, which appears to the sight with the Ocean of Brandy surrounding it, was taken over by king Vapushmat of fiery prowess.

(Verse 8) Jyōtishmanta appropriated Kuśadvīpa, which is always encircled by the famous Ocean of Butter. Similarly Krauñcha, which in turn the (Ocean of) Whey encompasses, king Dyutimat, renowned in the circle of kings, appropriated. Of the Śāka continent, surrounded by a border (consisting) of the Ocean of Milk, the king was named Havyaṇa, vigorous in splendour.

(Verse 9) Savana, whose form was beloved of the goddesses of the fortunes of his prostrate foes, a full-moon from the ocean of Manu's race, sinless, vigorous, possessed the land of Pushkara, which is encircled by (the Ocean of) Sweet Water.

(Verse 10) After Agnīdhra and the other sons of Priyavrata the lord of all the continents by the gift of their father ruled the seven continents encircled by the seven oceans, displaying a supreme puissant splendour like that of the rays of the Lord of the Seven Steeds [the Sun-god], subsequently the noble sons of the world-renowned Agnīdhra, king Nābhi and others, ruled the earth.

(Verse 11) The realm of Nābhi (lay) to the south of the Himālaya mountains; south of Hēmakūṭa, lord of mountains, appears the Kimpurusha-varsha. In due order, the Hari-varsha lies to the south of the Nishadha mountains; the Ilāvṛita (region), having Mēru as its centre, displays itself, enclosing the bright Jambū river's wandering course.

(Verse 12) The delightful (region of) Hiraṇmanta, exceedingly charming with Lokāloka, displays itself in splendour on all sides, on the south whereof appears a mass of mountains (consisting of) the peaks of the Nila and Śvēta hills. On the east of the golden king of mountains [Mēru] is Uttarakuru, most exalted region of earth; and there appear in beauty Mālyavanta, having the grace of Fortune, and Bhadrāsva-varsha.

(Verse 13) On the west of Gandhamādana, Kētumāla stands out in distinction above the (other) excellent regions of generally famed splendour, so that it would seem as if the brilliant beauty of Mēru were (caused) by it.

(Verse 14) Of Nābhi, the eldest of the kings of this sphere of nine portions, the eldest son was Rishabhā, in whom were realised unfading virtues, (and) who was a store of wealth of incalculable merit. His son was Bharata; from him was (the country) Bhārata-varsha (so named). This king was from every point of view an ornament of Manu's race.

(Verse 15) Best of the kings beginning with Bharata, a Vishnupvardhana, the lord Emperor Vikrama by the power of his arm supported the whole burden of the ocean-ringed earth, an ornament of the Chalukya race, a seat of majesty, a scion of the race of Manu famed over the earth's regions.

(Line 15) Prose: If it be asked how this was, (the answer is): when the various Manus Svāyambhuva, Svārōchisha, Uttama, Tāmasa, Raivata, (and) Chākshusha, who were second lotus-born ones [Brahmans], architects of righteousness for the triple world, seats of unique majesty, roots of the creeping-plant of royal polity, one after another had ruled the earth each for seventy-one cycles of the four ages,¹ subsequently Aditi was born to Daksha the Patriarch, who was a pearl from the matrix of the nails of the beautiful feet of Hiranyagarbha. To Aditi and the Patriarch Kaśyapa, who was a skilful artificer of the carved figures of the world, was born Vivasvanta, [Vivasvat, the Sun] of the all-seeing eye; to Vivasvanta (was born) the seventh Manu, Vaivasvata,² who was skilled in the polity of the Manu; to Vaivasvata (was born) king Ikshvāku; to this monarch was then born a daughter named Iḷā-dēvi.

(Verse 16) The mind-born son of him who dwelt in the womb of the peerless golden lotus [Brahman] was Atri. The son born from the pupil of the eye of this lordly saint was the Nectar-rayed [Moon-god], ornament of [Śiva] who wears the moon-diadem. His beloved son was Budha. To Budha and Iḷā was born Purūravas, an increaser of the exalted Lunar Race, voiced in widespread fame.

(Verse 17) In the distinguished Lunar Race was (born) from this king of kings Purūravas Hārīti Pañchaśikha, whose feet were scraped by the diadems of all hostile monarchs.

(Verse 18) To Hārīti were (born) many sons having strength of arm fit to bear the incomparable burden of the earth. With these leaders of royal races as ancestors arose the Chalukya race,³ which is tremulous with brilliant creeping-plants of fortune, exalted above the whole world, a source of flawless pearls of lofty glory, appropriating eulogies from dynasties of monarchs of all races.

(Verse 19) The kings in this lineage are illustrious, having for ornament five crests,⁴ worshipping the *brahma-druma*⁵ of the Lady, having the sign [the boar-crest] brought to light by the Boar, punishing foes with sport of prowess coruscating in the vibration of their mighty arms, making the damsels of the quarters of space radiant with fresh crowns of the flowering jasmine of pure glory.

³ Literally, 'bamboo'; the following two epithets imply the bamboo as upamāna.

⁵ The Butea frondosa.

(Verse 20) The fortune of the Chalukya race¹ in the world strikes the mind with wonder, as if one should ask whether the exaltation of other dynasties could equal their prosperity: it is full of sap (vigour), possessing vigorous and beautiful branches, firmly rooted, rich in fruit, unshaken, beautiful in tip over tip, without flaw, without thorns.

(Verse 21) As good king Satyāśraya was born in it, a darling of the Lady Victory, one who made his own Chālukya lineage to bud forth, beloved of the goddess Glory, adorned by the conquests of his arm, which alone was able to protect the earth, a thunderbolt of Indra to the mountains (which are) the races of hostile princes, an ornament of kings, ruler of Ayōdhyā, the race of the Chālukyas is verily called "the lineage of Satyāśraya."

(Verse 22) Tailapa [II], a bearer of the burden of the earth who was born in this illustrious lineage, after conquering in battle Rāshṭrakūṭa kings adorned by the virtue of perfect heroism, controlled ever rightly under his sole sway the earth encompassed by the seven oceans, incomparable in splendour, a Fire-lord to foes [or, drinking the blood of foes].

(Verse 23) The son of Taila, praised by the people, was Satyāśraya; this monarch's son was the lord Vikrama [Vikramāditya V]; his younger brother was good Ayyapa [II], prince of the earth; his younger brother was Jayasīṅga [Jayasimha II]; his son was Ahavamalla [Sōmēśvara I], known as king Trailōkyamalla; his son was Sōmēśvara [II], ruler of the earth.

(Verse 24) His younger brother was the illustrious king Vikramāditya [VI], a lion to the raging elephants who were haughty hostile kings, an ornament on the face of the stainless Lady Glory, a fortunate Dilipa among kings.

(Verse 25) Lopping down the unsociable races (bamboos) of fierce foemen, crushing a host of kings, in an instant cutting off crores of thorns, by the might of his arm holding in harmony the earth surrounded by the seven oceans, he made as it were a pleasure-court for the goddess of Fame; what heroes are equal to the Chālukya-Rāma?

(Verse 26) The Lady Earth, after standing on the back of the Lord of Tortoises, coming upon the top of the lofty hoods of the Snake-king, and treading upon the tops of the temples of the troop of Elephants of the Quarters, in affection mounted upon the lofty arm of the emperor Vikrama: so lofty was the right arm of the Chālukya emperor!

(Verse 27) Now that the fear of standing on the top of the hoods of the lord of serpents, whose very name is poisonous, (and) the insult caused by the demon who in rude opposition pushed her into the nether world, (and) the fatigue when on being uplifted by the primeval Boar her life had become half-extinct, have been allayed, the Earth stands upon the mighty arm of the king whose ornament is valour [Vikramābharata].

(Verse 28) A gallant of kingly science, a gallant of the goddess Earth, a gallant of the genius of victory over the triple world, a gallant of the sweep of the arm of mighty prowess, a gallant of the concert of naturally sweet music, a gallant of graceful speech, a seat of royal virtues, a gallant of the mistresses of kings, he has humbled famous monarchs of old.

(Verse 29) There were no exalted ones who did not bow; no kings who were not suspended in the mouth of his scabbard; no lords of provinces who on seeing (him) did not perform his mandate of service, repressing hesitation; none who did not follow the treasure-waggon of his hand: in view of this, who would be able to describe in eulogy the heroic career of the terrible emperor Vikrama?

(Verse 30) As the row of other kings bowed down in present awe at his footstool, abandoning the richly developed manifestation of (their) prowess (and) consenting to liege service, the forms of these hostile monarchs in the mirrors (consisting of) the toe-nails of the glorious emperor Vikrama were like the deer (in the moon) to the moon's orb.

(Verse 31) As a bee to the lotus of the foot of this illustrious emperor Vikrama, a sharp edge to the sword of (his) arm, a protection to (his) authority, fresh beauty of youth to the Lady Earth, a condition of long and happy married life for the Fortune of the kingdom, extension for (his) glory, warmth to (his) lustre, did the land of Kuntala¹ esteem the fortunate Mahādēva.

(Verse 32) The valour and learning of the race which was the field of the birth of this General Mahādēva, and his own performance of manifold pious works, were peculiarly distinguished as objects of public praise.

If it be asked how this was, (we answer) :—

(Verse 33) Truly in Jambūdvīpa, which transcends the group of all the continents, there lies this Bhārata-varsha, famed as the most exalted of regions. In it lies Beḷvala, natal soil of the multitude of all tribes, culminating peak of the charming palace of the goddess Earth, ranging-ground for the herds of kine of many pious works.

(Verse 34) The Nareyaṅgal twelve (group of villages), which may be called an ornament of the Lady Earth, is verily to be seen in the province of Beḷvala; therein appears the famous mahāgrahāra Itṭage.

(Verse 35) It is like the Golden Mountain [Mēru], a home of vibudhas [gods, or sages]; behold, it is like the Nāgas' world, haunted by ananta-bhōgi-jana [Ananta and other snakes, or innumerable happy folk]; after the fashion of the Milk Ocean, it gives lodging to purushōttama [Vishnu, or excellent men]; after the manner of the mountain of the Lord of Wealth, it is a dwelling-place of mahēśvara [Śiva, or great lords]; who is there that does not [thus] speak of this Brāhmaṇ estate?

(Verse 36) Dancing peacocks, singing bees, swans walking about, cock cuckoos warbling the pañchama note, rose-ringed parakeets prattling exactly as some persons have previously spoken, lovers entering the groves of creeping-plants when the Bow of Flowers is at work, vibrating without being able to exhaust its delight, (are found) in this park.

(Verse 37) Its park causes the park of celestial trees to be in danger of falling (in estimation); its water-course that presents itself to sight is the stream of Ganges slipping down from the top of Mahēśvara's braided locks; thus (thinking), the troops of clouds, pouring abundantly into its great tank, affectionately supply waters to the earth: such is the appearance of this town.

(Verse 38) It appears on all sides radiant with noble Brāhmaṇs famous over the encircling earth, holding sacrifices whereof the glorious smoke of oblations, which is as it were a smoke for the purpose of (driving away) the gnat of the Kali age, expanding (and) swelling up even to the sky, surpasses the outpouring of Yamunā's waters marked by (their) union with the abundant stream of the Heavenly River.

(Verse 39) Through them the creeping-plant of Vedic lore grows high; by means of these excellent Brāhmaṇs the earth is said to pursue the path prescribed by the Vēdas; the company of celestials waits for the full series of diverse oblations which these gods of earth joyfully present; as these worthy sages rise from excellence to excellence, this Brāhmaṇ race perfectly understands the supreme Brahma.

(Verse 40) The noble Brāhmaṇs, the four hundred of Itṭage, in whom all grammars and various lore of the Vēdas, together with the text-books of the arts, have assembled themselves in incarnation, are distinguished by [or, are specialists in] the knowledge of Brahma, vessels of unfading good conduct, possessors of the perfection of stainless wisdom, worshipped by the whole of this earth.

(Verse 41) Sinless, blameless, peerless, famed for various modes of sacrifice by their own and other hands, study, teaching, charity, and acceptance (of alms) from worthy persons, are these four hundred Brāhmaṇs of Ittāge.

(Verse 42) Among them flourished a person consecrated for performance of sacrifice, who was distinguished by the name of Pōtaya Chauvēra,¹ scion of a race whose rites were famous over the world, a member of the peerless Ātrēya Gōtra, stainless of conduct.

(Verse 43) His son was named Mādhavabhaṭṭa, a master of all books of lore, uniquely holy in the whole ocean-girdled earth, following the primitive course of Manu.

(Verse 44) This Madhavabhaṭṭa's son was Basavaya, a man of conduct meet for a master of the six Āngas, renowned among the folk, as though the Vēda in human form were displaying its six Āngas.

(Verse 45) His son was the noble Brāhmaṇ Dēchirāja, a Mount Himavat to the Ganges of the triad [of Vēdas], a seed for the attainment of good conduct, a native house of righteousness, a natal soil of fame, highest in the world, highest of the highest, crest-jewel of the exalted; who is there who does not style this great man purushōttama [noblest of men, or Vishṇu] ?

(Verse 46) Lying to the south of the town and forming a foundation for (the existence of) all people, there is a tank with high tossing waves, which Dēchirāja, active in undertaking godly works, famed among diverse classes of sages, foundation of the select, built with (pious) purpose, (and) which in the abundance of (its) streams of water—it cannot be gainsaid—is like the Ocean of Milk.

(Verse 47) Of this illustrious Dēchirāja, ornament of mankind, the good wife, named Nijikabbe, an ornament of good wives, famous over the world, flourished in dignity on the earth.

(Verse 48) To this Dēchirāja, who was renowned as a most noble Brāhmaṇ, and to Nijāmbike, famed for unfailing wifely virtue, was born the peerless Vāsudēva, who was like Vasudēva's offspring [Kṛishṇa], worshipped by the whole world, a dwelling-place of spiritual wisdom, a teacher of dalliance in the bazaar of Vedic lore, a leader among the sages of earth.

(Verse 49) Of this illustrious Vāsudēva, who walked in the ways of Manu, the beloved (wife) was Valajikabbe, whose face was that of the full moon, a site of the treasure of dignity, noblest of Brāhmaṇ women, a jewel among ladies.

(Verse 50) To this lord Vāsudēva and to Valajikabbe, who was like the Lady Earth, was born in the affluence of their merit Nārāyaṇadēva, an ornament of Brāhmaṇs.

(Verse 51) As Indra's splendid elephant is supreme among the furious elephants of the sky, as the Ocean of Milk (is supreme) among the oceans, as Mōru, lord of mountains, (is supreme) in the series of primitive mountains, as the Thunderbolt-bearer [Indra] (is supreme) among the famous ones of the troop of guardians of the quarters of space, so, when one reflects, was Nārāyaṇadēva supreme among the best of Brāhmaṇs of this universe: in view of this, who now is there that applauds him not ?

(Verse 52) Who is competent to extol the greatness of Nārāyaṇa, whom the world praises as being² a supporter of his Gōtra [or, uplifter of a mountain], having fame as brilliant as [Vishṇu's] conch and discus [or, brilliant with Vishṇu's conch and discus], having radiant divine splendour residing in the lotus of his body, praised by hosts of sages [or, gods], charming with the radiance of truth [or, charming to Satyaḥāmā], possessing the essence of established order, blessed [or, consort of Fortune], lord of worthy sages [or, of best radiance], worshipped of the universe.

² The string of epithets that now follows may be applied equally to the Brāhmaṇ Nārāyaṇa and the god Nārāyaṇa-Kṛishṇa.

(Verse 53) The whole universe was dependent on him ; manliness was his very body ; he was himself a man who aroused in Fortune a personal affection ; there were no other men, however great their merit, who attained to resemblance of him ; he was a Mūrti-Nārāyaṇa [an incarnate Nārāyaṇa], in whom were combined the manifestation of sattva [characteristic of Viṣṇu], the nature of Brahman, and profundity of radiance [characteristic of Śiva].

(Verse 54) This noble man had a distinguished wife (named) Chandrikāmbike, a manifest Ganges of pure soul, a dwelling-place of gems of brilliant virtues, (renowned) over the earth.

(Verse 55) A Ganges of study of stainless conduct, the Earth in the form of a Brāhman lady, a Sāvitṛī appearing in a stainless race of Brāhmanas, the incarnate spirit of her husband's merit, the goddess Arundhati under a modern name, a mother of eternal majesty : who extols not in these terms this Chandrikādēvi ?

(Verse 56) Even as the world-adored Kumāra stout of might was born to the all-worshipped daughter of the Mountain-lord and to Iṣa, so to Chandrikāmbike and the noble Brāhman Nāraṇadēva was born the fortunate Mahādēva, a full-moon from the ocean of his race, an ornament of the universe.

(Verse 57) The fortunate Mahādēva's beautiful course of life, repugnant to the Kali Age, breaks up and drives away the defilement arising from the Kali Age ; is, as it were, irrigation-water for the tree of perfectly pure righteousness ; and is in unbroken harmony with the refined path of all the select, from Manu downwards.

(Verse 58) While the General Mahādēva by the favours of the triad of gods was a partial incarnation of them, their glorious Śaktis also appeared in the form of the series of his wives, who were the distinguished Kaḷaladēvi, Mallikādēvi, and Pampaladēvi, a head-jewel of women of great virtue.

(Verse 59) Are possession of the three Śaktis,¹ the wearing of the moon-digit of Holy Writ, (and) power suited for the protection of devotees seen in any except Mahādēva ?

(Verse 60) The illustrious General Mahādēva is a darling of the jasmine of eloquence dropping honey sweet as the nectar of the genius of gardens of pride ; a Lord of Rambhā [Indra] in setting up the dance of those famous skilful dancers, the trinity of Śaktis ; a teacher of the brilliant science of kings ; a mine of gems of weighty virtues ; a crest-jewel of generals of the Earth's Favourites [the Chālukyas].

(Verse 61) In such a manner as to establish at Ittagi,—which was (already) renowned in the world as having surpassed, in the greatness of being the place of his birth, the lordly Mountain of sunrise (and) the lotus whence arose the Lotus-born [Brahman] (and) the Milk ocean whence arose the moon,—(still more) famed so as to be worthy to be praised by all mankind, (this) ornament of the Ātrēya gōtra, who was beloved of stainless Fame,—

(Verse 62) Having penetrated the earth down to the sands radiant with the gems on the glittering hoods of snake-princes, straightened the ocean, (and) laid down all the mountains as surrounding stones and the lofty fore and hind quarters of the troop of elephants of the Quarters as ground-columns, has not the General Mahādēva made the Himālaya into a temple ?

(Verse 63) Mahādēva's temple appears as if the Great Gods had raised it in reverence, with the earth as its terrace, the line of primitive mountains as its ground-columns, the divisions of space as its walls, the goddesses of the Quarters as its cunningly carved statues adorned with taste, the Mountain-king [Himālaya] as (the body of) the temple, the Golden Mountain [Mēru] as its golden cupola.

¹ These Śaktis are probably the triad prabhūta, mantra, and utsāha in reference to the Brāhman Mahādēva and jñāna, icchā, and krīyā in reference to the god Mahādēva, to whom the qualities mentioned in this verse are equally applicable ; compare the next verse.

(Verse 64) The golden cupola on the summit of the god's dwelling, a seat of exaltation, looks as if it were the sun's orb that had arisen on the lordly mountain of sunrise, (and) staying there, unwilling to step over it, was illumining the world; it is in fact ever like a full pitcher held by the Goddess of Fortune (who presides over) the fortunate Mahādēva's prosperity.

(Verse 65) The (temple of the) god Mahādēva, which displays itself as having been constructed in reverence by Mahādēva the head-jewel among the Generals of the Earth's favourites [the Chālukyas], in the vastness of its lofty flagstaff lifts a finger to point a comparison with all other abodes of gods on the earth bounded by the seven seas, saying: "Look! such are they, (and) this!"

(Verse 66) When the god's lofty abode was displayed, which was indeed worthy to belong to the God of Gods, (this) Śiva of a General caused those who only looked at it to feel amazement, so that they said: "This is unprecedented; even Brahman does not understand how to contrive (or) imitate it; it verily deserves to be styled a Guru to Viśvakarman for (teaching him) skill in other works."

(Verse 67) When one compares temples on the ocean-bounded earth, are any, whether it be those formerly built or those yet to be built or those now building, equal (to this)? They are not equal. So, after previously constructing with joy of soul this one, which is worthy to be called the Emperor of Temples, in the everlastingly brilliant precinct of the god Mahādēva—

(Verse 68) As there was a pleasure-house of the Lady Fortune, having glory of glory in the world's praise (?), enduring for an æon, he, a tree of desire to the scions of his family, as the sentiment of devotion to his father increased in strength, meditated on the god Mūrti-Nārāyaṇa (and) constructed in honour of his sire a temple of the god Mūrti-Nārāyaṇa.

(Verse 69) In honour of his mother he set up (a temple of) the god Chandalēśvara. He constructed a suburb, which was celebrated by the people of the world, a crown of Kāma; having collected (and) brought ladies who must be very descendants of the Mind-born king [Kāma] and Rati and Rambhā, he established them as public women of the suburb.

(Verse 70) Terrible in prowess [or, a Bhairava in prowess], having a prowess of arm striking terror into all foes, having attained glory, managing affairs for the welfare of the whole earth, having his merit fully brought into operation, possessing incalculable manliness, he constructed in honour of the boon-giver Sāhasa-Bhairava, the tutelary (deity) of his own brilliant cult, a splendid temple.

(Verse 71) He, who was a Sarasvatī of all arts, a patron of all grammarians, poets, logicians, masters of tradition, professors of the Vēdas, adepts in spells, and (other) worthy men, constructed a monastery in piety to Sarasvatī of all arts, represented by literature, Vēdas, mystic formulæ, (and) the holy Akshara.

(Verse 72) The surrounding wall is like the gathered circle of the arms of Mṛḍa [Śiva] when he lays down his hand in assuming charge, with the words: "Over the surface of the ocean-encompassed earth this district, which through Mahādēva's gift to me I have taken under my charge, is holy; it is not fitting for Kali to enter on any side"—a place of sport for the furious elephants of the sky to rub their temples.

(Verse 73) This sanctuary of Śiva arose from the waters of Ganges when Mṛḍa [Śiva] in ancient times standing there brought down the river Ganges; as the God joyfully gave it to the Goddess to be a pool for her aquatic sports, the "Tank of the Goddess [Umā or Pārvatī]" stands in the brilliant precinct of the god Mahādēva, with its name corresponding to reality.

Furthermore, as to the manner thereof:—

(Verse 74) While the whole world clasped its hands looking on, the General Mahādēva brilliantly performed pious works at Savasi, Kunduṅga, Kāḍalūr, Iṭṭage, Vēḷugrāme, Varānasi, the Pampā-sthala of the Lord famous among the folk, Mōdegānūr, the fortunate Pāya-Nārāyaṇa-puri, (and) Nareyaṅgal, with conspicuous merit.

(Verse 75) By performing duly pious works with extreme brilliance at the places called Nidugundi, Maṅgalavura, the fortunate Lattalūr, Beṇṇekal, Vaḍavūr, Kōravura, and the famous Riddhigāva, Mahādēva obtained a wealth of glory such that the earth will affectionately praise (him) as long as moon, sun, and stars (endure).

(Line 69) Ōm ! Hail ! When the victorious rule of king Tribhuvanamalla,¹ refuge of the whole earth, favourite of Fortune and Earth, great Emperor, supreme Lord, supreme Master, ornament of Satyaśraya's race, embellishment of the Chālukyas, was advancing in its course of successively increasing prosperity (to endure) as long as moon, sun, and stars : Ōm !—

(Lines 70-71) Whereas king Tribhuvanamalla, for the supply of material for personal enjoyment, offerings, food-gifts, alms, and festival cloths for the god the Lord Mahādēva of the agrahāra Ittagi and for theatrical entertainments (?), had granted (the) one (entire village) Beṇṇekallu, within the Kukkanūru thirty, in perpetuity as long as moon, sun, and stars (endure), as a universally respected possession, with definition of the four boundaries within the tribhōga,² to be held on taḷa-vṛitti tenure for that god :—

(Lines 71-72) Further, the General Mahādēvayya, high minister, Sandhi-vigrahi for the Kanarese country, Master of the Household, possessor of all titles of honour, such as : “ the high chief of feudatories, who has attained the pañcha mahāśabda,³ great august general, terrifier of foes, moon to the night-lotuses of (his) kinsmen, mine of the gems of polity, sun to the day-lotuses of the Brāhmaṇ race, seeing as he speaks, pure in his Gōtra, (behaving) as a son to the wives of other men, a lion to the elephants who are traitors to his lord, delighter of the souls of worthy men, a bee to the lotus-feet of king Tribhuvanamalla, a Skanda in the front of battle,”—

(Lines 72-76) Having delivered property into the hands of the sheriff of the great agrahāra Ittagi and the rest of the Four-hundred Mahājanas, who are endowed with the virtues of practice of the major and minor disciplines, scripture-reading, meditation, spiritual concentration, observance of silence, prayer, oblation, and ecstasy, gracious to sages, skilled in the scriptures of the Vēdas that issued from the lotus-mouth of Hiraṇyagarbha-Brahman, the Vēdāṅgas, and the ancillary sciences, in the traditional law, in the Purāṇas, in the six philosophical systems, and in the six modes of logic, gods in excellence of sweet speech, consummate masters of the rules of the traditions for the āsvamēdha and many other sacrifices, having a lustre like that of the sun in the circuit encompassed by the ten points of space, trees of desire to dependents, shining in glory as far as the four oceans girdling the earth on the east, south, west, and north resembling the profound ocean, lions to the elephants of sin, mines of gems of right judgment, teachers of philanthropy, having the firmness of the primitive mountains, indifferent to others' wives though they be like Tilōttamā, supporters of all learned men, conflagrations of doom to the homesteads of the thirty-two thousand forms of treachery, submarine fires to the oceans which are the armies of potent foes, shatterers of the clouds of guilt, adamant chambers to those who come to them for refuge,— thereof are: on the east, the road going from Kukkanūru to Talakallu; on the south, the border of the fields of Talakallu; on the west, the border is the aḍḍa-vasuge; on the north, the border of Kāpiyahallu.

(Lines 76-78) Did on Sunday, the full-moon day of Bhādrapada of the cyclic year Nandana, being the thirty-seventh year of the Chālukya Vikrama era, on the occasion of a transit (causing) an eclipse of the moon, during a vyatipāta, grant with pouring of water, for the personal enjoyment, oblations, food-gifts, professors' stipends, clocks, and retinue of dancing-girls and attendants of the god Mahādēvēśvara, five-hundred matṭar of the eastern fields, as a universally respected possession, free from all conflicting claims: the boundaries

(Lines 78-82) Also, for the retinue of dancing-girls and attendants of the god there were granted twenty-four houses, as a suburb (for them) to dwell in: on the south of the gate-house—omitting ten cubits of roadway—as far as the sheriff's house, an extent of messuages (consisting) of the houses (amounting to) 54 cubits as the line of the southern area; on the front eastward from the house of Koḍaliya Kētana, . . . 4 cubits as the northern line; on the front eastward from the house of Mudiyanūra Viṣṇu-Ghaisāsa, 65 cubits; there on the east, to the south of the road, houses forming a line of 21 cubits, with eastward frontage as far as the house of extending to over 76 cubits; with these, two oilmills with their buildings, for the perpetual lamp of the god; on the west of the town, a line (consisting) of the street of the kūḷi, (comprising) 3 mattar 225 kamma of mango-garden of vasuge; north of the wall of the god's precinct, a garden (comprising) 5 mattar 675 cubits; on the east of the town to the south of the Tank of the Fairy Ladies, a garden (comprising) 2 mattar; at the junction of the aḍḍa-vasuge of the Road of the Hill with (the temple of) the god Kēśava of the street of Kāḍiyūr, 1 mattar 500 kamma of takkilu land; of this hundred, 1 mattar 130 kamma red land of vasuge, 1 mattar 100 kamma red land; of the street of Kāḍiyūr . . . mattar; of the Sēnabōva's visaka of vasuge, 4 mattar; on the east of (the temple of) that god, south of the Tank of the Fairy Ladies, 1 mattar of garden; for the choultry of that street, 40 mattar east of the wall of the town (and) one house at the head of the street.

(Lines 82-84) There for the instruction of youths in the Rīgvēda 1 khaṇḍika, for the instruction of youths in the Yajurvēda 1 khaṇḍika, amounting altogether to 2 khaṇḍikas, being (given) in perpetuity, there was a sum of one hundred and twenty gadyāṇa, in figures 120 gold gadyāṇa, (entrusted) to the whole body of Four-hundred Mahājanas, for which they have to pay regularly at the rate of interest of one paṇa per gold piece annually. Thus the Four-hundred are to deduct twelve gadyāṇa of annual interest on this gold, and regularly pay it every year to the teachers; so the Four-hundred shall maintain this much as long as moon, sun, and stars (endure), with universal respect (and) in freedom from all conflicting claims.

(Lines 84-86) Thus for those who maintain this pious foundation according to its proper rule the fruit will be the same as if they decorated with gold the horns and hoofs of a thousand kine during an eclipse of the sun at the holy sanctuaries of Benares, Arghyatīrtha, Prayāge, and Kurukshētra, and presented them according to rule, so ornamented to a thousand Brāhmanas learned in the Four Vēdas. To those who violate this pious foundation will accrue the guilt of destroying those thousand Brāhmanas and those thousand kine at those sanctuaries.

(Lines 86-89) The earth has been enjoyed by many kings, beginning with Sagara; who-soever at any time holds the soil has at the same time the fruit thereof. As between a donation and the maintenance thereof, it is more blessed to maintain (a grant) than to give it; through a grant one attains paradise, through the maintenance thereof the everlasting seat. He who should appropriate land, whether given by himself or given by others, is born as a worm in dung for sixty thousand years. He who takes away a single gold piece, a single cow, or a single finger-breadth of soil goes to hell until the dissolution of the universe. "This general principle of law for kings must be maintained by you in every age;" again and again Rāmabhadra makes this entreaty to all these happy sovereigns. I clasp my hands on my head in salutation to those monarchs on the earth, whether born of my own line or of lines of other kings, who with souls free from sin preserve this my law in its entirety.

B.—OF THE TIME OF SANKAMADEVA : A.D. 1178.

As has been said above, this record begins midway in line 89 directly after the end of the inscription A, from which it is separated by only a double mark of punctuation.—The characters here are in a script similar to that of A, but somewhat smaller and cramped and inelegant. They are for the most part from ½" to ¾" in height.—The language is Kanarese, of the mediæval type, all in prose.—As regards vocabulary, in line 89 we have the form Āsvayja for Āsvayuja : Dr. Fleet remarks that this seems to indicate the origin of the form Āsvija, Āsvīja, which is well known. In line 93 we have the accusative kāla for kālam, perhaps intentionally, but perhaps only as the result of a careless omission of the anusvāra. In line 95 we have the word baḷa : Dr. Fleet tells me that this is another form of bana, which term is used to denote recognized separate groups of the head-men or the accountants of a town or village when they are not all of the same descent, and is also applied to the corresponding divisions of the lands attached to the office. In this line we have also another instance of the change of the ay sound to ey, in the surname Gheysa, = Ghaysa, Ghaisa.—The orthography shows, like that of A, a fluctuation in the use of initial p and its derivative h : thus, we have paḍuval in lines 94 and 95, by the side of hola, line 93, and hōda, line 94.

The inscription is of the time of the Kaḷachurya king Saṅkamadēva. It records grants which were made for the temple of Mahādēva, and were given in trust to the Four-hundred Mahājanas, headed by the Ūroḍa or village head-man, of Itṭage, by a certain Nāgadēvayya Nāyaka, who, being described as a mahā-vaḍḍa-ryavahāri, seems to have been a banker or money-lender on a grand scale.

The details of the date (line 89) are : the cyclic year Vilambin, being the second year of the reign of Saṅkamadēva ; the new-moon of Āsvayuja ; Ādivāra (Sunday). Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks :—" This Vilambin saṁvatsara was the Śaka year 1100 expired, A.D. 1178-79. For this year the given tithi, the new-moon of Āsvina, as a true tithi, answers to 12 October, A.D. 1178, on which day it ended at about 22 hrs. 20 min. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain). This day, however, was a Thursday ; whereas the record specifies a Sunday. In this case a mean calendar does not help : the tithi as a mean tithi ended at 8 hrs. 39 min. on the next day, Friday. Thus, from both points of view this date is an irregular one.¹ Further, we are told in line 93 that the grants were made on the occasion of an eclipse of the moon : but of course there cannot be such an eclipse at a new-moon ; and there was no eclipse of the sun at this new-moon, or of the moon at the full-moon of Āsvina, to justify our proposing any emendation of the record. The text here, again, has the expression sōma-grahana-saṁkrānti-vyattipātad-amḍu : regarding this use of the term saṁkrānti see p. 40 above."

Regarding two of the places mentioned in this record, namely Kukkanṭiru and Talākallu (lines 93-4), see remarks at p. 40 above, under the inscription A.

¹ In connection with this date the following note may be made. In the Elliot MS. Collection the name of the saṁvatsara is given as Hēṇḍāmbi. This is well known as a southern corruption or variant of Hēmalambī. The Hēmalambin saṁvatsara comes next before Vilambin. And it happens that for A.D. 1177 the given tithi answers quite regularly to Sunday, 23 October, on which day it ended at about 10 hrs. 43 min. But the record has unmistakably Viḷāmbi, with no possibility of any other reading.—J. F. F.

TRANSLATION.

(Lines 89-91) Ōm ! Hail ! On Sunday, the new-moon day of Aśvayuja of the cyclo to year Vilambin, being the second year of the Kaḷachurya emperor king Saṅkama, the mahā-vaḍḍa-vyavahāri Nāgadēvayya Nāyaka, endowed with all virtues, having delivered property into the hands of the sheriff and the rest of the Four-hundred Mahājanas of Anādi-agrahāra Yiṭṭage, who are endowed with the virtues of practice of the major and minor disciplines, scripture-reading, meditation, spiritual concentration, observance of silence, prayer, oblation, and ecstasy, gracious to sages, skilled in the scriptures of the Vēdas that issued from the lotus-mouth of Hiranyagarbhha-Brahman, the Vēdāṅgas, and the ancillary sciences, in the traditional law, in the Purāṇas, in the six philosophical systems, and in the six modes of logic, trees of desire to dependents,—

(Lines 91-93)—did grant with laving of the feet and pouring of water to Somēśvara Paṇḍita-dēva,—disciple of Vidyābharāṇa Paṇḍita-dēva, disciple of Somēśvara Paṇḍita-dēva, disciple of Kriyāsakti Paṇḍita-dēva,—who is endowed with the virtues of practice of the major and minor disciplines, scripture-reading, meditation, spiritual concentration, observance of silence, prayer, oblation, and ecstasy, and is the teacher (attached) to the god the Lord Mahā-dēva (belonging to the temple) of Svayambhu-Trikūṭśvara, during a transit (causing) an eclipse of the moon, in a vyatipāta, 35 mattar of arable land in the eastern fields for the agrāsana of the god the Lord Mahādēva, as a universally respected possession, free from all conflicting claims.

³ One syllable is illegible here; or perhaps two.

(Lines 93-95) As to the borders thereof ; on the east, the fields of Nīḍḍigāve are the bound ; on the south, a cow's stone [a stone with a cow sculptured on it] is the bound ; on the west, the road going from Kukkanūru to Talakallu is the bound ; on the north, the arable land of the agrāsana of the god Sōmēśvara (and) the arable land of the god Gavaṛēśvara are the bound. Likewise (he granted) to that god 1 mattar of garden-land on the north of the town. As to its borders : on the east, the causeway is the bound : on the south, the garden of the god the Lord Nāraṇa is the bound ; on the west, the baḷa of Kīriya-Saṁ . . gōri is the bound ; on the north, the garden of Vāsudōva Gheysa of the Two Wives is the bound.

No. 5.—THE CYCLE OF JUPITER,

AND

THE NAMES OF THE SAMVATSARAS APPLIED TO HINDU SOLAR YEARS.

A continuation of the author's "Indian Chronography."

BY ROBERT SEWELL, I.C.S. (RETD.).

Introductory.

199. In my "Indian Chronography" (pp. 46-65 and Tables XXVII to XXXI A) I have shewn how the exact beginning and ending of a Jovian year can be ascertained, according to the various astronomical authorities in use in India, from K. Y. 3117 (A.D. 16-17) to 5133 (A.D. 2032-33). These calculations were made, as regards the motion of Jupiter, by the mean sign system, that is to say, by conceiving the length of each samvatsara as being the time occupied by the planet in passing by his mean motion through one sign, or 30°, of the Hindu zodiac; and they were made as regards the solar year by determining the number of days and decimals of a day by which each samvatsara began after apparent *Mēsha samkrānti*¹ in each solar year. In the single case of the Original Sūrya Siddhānta, however, (Tables XXX and XXX A) the computation was made with reference to the moment of mean Mēsha samkrānti; for the reason that it is almost certain that during the whole period of its use the Hindu calculators worked entirely on that system.

200. Since the publication of the Indian Chronography I have examined a large number of dates of Indian inscriptions, and have come across many cases where the name of the given samvatsara does not exactly accord with the solar year with which it should be connected according to rule framed with apparent Mēsha samkrānti as the guiding-point. Sometimes this may be due to mere accident; sometimes it may arise from the use of the name of the samvatsara current at the moment of the action commemorated by the record instead of that of the samvatsara current at Mēsha samkrānti of the current year. But it is certain that at least up to the time of Śrīpati (about A.D. 1040) and probably for a long time afterwards the Hindu calculators based their determination of the Jovian samvatsara current at Mēsha samkrānti (and, therefore, according to custom giving its name to the entire solar year) not with reference to the apparent but to the mean Mēsha samkrānti; and this would often cause the solar year to be called by a different Jovian cycle-name. The late Sankara Balkrishna Dikshit hinted (Indian Calendar, p. 28) that possibly this practice lasted till as late as the 15th century.

201. My tables in the Indian Chronography were intended to enable the beginning and ending time of a samvatsara to be calculated by time measured from a known point, and since Table I of the Indian Calendar stated that point (apparent Mēsha samkrānti) in each year it was obviously most simple to use that point. The tables were not framed to serve as a guide to the Jovian name to be correctly applied to each solar year, though that could be gathered from them with a little trouble and care.

202. It is evident, however, that we can only be secure in our acceptance of, or rejection as irregular of, an inscription-date, if, besides the tables calculated by the apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti, we have others calculated by the mean Mēsha saṁkrānti; and furthermore have at hand a table containing the Jovian cycle-name properly (i.e. by Hindu rule) connected with each solar year with reference to both apparent and mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, and by all the Hindu Siddhāntas, i.e. such a table as will shew at a glance whether a cycle-name is properly applicable to a particular solar year by any system or by any known Hindu authority. This then is the work partly done in the present paper.

203. Before explaining the method of preparation and the use of the tables which follow a few remarks may not be considered out of place.

204. As mentioned below, the late Mr. S. Balkrishna Dikshit expressed the opinion that the Second Ārya Siddhānta, whose date is believed to be about A.D. 950, was in no part of India in use for a long time. The Siddhānta which has obtained most general acceptance, except in the south, is the Present Sūrya Siddhānta, which dates perhaps from about A.D. 1000, and which in parts was corrected by the author of the Makaranda in A.D. 1478. My Table XLII (below) shews all the years in which suppressions of Jovian saṁvatsaras took place according to each authority. These suppressions are marked with asterisks. Now it will be apparent to anyone using that table that in this respect the results afforded by calculation from the elements of the Second Ārya Siddhānta are much nearer to those of the Present Sūrya Siddhānta with the correction (bīja) than to results obtained by the use of any other authority. The position of Jupiter, that is, as calculated by the Second Ārya differed considerably from that calculated by the Sūrya Siddhānta until the Hindu astronomer in the 15th century introduced the correction to the latter's elements; after which the two come much closer together. If, therefore, the corrected Sūrya Siddhānta is really the most accurate authority, we must hold that at least in the matter of the motion of Jupiter the Second Ārya Siddhānta was unworthily dealt with and received scant justice.

205. Although the Second Ārya Siddhānta seems to have been in use for a very short time I was induced to continue the calculations according to its elements through the whole period of over 1,400 years embraced in the general Table XLII below, partly in order to call attention to this peculiarity.

206. In ordinary cases it would suffice, when once the moment of beginning of a saṁvatsara had been calculated with reference to apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti, merely to add to it the time-difference or sōdhya, between apparent and mean Mēsha saṁkrānti in order to arrive at the moment of its beginning with reference to mean Mēsha saṁkrānti; and in ordinary cases the four decimal points given in my tables would suffice. But in order that there may be no mistake in very close cases I have worked the whole of these tables by nine places of decimals. One instance, and that a very interesting and instructive one, will shew how important it is that this should be done, especially with reference to the information afforded by Table XLII.

207. Note the year K. Y. 3710, A.D. 609-10, in which No. 1 Prabhava of a cycle began, according to the First Ārya Siddhānta and as tabulated for four decimals of a day, 169·4400 days after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti (Table XXIX B below). We see that during that cycle 41 Plavaṅga was suppressed because it both began and ended within the limits of the solar year A.D. 649-50. Turning to the complementary Table XXIX A of the Indian Chronography we see that 41 Plavaṅga began in its year 169·4400 days prior to the time when No. 1 Prabhava began in its year; which means that in A.D. 649 it began precisely at the moment of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti. Was it or was it not suppressed? Did it begin after or before that moment? If before, it was current at that moment and gave its name to the year; if later, it both began and ended within the limits of the solar year, and did not give its name to the year.

The present Table XXVIII B is calculated for mean Mēsha saṁkrānti according to the Present Sūrya Siddhānta with the bija, and is to be used with Table XXVIII A, Indian Chronography, just as is Table XXVIII in that work for apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti.

Similarly the present Table XXIX B is for mean Mēsha saṁkrānti by the First Ārya Siddhānta or Āryabhaṭṭiya, and is to be used with Table XXIX A, Indian Chronography.

And the present Table XXXI B is for mean Mēsha saṁkrānti by the Brāhma Siddhānta and the Siddhānta Śirōmaṇi, and is to be used with Table XXXI A, Indian Chronography.

Explanation is fully given in Indian Chronography (pp. 52 to 62), and the work is shewn in Examples 53 to 60.

The present Tables XXXI C, D and E are similarly prepared according to the Second Ārya Siddhānta, C for apparent, E for mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, D being common to both.

212. Having completed my calculations so far I draw up Table XLII, which shews at a glance (the numbers in columns referring to the list at the side) for every year from A.D. 490-91 to 1914-15 what Jovian name would be given to each solar year according to the Hindu rule of naming the year by the saṁvatsara actually current at Mēsha saṁkrānti; and this by all the authorities, and both by apparent and mean Mēsha saṁkrānti. It will be found very useful in testing the accuracy of dates given in inscriptions found in tracts which, as in the north, carried on from year to year the practice of naming the year after the actual astronomical position of Jupiter.

213. Thus, to give an example, suppose we have a date given in a record in the year K. Y. 4606 or Śaka 1427 expired (= A.D. 1505-6), Table XLII shews us at a glance that that solar year was called "Āṅgiras" according to the Sūrya Siddhānta without the bija whether on a basis of apparent or mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, by the Sūrya Siddhānta with the bija also on either base, and (if they had been in use) also by the Original Sūrya on a mean base, and by the Second Ārya Siddhānta on either base; whereas according to the First Ārya Siddhānta on either base, or according to the Brāhma Siddhānta and Siddhānta Śirōmaṇi on either base the name of the year was "Śrīmukha."

CYCLE OF JUPITER. ELEMENTS ON BASIS OF MEAN MĒSHA SAṂKRĀNTI.

Table XXVII B. By the Sūrya Siddhānta without the bija.

214. [Calculation on the basis of apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti is fully explained in Indian Chronography, pp. 49-51.] At the epoch of the Kaliyuga or in K. Y. 0 expired, B.C. 3102-1, the saṁvatsara 26 Nandana ended and 27 Vijaya began exactly at the moment of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, Jupiter being then assumed to be precisely in long. 0°. Since Vijaya ended before the end of the solar year it became kshaya, and did not give its name to any year. From the end of 26 Nandana 34 saṁvatsaras passed before the moment of beginning of 1 Prabhava of the next cycle. Using the letters of the List of elements of this Siddhānta on p. 49, Indian Chronography,¹ we calculate the interval between the end of 26 Nandana and the beginning of 1 Prabhava by the formula E—(F×34). (E) 365-258756481 days—(F×34) 143-889205368 days=221-369551113 days. This is the time after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti of K. Y. 33, B.C. 3069-8, when 1 Prabhava began. Between this 1 Prabhava and the 1 Prabhava of K. Y. 3117 there were exactly 52 whole saṁvatsara cycles.

"E" is the length of the sidereal solar year.

"F"—E—D, or the difference between E and D.

"H"—this difference for an entire cycle, or, F×60.

"J"—E—H, or additive difference for beginnings of successive cycles.

$I \times 52 = 5789 \cdot 504726772$ days. $E \times 16 = 5844 \cdot 140103703$ days. Deduct the latter from the former, and add $221 \cdot 369551113$ days (the beginning time of 1 Prabhava of K. Y. 33), and the result is $166 \cdot 734174182$. At this distance of time, therefore, after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti No. 1 Prabhava began in K. Y. 3117, B.C. 3069-68. Calculation for the following cycles follows in order by adding for each the element "I."

Table XXVIII B. By the Sūrya Siddhānta with the bīja.

215. [Calculation on the basis of apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti is explained in Indian Chronography, pp. 52-53.] Although the bīja, or correction, was not introduced till A.D. 1478 still, since it involved the change in some respects of the elements of the Siddhānta (compare the Lists, pp. 49 and 53, Indian Chronography), calculation had to be made afresh from the epoch of the Kaliyuga, K. Y. 0 expired. At the moment of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti in that year 26 Nandana ended and 27 Vijaya began. Vijaya was kshaya in that year. Using the elements at the top of p. 53, Ind. Chron., we find $E - (F \times 34) = 221 \cdot 639172313$ days. This is the time measured from mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, when 1 Prabhava began in K. Y. 33, B.C. 3069-68. From the beginning of this Prabhava to the beginning of the 1 Prabhava in K. Y. 4540, A.D. 1439-40, there were exactly 76 cycles of samvatsaras. " I " $\times 76 = 8497 \cdot 744791036$ days. $E \times 23 = 8400 \cdot 951399063$ days. Deduct the latter from the former and add $221 \cdot 639172313$ days as above, and the result is $318 \cdot 432564286$ days. In K. Y. 4540, A.D. 1439-40, therefore, 1 Prabhava began $318 \cdot 4326$ days after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti. For the beginning-moment of each successive cycle we add the element "I," or $111 \cdot 812431461$ days.

Table XXIX B. By the First Ārya Siddhānta or Āryabhaṭīya.

216. [For method of calculation on the basis of apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti see Indian Chronography, pp. 53-55.] At the epoch of the Kaliyuga 26 Nandana is assumed to have ended, and 27 Vijaya to have begun, precisely at the moment of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti. The year was K. Y. 0, A.D. 3102-1. Vijaya was kshaya. We use the same formula as before, viz. $E - (F \times 34)$, to find the number of days by which 1 Prabhava began after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti in K. Y. 33. $E = 365 \cdot 258680555$ days; $F \times 34 = 144 \cdot 023981572$ days. Result $221 \cdot 234698983$ days. There were exactly 52 cycles between this Prabhava and the Prabhava which began in K. Y. 3117, A.D. 16-17. We therefore add the above result to (" I " $\times 52$) and deduct a multiple of the solar-year length, i.e. ($E \times 16$). (" I " $\times 52$) $= 5777 \cdot 133079900$. Adding for the beginning of Prabhava $221 \cdot 234698983$ we have $5998 \cdot 367778883$. Deduct ($E \times 16$) or $5844 \cdot 138888880$, and the remainder is $154 \cdot 228890003$. This is the number of days by which 1 Prabhava began after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti in K. Y. 3117, A.D. 16. The calculation begins regularly from that figure, adding the value of "I" for each cycle.

Table XXX B. By the Brāhma Siddhānta and Siddhānta Śirōmaṇi.

217. [For method of calculation on the basis of apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti see Indian Chronography, pp. 58-62.] It has already been determined (see Indian Chronography, p. 59, § 165) that in K. Y. 0 Jupiter reached long. $0^\circ 6 \cdot 49836$ days after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti. At that moment 27 Vijaya began and 26 Nandana ended. In the following year, K. Y. 1 expired, 28 Jaya began (" F " $=$) $4 \cdot 238430044$ days earlier in the year than 27 Vijaya. Hence in that year 28 Jaya began $2 \cdot 259929956$ days after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, and as it ended about 361 days later (" D ") it ended before the end of the solar year and became kshaya, not giving its name to any year. To find the beginning-moment of the No. 1 Prabhava of the next cycle we add as before $E - (F \times 34)$ to the ending-moment of 26 Nandana as found above.

 E & = & -365 \cdot 258437500 \text{ days} \\
 (F \times 34) & = & -144 \cdot 106621496 \text{ do.} \\
 \hline
 & & 221 \cdot 151816004 \text{ do.} \\
 + & & 6 \cdot 498360000 \text{ do.} \\
 \hline
 & & 227 \cdot 650176004 \text{ do.}
 \end{array}$$

Therefore 1 Prabhava began 227·650176004 days after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti in the year K. Y. 33, B.C. 3069-68.

Add this to "I" $\times 52$, and deduct a multiple of the solar year length, or $E \times 16$, and we have the datum for K. Y. 3117, A.D. 16-17.

 \text{"I"} \times 52. & & 5769 \cdot 537012720 \\
 + & & 227 \cdot 650176004 \\
 \hline
 & & 5997 \cdot 187188724 \\
 E \times 16. & - & 5844 \cdot 135000000 \\
 \hline
 & & 153 \cdot 052188724
 \end{array}$$

This last is the number of days by which 1 Prabhava began in that year after mean Mēsha saṁkrānti.

From that moment we proceed regularly as before, adding the cycle difference "I" for each cycle.

CALCULATION BY THE SECOND ĀRYA SIDDHĀNTA ON BASIS OF (i) APPARENT, (ii) MEAN MĒSHA SĀMKRĀNTI.

218. In my Indian Chronography (n. 2, p. 63) I intimated my intention to publish Tables for finding the time of beginning and ending of a Jovian saṁvatsara according to the Second (or Laghu) Ārya Siddhānta in the same way as those published (Tables XXVII to XXXI A) according to the other Hindu authorities; and I now fulfil my promise.

219. The date of the Second Ārya Siddhānta is believed to be about A.D. 950; and according to the opinion of the late Mr. Sankara Balkrishna Dikshit, it does not seem to have been anywhere in use for a long time. It was, however, known to Bhāskarāchārya in A.D. 1150, and such being the case I have considered it advisable to prepare the Tables for the whole period covered by the other tables referred to. Though this is certainly useless for later years it is dangerous to draw a line and it is best to be on the safe side, as we know as yet neither the tract where this Siddhānta was used nor the date when its use ceased. As regards the saṁvatsaras of Jupiter this Siddhānta could never have been received as an authority in the South of India because there the astronomically calculated succession of saṁvatsaras, in the matter of the application of their names to the solar years, was neglected after the year A.D. 906; every year being afterwards serially connected with the name of a saṁvatsara without regard to any suppression. The presumption is that the use of the Second Ārya Siddhānta was confined to the north, or at least to those tracts where suppressions of saṁvatsaras were attended to.

TABLE XXXI. C. Apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti as basis.

220. The process of calculation for Table XXXI C is as follows :—

According to the Second Ārya Siddhānta the position of Jupiter at the moment of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti in K. Y. 0 expired, i.e. current, that is to say, at the epoch of the Kaliyuga era, or the moment of mean sunrise on Friday Feb. 18 B.C. 3102, was $357^{\circ} 7' 12''$ (Indian Chronography, p. 68). Jupiter did not reach the point 0° till he had travelled $2^{\circ} 52' 48''$ of arc. Calculating by his mean motion this journey occupied 34d. 15h. 45m. or 3465.624537 days (Table XXXIV). He reached long. 0° therefore at that length of time after the moment of mean Mēsha saṁkrānti, and when he reached it the saṁvatsara 27 Vijaya began. The time-interval between mean and apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti in K. Y. 0, i.e. the interval which we call the "śodhya", was determined by Dr. Schram (op. cit. p. 16) as 2.171973 days or 2.171972 days after calculation by two separate methods, the result shewing a minute difference of 0.09 of a second. I have halved this difference, and calculated with a śodhya of 2.1719725 days, or 2d. 4h. 7m. 38.424s. Jupiter therefore reached long. 0° , 26 Nandana ended, and 27 Vijaya began, $(34.65624537 + 2.1719725 \text{ days}) = 36.82821787 \text{ days}$, or $(34\text{d. } 15\text{h. } 45\text{m.} + 2\text{d. } 4\text{h. } 7\text{m. } 38.424\text{s.}) = 36\text{d. } 19\text{h. } 52\text{m. } 38.424\text{s.}$ after apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti in K. Y. 0 expired.

221. Next has to be ascertained the moment of beginning of the first saṁvatsara "1 Prabhava" of the next 60-saṁvatsara cycle. This occurred after the expiration of exactly 34 saṁvatsaras counting from the end of 26 Nandana. The length of the solar year is ($E =$) 365.258690278 days. The annual difference between the lengths of the solar year and saṁvatsara is ($F =$) 4.231719473 days. This last multiplied by 34 is 143.878462082 days $E - (F \times 34) = 221.380228196 \text{ days}$. This, added to the number of days by which 26 Nandana ended after apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti (viz.: 36.82821787 days, as found above) gives us 258.208446066 days. 1 Prabhava therefore began 258.208446066 days after apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti in the year K. Y. 33 expired or B.C. 3069-68. The reason why the solar year was not K. Y. 34 expired is because in K. Y. 8 expired, B.C. 3094-93, the saṁvatsara 35 Plava was expunged.

222. To arrive at the exact beginning of the "1 Prabhava" which began in A.D. 16-17, between which year and the year K. Y. 33 expired or B.C. 3069-68 there were exactly 52 complete cycles of saṁvatsaras, element "I" must be first calculated. This is the difference in the beginning-time of the saṁvatsara No. 1 Prabhava at the beginning of successive 60-year cycles. The annual difference being ($F =$) 4.231719473 days, $F \times 60$ is 253.903168380 days. Deduct this from the year-length "E" given above, and the remainder is the value of "I", viz. 111.355521898 days. 52 of these cycle-differences ($"I" \times 52$) amount to 5790.487188696 days. To this must be added the time by which the 1 Prabhava began after Mēsha saṁkrānti in K. Y. 33 expired, or B.C. 3069-68. This was found to be 258.208446066 days. The total is 6048.695584762 days. Deduct from this a multiple of the solar year-length E, viz. ($E \times 16 =$) 5844.139044448, and the remainder is 204.556540314 days.

223. No. 1 Prabhava therefore began in A.D. 16-17 or K. Y. 3117 expired 204.556540314 days after apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti. From this point the calculation for Table XXXI C is carried regularly forward cycle by cycle, the expunged, or kshaya, saṁvatsaras being duly noted, with the years in which the expunction took place.

224. It has been mentioned that in the earliest of the cycles which have been dealt with above the saṁvatsara 35 Plava was expunged. This occurred in the year K. Y. 8 expired, B.C. 3094-8. From 27 Vijaya to 35 Plava is 8 saṁvatsaras. The annual difference "F" multiplied by 8 is 33·853755784 days. Vijaya was found to have begun 36·828217870 days after apparent Mēsha samkrānti in its solar year. Deducting from this 33·853755784 days, viz.: the 8-years collective difference, the remainder is 2·974462086 days. 35 Plava, therefore, began at that length of time after apparent Mēsha samkrānti in K. Y. 8 expired or B.O. 3094·3; and since the length of a samvatsara is only 361 odd days, it is evident that Plava ended before the expiry of the 365½ days of the solar year. It has been necessary to work out this point since, if there had been no expunction in the cycle in question, the year connected with 1 Prabhava of the following cycle would not have been, as it is, K. Y. 33 but K. Y. 34 expired.

[For the sake of conformity with the similar Tables for the other Siddhāntas (Tables XXVII to XXXI A, Indian Chronography) I have calculated the śodhya as it has been determined by Dr. Schram for K. Y. 0, viz.: 2·1719725 days, leaving it to workers to make the very slight alteration necessary (if a very close case should be discovered) to get perfect accuracy for the century concerned. Dr. Schram's results will be found in Indian Chronography, p. 16. The śodhya in K. Y. 0 was 2·171972 days, in K. Y. 3000 was 2·172707 days, in K. Y. 4000 was 2·172952 days and in K. Y. 5000 was 2·173197 days. Having found by my Tables the beginning-time of a samvatsara, if greater accuracy is necessary, deduct from the result after K. Y. 3000, fairly in proportion to the 2000 years' interval, an amount varying from 0·0007 to 0·0012, or from 1m. 2s. to 1m. 46s. This last is the greatest possible difference.]

Table XXXI D is to be used, for Second Ārya Siddhānta computation just as Table XXVII B (Indian Chronography) is used for computation by the Sūrya Siddhānta without the bija.

TABLE XXXI E. Mean Mēsha samkrānti as basis.

225. The method of work for finding the beginning of the samvatsara 1 Prabhava in the year A.D. 16-17, K. Y. 3117 expired, on the basis of reference to mean instead of to apparent Mēsha samkrānti, could be explained in exactly the same way as has been already done in the latter case; but it is unnecessary to go into such full details a second time. It suffices to say for a beginning, that with reference to mean Mēsha samkrānti in the year K. Y. 0 expired or at the epoch of the Kaliyuga era it has been shewn that the samvatsara 26 Nandana ended, and 27 Vijaya began 34·656245370 days after that moment. We work from this point. 8 samvatsaras later 35 Plava began ($F \times 8$) 33·853755784 days earlier than did 27 Vijaya. Deducting the latter from the former figure we find that in the solar year K. Y. 8 expired, B.C. 3069-8 35 Plava began 0·802489586 days after mean Mēsha samkrānti, and therefore ended before the end of the solar year. It was a kshaya samvatsara. Hence, as before so here, the 1 Prabhava of the next cycle began in K. Y. 33 and not in K. Y. 34 expired.

226. No. 27 Vijaya began in K. Y. 0 expired 34·656245370 days after mean Mēsha samkrānti.

Add these. Then 1 Prabhava in K. Y. 33, B.O. 3069-8, began 256·036473566 days after mean Mēsha samkrānti. Add this to "I" \times 52 which = 5790·487138696. Result 6046·523612262 days. Deduct "E" \times 16 or 5844·139044448 days and we arrive at 202·384567814 days, which is the number of days by which 1 Prabhava of the cycle began after mean Mēsha samkrānti in K. Y. 3117, A.D. 16-17.

This is tabulated as 202·3846 days, and so in succession.

Time-corrections.

227. Calculation by Tables XXXI C and D, or E and D will enable us to ascertain the moment of beginning and ending of any samvatsara by the Second Ārya Siddhānta with reference to any Mēsha samkrānti moment, true or mean; but as in the case of the Original Sūrya Siddhānta, Brāhma Siddhānta and Siddhānta Śirōmuni we must, if we use the Indian Calendar Table I, for giving us the time of occurrence of Mēsha samkrānti each year (cols. 13 to 17 for the First Ārya Siddhānta) apply a correction in order to get at the exact time of Mēsha samkrānti by the Second Ārya Siddhānta, because the length of the year fixed by the First Ārya differed slightly from that fixed by the Second Ārya Siddhānta. The two started from the same point, viz.: the sunrise epoch of the Kaliyuga, or mean sunrise on Feb. 18 B.C. 3102, but according to the Second Ārya the year is 0·84s. longer than the First Ārya year (Ind. Chronography, p. 158, col. 3). Hence the following Table must be used:—

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE MOMENTS OF MEAN MĒSHA SAMKRĀNTI AS CALCULATED BY (1) THE FIRST ĀRYA SIDDHĀNTA, (2) THE SECOND ĀRYA SIDDHĀNTA, THE TWO HAVING BEEN TOGETHER IN K. Y. 0, B.C. 3102.

[Having found from Table I, cols. 13 to 17, etc. (by applying the fixed śodhya to the apparent Mēsha samkrānti) the moment of mean Mēsha samkrānti by the First Ārya Siddhānta, add the time difference given in this Table for every expired year of the K. Y. in order to obtain the same by the Second Ārya Siddhānta.]

N.B.—To obtain exact time of apparent Mēsha samkrānti by the First Ārya Siddhānta add 30s. to the time given in Table I, col. 17 of the Indian Calendar in years A.D. whose number is odd; but not in those whose number is even. See Indian Chronography "Hints for workers," No. 20, p. 79.

228. Again, to fix the exact moment of apparent Mēsha samkrānti by the Second Ārya Siddhānta we have to note that according to it the śodhya, or time-difference between mean and apparent Mēsha samkrāntis varies slightly year by year, whereas the śodhya by the First Ārya Siddhānta is a constant; so that we must, for absolute accuracy in Second Ārya Siddhānta time, take note of this varying difference.

Dr. Schram has fixed its value for us (see Indian Chronography, 139 D, p. 16) at different millenniums thus—

SECOND ĀRYA SIDDHĀNTA SŌDHYA.

| K. Y. expired. | Christian year. | Exact value of 66dhya as fixed by Dr. Schram. | | | |
|-------------------|--------------------|--|----|----|-------|
| | | d. | h. | m. | s. |
| 3000 | B.C. 103-02 | 2 | 4 | 8 | 41·88 |
| 4000 | A.D. 899-900 | 2 | 4 | 9 | 3·05 |
| 5000 | A.D. 1899-1900 | 2 | 4 | 9 | 24·22 |

It will be seen that for all ordinary purposes it will suffice to use a constant 2d. 4h. 9m.; but for very close work take the sōdhya-value at K. Y. 3601, A.D. 500, as being 2d. 4h. 8m. 54·582s. and add for every succeeding 100 years 2·117s. and for 1000 years 21·168s.

RULE FOR WORK, AND EXAMPLE.

229. All work formerly necessary for the purpose of ascertaining which Jovian saṁvatsara began in the course of any given year according to any of the principal Siddhāntas, and whether calculated by apparent or mean Mōsha saṁkrānti, is now obviated by the information given in Table XLII below, which solves the question at a glance. It shows the saṁvatsara current at every Mōsha saṁkrānti, and we therefore know that the next saṁvatsara of the cycle began during the year. When there is an asterisk shown it means that this latter saṁvatsara both began and ended during the solar year, so that the next again also began during that year and was current at Mōsha saṁkrānti of next year.

230. But we sometimes desire to know the time of beginning and ending of a saṁvatsara in order to ascertain whether it was current at the time of the event or action chronicled in an inscription.

231. This time is precisely the same whether we calculate from mean or from apparent Mōsha saṁkrānti, and as the time of the latter is already given in, or can be gathered from, cols. 13 to 17 or 17a of the Indian Calendar, it is easiest to use that information as basis of work. Find this required time, therefore, according to the Sūrya Siddhānta (with or without the bija), the First Ārya or Āryabhaṭīya, the Original Sūrya, and Brāhma Siddhāntas, and the Siddhānta Śirōmaṇi in the manner described in §§ 146, 147, 153, 158, 162 or 167 A and examples 48 to 59 A of Indian Chronography.

232. The work according to the Second Ārya Siddhānta is precisely similar, but we have to use the Tables A A and B B in the text above instead of any of the other Tables in the text of Indian Chronography. I proceed with an example.

233. We want to know what saṁvatsara began in K. Y. 4380 expired, A.D. 1279-80 according to the Second Ārya Siddhānta. The answer is given by Table XLII below. 18 Tārāpa was current both at apparent and mean Mōsha saṁkrāntis, and therefore in either case gave its name to the solar year; 19 Pārthiva began in the course of the year.

When did Pārthiva begin? and when did it end?

For rough work the following will always suffice, whether we have been calculating by mean or apparent Mōsha saṁkrānti, the time being the same by both. We will work by apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti. Table XXXI C below shows that in the cycle concerned 1 Prabhava began 351 days after Mēsha saṁkrānti, and Table XXXI D shows that in its year 19 Pārthiva began 76 days earlier than did 1 Prabhava; so 19 Pārthiva began (351—76) 275 days after apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti in the given year. We find the time of apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti in that year from the Indian Calendar Table I, i.e. according to the First Ārya Siddhānta, on March 25 on day 84 (Table IX) at about 21 hours after mean sunrise. Call this day 85.¹ Table A A shows the time-difference between the two Siddhāntas, for the 4380 years since K. Y. 0, as being about one hour. This may be ignored. 19 Pārthiva began 275 days later. $275 + 85 = 360$, i.e. (Table IX, Ind. Cal.) 19 Pārthiva began on December 26 A.D. 1279. This suffices for a rough solution of the problem.

For close work we must calculate more carefully. I give here the closest possible according to our available Tables, following the course prescribed above. For the beginning of 19 Pārthiva (Tables XXXI C and D) we have $351 \cdot 4704 - 76 \cdot 1710 = 275 \cdot 2994 =$ (Table XXXVI) 275d. 7h. 11m. 8·16s. after apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti.

Apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti by the First Ārya Siddhānta (Table I, Indian Calendar, and Indian Chronography, "Hint" 20, p. 79) is 84d. 20h. 57m. 30s.

The difference in the śodhya interval between mean and apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti has to be taken into account. The First Ārya Siddhānta fixes this interval as always 2d. 3h. 32m. 30s. But according to the Second Ārya it varies slightly. (See above, Table B B, § 228, and accompanying remarks). The given K. Y. year is 4380. In K. Y. 4000 it was 2d. 4h. 9m. 3·05s. Add for (say) 400 years 8·47s., at the rate of 2·117s. per 100 years and we have the śodhya in the given year by the Second Ārya Siddhānta as 2d. 4h. 9m. 11·52s.

The time-difference between the two authorities (Table A A above, § 227) must also be ascertained. This is, for 4000 years, 56m.; for 300 years, 4m. 12s.; for 80 years, 1m. 7·20s.; total 1h. 1m. 19·20s.

Now we make our calculation.

| | d. | h. | m. | s. |
|---|-----|-----|----|----------|
| First Ārya Siddhānta apparent Mēsha saṁkrānti | ... | 84 | 20 | 57 30 |
| First Ārya Siddhānta śodhya | ... | 2 | 3 | 32 30 |
| First Ārya mean Mēsha saṁkrānti | ... | 87 | 0 | 30 0 |
| Time-difference between First and Second Ārya Siddhānta in K. Y. 4380 | ... | 1 | 1 | 19·20 |
| Second Ārya Siddhānta mean Mēsha saṁkrānti | ... | 87 | 1 | 31 19·20 |
| Second Ārya Siddhānta śodhya | ... | —2 | 4 | 9 11·52 |

360d. = (Table IX, Indian Calendar) December 26.

We have found therefore that 19 Pārthiva according to the Second Ārya Siddhānta, whether based on apparent or mean Mēsha saṁkrānti (§ 231 above) began at 4h. 33m. 15·84s. after mean sunrise on December 26, A.D. 1279.

N.B.—This table is based on Dr. Schram's valuation of the śōdhya in K. Y. O, a mean being taken between his two results (see Indian Chronography, p. 16) obtained by different modes of calculation, viz., 2-171973 days and 2-171972 days. It is taken here as 2-1719725 days. The greatest difference between the śōdhya in K. Y. O and that in K. Y. 5000 amounts to no more than 1m. 48½s., or 0-001225 day.

THE SIXTY-SAMVATSARA CYCLE OF JUPITER.

Mean-sign system by the SECOND ĀRYA SIDDHĀNTA.

The number of days and decimals less than the day given in Table XXXI C by which each samvatsara began after apparent Mēsha samkrānti in its solar year.

No. 6.—SARABHAVARAM PLATES OF THE LORD OF CHIKURA : THE 6TH YEAR.

By T. A. GOPINATHA RAO, M.A., Trivandrum.

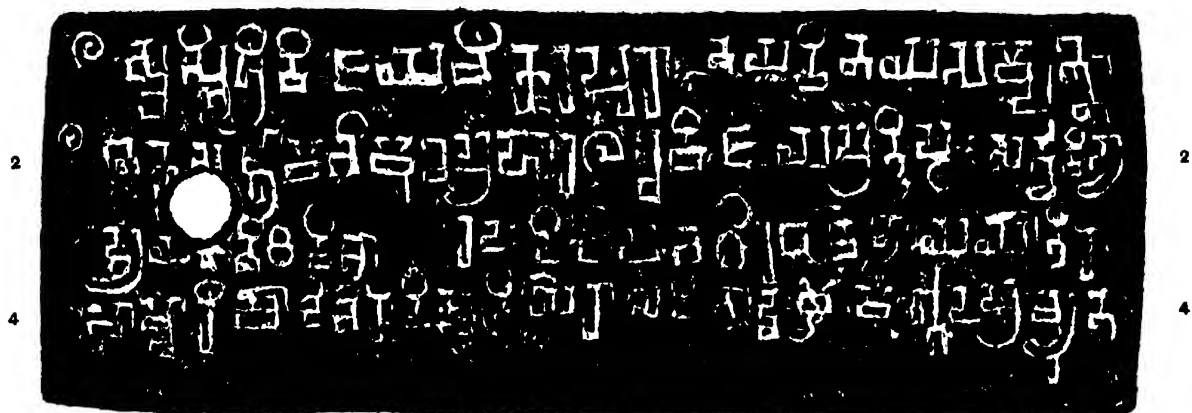

The set of copper-plates on which the subjoined inscription is engraved was secured for me for examination from a friend of his by Mr. J. M. Nallasāmi Pillai, B.A., B.L., District Munsiff, Rajahmundry. Regarding these plates and of the site where they were discovered he writes as follows:—"The exact circumstances under which the copper-plates were found are not known. It is said that they were ploughed up a few years ago near the village of Sarabhavaram some 20 miles north-west of Rajahmundry and 10 miles from the bank of the Gōdāvari. Near the place where the plates were found there appear to be the remains of several brick stūpas of fair size, and about 6 or 7 miles from it towards the Gōdāvari are more stūpas on a hill overlooking a lake known as Nallakōṭa Āva, while on the Rāmdurgam, a lofty hill that dominates the country, are the extensive remains of buildings which seem to have formed part of a monastery."

The set consists of three plates, measuring 6" by 2" and of $\frac{1}{16}$ " thickness; when they came to me, the ring had not been cut; it is a circular ring sealed with a lump of copper in a crude manner, and on this is struck with a die the emblem of the dynasty to which the grantor of the deed belonged; it is a conch shell standing in half relief from a countersunk surface which has a circular border. The conch shell is preserved very well. The ring was cut by me and the impressions were taken under my supervision. It is from these and from the original plates that I now edit the inscription, which is in an excellent state of preservation.

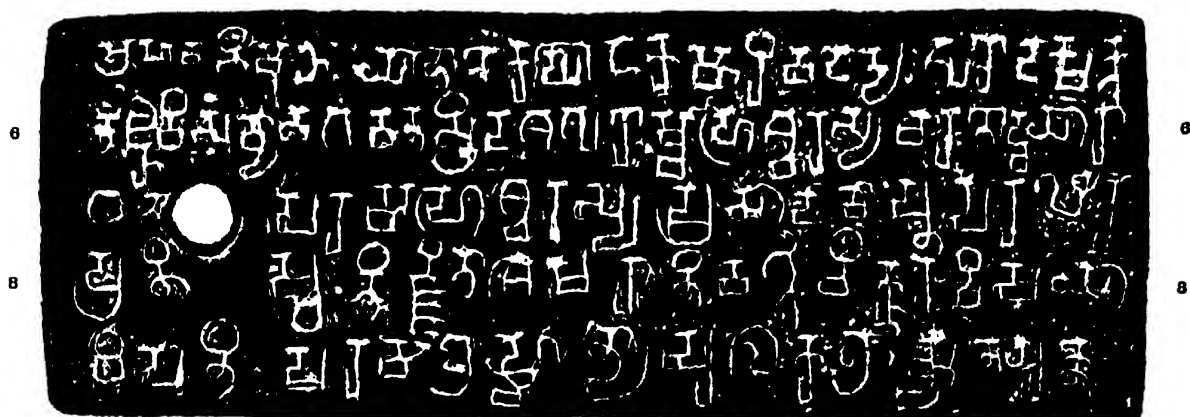

The language of the record is Sanskrit prose. At the end of the inscription are the usual imprecatory verses, three in number. The alphabet closely resembles that of the early Kadamba plates published by Dr. Fleet in Ind. Ant., Vol. VI, of the Kūḍgera plates of Māndhātṛivarmān (above, Vol. VI, pp. 12 ff.) and of the Nilambūr plates (above, Vol. VIII, pp. 146 ff.). The engraver employs both the looped and the curvilinear forms of the consonant t; e.g., the looped form occurs in -Yayāti-, l. 3; -kshatriyai-, l. 4; bhagavatastridaśu-, l. 6; -vāpta-, l. 7; -prati- and -arāti-, l. 8; -ādhipati-, l. 9; grāmyānayukta-, l. 9; -ājñāpayatyastī-, l. 10; ājñāpti-, l. 16; bhavanti-, l. 17; and akshēpta chānumantā-, l. 21; whereas the curvilinear variety is found in svasti in l. 1; -prachyuta-, l. 4; nirjītāśēsha-, l. 8; ta-, l. 14, etc. The letter kha is written in three ways; the usual form occurs in -abhimukha-, l. 2, and the other varieties in -ābhimukhā-, l. 5; and -mukham-, l. 16. Very little difference is made between t and n; compare, for instance, the n and t occurring in nirjītā-, l. 8; -yātānka-, l. 5, etc. Similarly tra in putra-, l. 15, looks more like nra. In the word Yudhishṭhira-, l. 19, both dh and th resemble v. The engraving is executed very carelessly, and there occur many instances of erasure; for instance, there is a well-defined trace of a secondary i over p in -para-, l. 7. The letter sa occurring in risamdhya-, l. 6, has a big dot, which resembles an anusvāra symbol. As in some other inscriptions, the dot evidently intimates that the letter sa has to be dropped as it was inadvertently engraved. There are also several cases of omissions, which are either corrected in the text itself or noticed in the foot-notes. The rules of sandhi are often neglected; some consonants are doubled as in nirjītā-, l. 8; -dharmma-, l. 4; -marggā-, l. 4; -gurōr mmahāśvarasya-, l. 6; -vargga-, l. 8, etc.

The inscription belongs to the reign of a king whose name and dynasty are not mentioned. He is simply described as the lord of Chikura-vishaya. He is said to be possessed of polite manners and modest character, he had gained several victories in battles, was well-versed in all sciences, was following the foot-steps of the early kshatriyas like Dilipa, Bhagiratha, Vaiṇya, Yayāti, Rāma, Ambarisha, etc.; meant death to horses that confronted him in the battlefield; was a great giver (of benefactions, etc.); was a valiant soldier; was skilled in arts; was full of the sense of gratitude; was one who was unassailable; a great devotee of Mahāśvara; and had befitted himself for a seat in heaven, by the grace of Śiva. The inscription records that this king granted the village of Pulaka or Puloka free of all taxes to Harisarmān of the Hārita gōtra, who was a master of two Vēdas, was versed in the performance of sacrificial rites, and was a Vājasaneyin. The record is addressed to the inhabitants of the village granted. The inscription is dated in the 6th year. Thus the record, with neither the name of the king nor the dynasty to which he belonged nor even the time at which he lived, adds nothing to our store of knowledge. Its only importance consists in its palæography.

TRANSLATION.

Om. Hail Prosperity! From the victorious Chikūrapura, the lord of the Chikūra province,—possessed of worldly wisdom and good behaviour; who is famed for victory obtained by blows face to face in many an encounter; who is proficient in all the sciences, in reading the sacred books and in (performing) the rites; who never swerved from the path of virtue followed by the early kshatriyas beginning with Dilpa, Bhagiratha, Vainya, Yayāti, Rāma (and) Ambarīsha; who is the destroyer of many horses that faced (him) in battle; who is generous, brave, dexterous and grateful; who acts according to law; who is intent upon adoring the two feet of the venerable Mahēśvara, the lord of the gods; who through the favour of Mahēśvara has acquired a firm position in the next world and who has conquered the entire host of enemies; who is very hospitable to Brāhmaṇas,—commands as follows the residents and officials of the village of Pulaka:—

The village of Pulokā has been made a gift by us for the enhancement of (our) religious merit, life and fame, exempting it from all taxes, to Hariśarman, who is an expert in the study of two Vēdas, who possesses the sacrificial knowledge, who is intent on performing his duties according to the school of the Vājasanīyins, and who belongs to the Hārta gōtra.

Knowing this, this Brāhmaṇa and (his) sons and grandsons in succession enjoying this village, should not in any way be spoken to by anybody. The ṛkṣipti (has been done by word of my) own mouth. In the year 6 on the 10th day of Pausa. With reference to this there are the following verses:—"Land has been granted by many and been protected by many; whosoever at any time possesses the earth, to him for the time being belongs the reward (of the grant)."

"O! Yudhishtīra! Protect the land, be it a gift of yours or of others; O, highest of the kings! protection is more meritorious than gift." "A giver of land rejoices in heaven for sixty thousand years; he who rescinds and he who approves (of him who rescinds it) both live in hell for the same period."

NOTE ON THE PRECEDING. BY STEN KONOW.

Mr. Gopinatha Rao has compared the alphabet used in the Sarabhapuram grant with the script employed in early Kadamba plates, and others. There cannot be any doubt that he is right in doing so. The alphabet certainly belongs to the so-called "box-headed" variety of Central India. Among the various inscriptions written in this Central Indian script, however, the grants of the Śarabhapura kings are those whose alphabet presents the most striking similarity, as will be immediately apparent to everybody who compares the published facsimile plates.

The inscriptions of the Śarabhapura dynasty which have so far been published are the following :—

1. The Āraṅg copper-plate grant of Mahā-Jayarāja,¹ issued from Śarabhapura in the fifth year and recording the grant of the village of Paimvā in the Pūrvarāshṭra ;

2. The Khariār (properly Nahnā) copper-plate grant of Mahā-Sudēva,² issued from Śarabhapura in the second year and recording the grant of the villages Navannaka and Śambilaka in the Kshitimaṇḍāhara ;

3. The Raipur copper-plate grant of Mahā-Sudēva,³ issued from Śarabhapura in the tenth year and recording the grant of Śrisāhikā in Pūrvarāshṭra.

4. The Sārangarh copper-plate grant of Mahā-Sudēva,⁴ issued from Śarabhapura, and recording the grant of Chullandāraka in the Tuṇḍaraka bhukti. The last plate of this grant, which must have contained the date, has not been recovered.

We do not know whether Mahā-Jayadēva preceded or succeeded Mahā-Sudēva, and we do not know anything about the ancestors of these two kings. The legend on the seal of the Khariār plate runs,— Prāsann-arṇava-sambhūta-Mānamātr-ēndu-janmanah śrīmat-Sudēvarājasya sthīraṁ jagati [śasanam].

I have inferred⁵ from this legend that Sudēva's father was Mānamātra, and his grandfather perhaps Prasanna, and that Mānamātra might perhaps be identical with Mānāṅka, "the ornament of the Rāshtrakūṭas" mentioned in the Uṇḍikavāṭikā, copper-plates of Abhimanyu.⁶ These identifications are however very problematic, and we do not, in reality, know anything about these kings.

The years mentioned in the inscriptions are regnal years and do not help us to fix their date. On palaeographical grounds, however, we may assign them to the 8th century A.D.

The localities mentioned in the grants of the Śarabhapura kings cannot all be identified. Such of them as have been traced, however, all belong to the Raipur and Bilāspur districts of the Central Provinces.

Navannaka of the Khariār grant is almost certainly⁷ the present Nahnā, the actual find place of the plates, three miles south of Khariār, and Śambilaka of the same grant is perhaps the neighbouring San Doil. The Kshitimaṇḍāhara must consequently comprise the southern portion of the present Raipur District.

Tuṇḍaraka of the Sārangarh grant has been identified by Mr. Hira Lal⁸ with the present Tūṇḍrā, about six miles south of Seorī Nārāyan on the Mahānadi, and belonging to the Balodā Bāzār tahsil of the Raipur District. The Tuṇḍaraka bhukti would accordingly correspond to the northern portion of the Raipur District.

Mr. Hira Lal⁹ has further identified Śrisāhikā of the Raipur grant with the present Sirsāhī, likewise in the Balodā Bāzār tahsil and about 25 miles south-west of Tūṇḍrā, and finally Paimvā of the Āraṅg grant with the present Pāmgarh, 21 miles north of Tūṇḍrā in the Jānjgir tahsil of the Bilāspur District. The Pūrvarāshṭra would accordingly include the Tuṇḍaraka bhukti.

Mr. Hira Lal has inferred¹⁰ from this state of things that the Śarabhapura kings held sway over a large portion of the present Chhattisgarh Division, and stated as his opinion that they ousted the kings of Sirpur, old Sripura, in the Mahāsamunda tahsil of the Raipur District. He suggests that Śarabhapura "may perhaps have been a new name imposed on the conquered city of Śrīpura by the victor, from the fabulous animal of that name (i.e. śarabha), who is believed to be a match for a lion, with reference to the claim of the Sirpur dynasty to be Kēsarins (lions)." I do not think that he has succeeded in making this latter supposition likely, because the Sirpur stone inscription of Mahāśivagupta¹ seems to belong to about 800 A.D., i.e. it is not much later than the grants of the Śarabhapura kings, and Mahāśivagupta's father and grandfather and probably also more of his ancestors seem to have ruled in Sirpur.

Other identifications of Śarabhapura have been suggested by Cunningham,² who thought that it might be either Ārvi in the Wardha District or Sambalpur in the Sambalpur District. None of these identifications are however likely, and the exact position of Śarabhapura has still to be found.

Now the only inscription which has so far been found in an alphabet almost identical with that of the Śarabhapura grants has been found in a place called Śarabhavaram. It has been issued, not by a king, but by a vishayādhipati; it is dated in the same way as the Śarabhapura grants, with mention of a regnal year, a month and a day, and the seal shows the representation of a conch, as is also the case in the Śarabhapura grants.³ It is tempting to infer that the Śarabhavaram grant was issued by a dependent of the Śarabhapura kings, and that Śarabhapura is the present Śarabhavaram.

With regard to the modern village of Śarabhavaram I have consulted the Collector of the Godavari District, who has been good enough to inform me that the village Śarabhavaram is situated in the Chōḍavaram Division, ten miles east from the bank of the Godavari and twenty miles north-west from Rajahmundry. Its popular name is Śarabāram. A ruined temple is said to have been in existence near the village some fifty years ago.

According to information kindly furnished by Rao Sahib Krishna Sastri similar village names occur in other places in the neighbourhood. Thus there is a village Śarabhavaram in the Peddapuram tāluka of the Godavari District, a Śarabhapuram in the Ellore tāluka (now joined to the Kistna District), a Sarabhavaram in the Golconda tāluka of the Vizagapatam District. It would be a likely conclusion that a town with a similar name did exist in former times in the neighbourhood.

However it is not at present possible to go beyond loose guesses. It will be necessary to wait for new materials. In the meantime the possibility should be kept in view that the town Śarabhapura, from which Jayadēva and Sudēva issued their grants, should be looked for not in Raipur or its immediate neighbourhood, but farther to the south.

To return to the Śarabhavaram plates, they do not appear to have been issued by a ruling prince, but by a governor of a district, a vishayādhipati. I suppose that this title is nothing more than the usual vishayapati. The year given in l. 16 is then probably the regnal year of the overlord of the vishayādhipati.

The grant was issued from Chikūrapura, l. 1, by the adhipati of the Chikūra-vishaya. Mr. Gopinatha Rao corrects the latter to Chikāra-vishaya. We cannot, however, make any positive statement about the correct form of the name. There is an uninhabited village Chidugūru ten miles north-west of Chōḍavaram. It seems however difficult to identify it with Chikūra, if the form given in the District Gazetteer is the correct one.

The village granted was Pulaka, l. 9, or Puloka, l. 14, which should be looked for in the Chōḍavaram Division.

No. 7.—TWO TALESVARA COPPERPLATES.

By Y. R. GÜPTE, B.A., LAHORE.

These two copperplates¹ were brought to light by Mr. C. E. D. Peters, I.C.S., Deputy Commissioner, Almora. They were discovered at Talēśvara in the Almora District, U. P., at something less than one foot below the surface, while digging the foundations for an ordinary terrace wall, and they were forwarded to the Superintendent, Hindu and Buddhist Monuments, Northern Circle. I owe the opportunity of editing the inscriptions for the first time to the latter officer, who handed the plates over to me for decipherment.

The plate A measures roughly $1' 4\frac{3}{8}"$ in length and fluctuates between $11\frac{5}{8}"$ and $1' 1\frac{3}{8}"$ in breadth, and the plate B is roughly $1' 3\frac{3}{8}"$ in length and $11\frac{1}{8}"$ in breadth. Each of the plates has an oval seal soldered to it, containing the same legend in four lines and besides several symbols separated from the legend by a straight line. Above it is a bull recumbent, the head turned right over the left shoulder. Before it appears what is either a fish or a tortoise and below the latter a garuḍa. Behind it is a symbol that I am unable to identify. All these representations as well as the legend are in relief and surmounted by a hooded cobra (nāga). The plate A with its seal weighs $11\frac{1}{2}$ lbs., and the plate B with its seal $10\frac{3}{4}$ lbs. The plates are not very thick and the letters show through on the reverse. On the whole, however, they are deeply and well engraved. Their edges are not rimmed, and the inscriptions, therefore, lack protection. Each of the grants bears 28 lines.

The alphabet of the seals has many characteristics in common with the Gupta one; but that of the plates is much later.² The anusvāra is generally denoted by a big circle above the consonant. The sign of punctuation is a horizontal curve. It is six times used in plate A, in ll. 4, 16, 22, 26, 27 and 28; and eight times in plate B, viz. once in l. 2, once in l. 13, once in l. 18, once in l. 20, twice in l. 21 and once in l. 25. The numerical symbols for 5 and 30 occur in plate A, l. 28, and those for 20, 8 and 5 in plate B, l. 28.

The language is somewhat ungrammatical Sanskrit. Even the usual benedictive and imprecatory verses are not correctly quoted and are left incomplete, so much so that they can hardly be called verses. Practically, therefore, both of the inscriptions are in prose.

With regard to orthography we may note that v has throughout been written for b; that the class naṣṭi is commonly used before mutes, and that an s-sound before an s-sound is usually replaced by the visarga, though we occasionally find writings such as -grāmakis=sa-, A 20. Doubling of consonants after r is the rule; thus Karṇakāṭa-, A 17; -varggam=, B 8; -ārch-chana-, A 9; -śānmārjjan-, A 9; -karṇa-, B 14; -gartā-, A 17, 18; -bhūtair=dlatti-, A 10; -arddha-, B 24; -śūrppyaṁ, A 21; -karmmāntaḥ, A 23; parvat-ākara-, A 4, B 6, etc. There is of course no doubling in the case of h or the sibilants, and, curiously, a y is never doubled after r; compare -kuryāt=, A 26. There are also some few cases in which the doubling has not taken place where we would expect to find it; compare -ārtham, A 9; -smābhir=bhakti-, B 12. On the whole, however, it is quite consistent. A k and a-t are often doubled before r; thus kkraya-, A 15; yattra, A 14. There are, however, several exceptions to this rule; compare kshētra, B 13, at the side of kshētra, B 14, 15, etc.

There are several mistakes in the spelling. Thus we find ā for a in -dśvyādhastāt=, B 21; a for ā and ri for ṛi in kriṣṇahayā, B 27; t for n in -tagarapati-, A 5; tā for trā in yata, B 13; t for h in yat-kuryāt=, A 26; n for t in tan-nanayā, B 5; p for śh in -pupp-, A 9; ś for g in -Aśnivarmma, B 4; ś for p in Saurava-, A 2; ss for s in -rūpassya, B 3. In -dāṇḍa- vāsika-, A 5, on the other hand, the v is probably not miswritten, but we have to do with a Prākṛita form. Cf. Vogel, Antiquities of Chamba State, Part I, p. 129. Other Prākṛita forms are pratipāditukās, A 11; pramātāra, A 4, 27; B 7, 28.

The rules of sandhi are constantly neglected; compare -pattraś abhi-, A 11; Kārttikēya-purē Ativalākapallikā Viśakḥilapallikā arishṭāśramah avalinakah, A 23; Rajaputtraka-Oddālakarvatakō, Paśchima-Drōṇyān Udumvaravāsah, A 24; Vishnudāsēna utkīrṇāny-, A 28; chakkradharaḥ iva, B 5; cha anēn=aiva, B 25; Dhanadattēna ukṭīrṇān=cha, B 28.

In plate B there are several compounds ending in vāpam, such as Vajra-sthala-kshētra-kulya-vāpam, B 13; kshētra-āshṭa-drōṇa-vāpam, B 14; Madhyamāraka-kshētra-chaturddāśa-drōṇa-vāpam, B 15; Kapilēśvara-nāmadhēya-kshētra-kulya-vāpam, Nandikēṛaka-kshētra-shaḍ-drōṇa-vāpam, B 16; Paḍḍavaka-jāṅgala-kulya-vāpam, B 17; Dēvaka-tōlī-paṇcha-drōṇa-vāpam, B 17; Rajaka-sthala-kshētra-shaḍ-drōṇa-vāpam, B 17; Dēvaka-ānāpa-kshētra-khāri-vāpam, B 18; Vaḍra-kshētra-āshṭa-drōṇa-vāpam, B 19; Parvatāra-kshētra-khāri-vāpam, B 20; Dēvaka-kshētra-āshṭa-drōṇa-vāpam, B 20; Kēdāra-kulya-vāpam, B 21; kshētra-kulya-vāpam, B 22; Śrētō-kshētra-paṇcha-drōṇa-vāpam, B 24; Vēṭasa-kulya-vāpa-nāmadhēyam, B 25. Instead of vāpa we find vāpikā in Kēdāra-dvi-drōṇa-vāpikā, B 21. It will be seen that vāpa is always preceded by a word denoting a measure. A compound such as kulya-vāpa must mean "a plot where a kulya of seed can be sown or is required," and we can translate Vajra-sthala-kshētra-kulya-vāpam, a, or, the kulya-plot of the sthala-kshētra of Vajra. Almost the same meaning could accordingly be conveyed by using two words, Vajrasthalakshētram kulya-vāpam. Compare Mālavaka-kshētram khārivāpam, B 13, etc.

Both the grants purport to have been issued from Vra(Bra)hmapura, one by the Paramabhaddhāraka Mahārājādhirāja śrī-Dyutivarmman, for the purpose of observing the balī, charu, suttra and the bath with curds, milk and ghṛ and for worshipping with perfumes, incense, lamps and flowers, for sweeping, besmearing and ploughing, and for all sorts of repairs, with reference to the feet of Vīrapēśvara-svāminātha, and the other by the Paramabhaddhāraka, the Mahārājādhirāja śrī Vishnuvarmman, for the continuance of the great sacrificial seasons. Both grants profess simply to sanction previous gifts.

The present seals are gilded and appear to be casts from the originals and not authentic. The plates, also, I understand to be forgeries.

I believe that the seals are forgeries, as—

(1) there are evident signs to show that the damaged letters seem to be the result of bad casting from an original seal. This can especially be marked in the case of the fifth and the sixth letters in line 3 of the seal attached to the plate A and the first letter in line 4 of that soldered to the plate B, which have not come out.

(2) the seal of plate A is much larger than that of plate B, though the measurements of the inscriptions, the figure of the bull and the objects in front and behind it, and even the marginal oval line are the same; the surrounding ornaments of raised bosses are not the same in each case, there being 54 in plate A and 48 in plate B, and the outer shape is different.

(3) the seal of plate A shows signs of bad workmanship, as if it were a first experiment. The knobbed ring on the seal is not cleverly joined and the rough portion at its edges gives ample room to suggest that it has not been cast at the royal foundry, but is a forged cast from the original seal.

The seal of plate B is more cleverly done and would probably have escaped detection for a time but for (1) the first letter in the fourth line and (2) the soldering to a wrong plate through ignorance.

(4) though bearing one and the same legend, the two seals have been applied to forged grants, alleged to have been issued by two different kings, and

(5) they are of inferior copper, and perhaps gilded to escape detection of forgery.

I believe also that the plates are forgeries on the following grounds :—

(1) The genealogy of the dynasty given in the seals does not agree with that given in the plates. In the seals it begins with Vishnuvarmman, while in the plates it commences with Agnivarman (miswritten Asnivarman in B). Even if we grant that it is not necessary to begin with the same king, we at least expect that the grantor, the son of Agnivarman, should have the same name in the two genealogies. Now, whatever the correct reading of the name of the last king mentioned in the second line of the seals may be, it cannot be Dyutivarman, the name given in both plates.

(2) In plate A, l. 2, the words Srī-Purūrah-prabhṛity-avichchhidyamāna-Saurava-rāja-rāmśō occur, where Saurava is evidently a mistake instead of Paurava. Now the royal officers are especially particular at the time of handing over such important documents intended to be seen by the public and officers of succeeding kings, and would scarcely overlook such a blunder about the descent of the grantor.

(3) The plates do not give us any definite information regarding any of the kings mentioned, not even the ruling one, by which we can test the statements in them. In line 11 of plate A it is asserted that the original grants have been burnt and that bad persons under the evil influence of the Kali age might, in course of time, raise objections. In plate B also reference is made to such an eventuality.

(4) The present grants purport to confirm some previous ones, at one stroke, without mentioning the kings by whom they were made, and without saying whether a reference was made to the official records, for the purpose of verification. The scantiness of records from the fourth to the eighth or the ninth century is probably to be accounted for by the disorderly state of things that existed in the province from which the plates come, and forgeries, it might have been thought, were not very likely to be detected. The plates were engraved by one and the same person, as can be seen from his name in line 28 of both of them. It was easier to get one person to forgo them than to engage the services of two, and the goldsmith Ananta was sought for, perhaps because he was known for his skill.

(5) In B 27 we find the following quotation from Vyāsa, Vṛndhy ātaviśhv=atōyāsu sushka-kōṭaravāsinaḥ. The quotation is neither complete nor accurate. The words krishṇahuyō bhi(hi) jāyantē ya ākshēpam kuryāt-sa pañcha-mahāpātaka-sahyuktah syād are put as an independent clause and not as Vyāsa's words, and also contain two bad mistakes. We expect such complete verses, or, at least, such abridged sentences as we find in other grants.

In plate A there are a few mistakes at the beginning, but many blunders at the close. This is probably due to the carelessness of the engraver or the writer, who thought that he was not likely to commit any mistake in the stereotyped wording, and so, most probably, wrote without consulting some authentic plates or their copies regarding the quotations.

(6) The writer seems to be more careful about the description of the property granted than about formal matters and information about the grantor and his ancestors. He is extremely careful in enumerating the various plots of land granted. But he is hardly aware that these enumerations are of little value, if the grants do not emanate from the proper persons, and that, however careful he may be to try to deceive others, there are certain indications which generally go to prove a forgery.

(7) In A 3 we read the name Agnivarman, instead of which B 4 has Asnivarman. The difference is perhaps due to the difficulty in reading the first name of the second line of the seals, which has not come out clearly. If this be so, it would show that the plates must have been forged when the correct name of the king had been forgotten. This would presuppose an interval of at least 200 years between his time and that of the forging of the grants, and this well agrees with epigraphical evidence.

(8) The responsible Dātaka would scarcely have passed over a blunder regarding the name of the king from whom the grantor claimed descent.

(9) The misreading of the real name of the king in the second line of the seal from which the present casts have been obtained by the forger, or rather in the casts themselves, sufficiently accounts for the invention of the name Dyutivarmman or the substitution of a later Dyutivarmman for a former king, if we take it for granted that the forgers (or, at least one of them) could read the inscription. It is interesting to note that the first letter of the doubtful name looks like d, though the cast may not be a faithful reproduction of the original.

(10) In the seals the grantor is said to be of the Lunar lineage, while in the plates he is represented as descended from the Lunar as well as the Solar race. This is a very grave objection since a perfect harmony in the descent claimed is quite necessary.

The only point which remains to be explained is why the seals were soldered on to the plates, if the genealogy itself differed. This is the difficulty which is likely to beset us. I would make two suggestions. Two casts were obtained of an original seal, which was in the possession of the real owner or some other person. But the original plate was not available, or could not be lent, or more probably was lost or really burnt as mentioned in the forged plates. So a new draft that would suit the circumstances was prepared by a scribe and given to the goldsmith Ananta. There was probably some difficulty about the names of the kings mentioned in the second line of the seals, and the forgers had not the opportunity of verifying them or of consulting the original plate or the official records. The name of a king Dyutivarmman, the son of a king Agnivarmman, of whose name they were not certain, was known. His son Vishnuvarmman was well-known. So these were the data. The forgers engraved one plate in the name of Dyutivarmman, and the other in that of Vishnuvarmman, probably thinking that, if the authenticity of one was called in question, the other might be produced as evidence; but as they had misgivings about the names of the kings they altogether gave up the idea of soldering the casts to the plates. These might have been with the person or the community of trustees who claimed the ownership. But his or their descendants, who were unable to decipher the inscriptions, possibly thinking that there were two seals corresponding to the two plates, and also considering that they formerly might have belonged to them, got them soldered. Perhaps they did this in the vain hope that the seals might be taken as evidence of the issue of the former grants, said to be burnt. Or (2) some of the forgers of the plates, who were unable to read the inscription of the seals and who were unaware of the contradiction (not being taken into close confidence as regards how the genealogy and other actual details were to be arranged), might have soldered them to the plates later on, not caring to consult the scribe or the engraver. Other explanations are not impossible. Whatever the fact might have been, it is quite clear that the inscriptions on the plates contradict the legend of the seals. Had these latter been authentic, it might have been possible to suppose that they were applied to these grants later on through ignorance. But I have shown that the present seals are only casts of the original and the contradiction in genealogy and other details preclude the possibility of the plates being genuine. In spite of this I shall show below that they are of considerable importance.

I assign the seal (the original one) to about the latter half of the fifth century on the following grounds:—

(1) The lower parts of the right hand verticals of ga, sa and ka are about double the length of the aksharas without verticals.¹

¹ Vide Dr. Bühler's Indian Paleography, ed. by J. F. Fleet, Bombay, pp. 47 f.

(2) We find the guttural na before sa in line 4 and perhaps before ha in line 2, if we adopt the reading Harshavarmmanā[h*].

(3) The third horizontal line of ja slants downwards.

(4) The ancient dot is replaced by a cross-bar in the case of tha in line 3.

(5) The transitional form of ya, with the loop, though not quite like the later ones, occurs.

(6) The right hand portion of sa and pa shows an acute angle.

But the inscription can hardly be much later than about the second quarter of the fifth century since,

(1) the lower parts of ta and bha are not lengthened and thus they retain the older forms,

(2) the left limb of sa is more or less archaic, and

(3) on the whole the letters show similarity to the Gupta alphabets of the later half of the fourth century.

The letter na does not admit of severe scrutiny as it is a little damaged to the right in all the places where it occurs in this inscription.

The letter na has not a knob, as in the case in the Gupta alphabet, and it is much like ta, the only difference between na and ta being that the former is more acute-angled, while the latter is much more curved at the middle.

To turn to the plates. The alphabet is of the northern type, evidently later than the Gupta one, and is in a transitional form, approaching the acute-angled.¹ The letters slope from right to left. Those worth noticing are: u, ka (when not forming a member of a conjunct consonant), tha, dha, na, ma, ya (when not a member of a conjunct consonant), va, and sa, and, to a certain extent, bha.

U which occurs in utkirāṇ-, A 28, B 28, looks like the u of the Mahānāman inscription. Ka has a loop to the left such as is generally observable in the latter half of the sixth and the first half of the seventh century and resembles that of the Mahānāman and Lakṣhāmaṇḍal inscriptions; cf. ś.g. sakala-, A 1, B 1. Tha is like that of the Maukhari and Lakṣhāmaṇḍal ones; cf. -nātha-, A 8. Dha and na are of the same type. Dha occurs, e.g., in -dharāṇi-dharāṇa-yōgya-dhārāṇa-dhārāṇa, B 2. Na has a loop, cf. -bhuvana-, B 1. Ma has the same shape as e.g. in the Yaśodharman inscription of A.D. 532; cf. -maṇi-, B 2. Ya has the tripartite form, when it is not a member of a conjunct consonant; cf. naya-vinaya-, B 5. Again ka, cha, ja, tha, da, ṇa, pa, bha, la, sa, and tya are exactly like those in the plates of the time of Śaśāṅka-rāja of Gupta Samvat 300, though ra, when not forming a member of a conjunct consonant, and ya differ.

The plates, therefore, when we take into consideration all these circumstances appear to have been forged some time between the middle of the sixth and the second quarter of the seventh century. Leaving a sufficient margin, we may assume that the forgeries were made between the sixth and the eighth centuries A.D.

The casts and the plates, though forged, are of value, since we have hardly any record from about the fourth to the eighth or ninth century, issued by or concerning the ruling dynasties in the Garhwal and Almora Districts. The casts of the seal are more valuable than the plates, since they appear to be taken from a genuine seal, which supplies us with the names of some hitherto unknown kings. As regards the genealogy of these kings and other general information, the plates are only as much reliable as our bakhars in the Deccan and are of little more value than legends. Still they give many names of cities, villages and fields, which are of much geographical and historical interest, as they hardly can be due to the fancy of the scribe. The places evidently bore the names mentioned when the plates were forged, and some of them we can identify with confidence. The record clearly has reference to Garhwal and the Katyur valley of the Almora District and perhaps to the Katyuri Rājās. Other inscriptions that we may discover will probably throw some light on localities. But the present ones are of no little value. We have the expression Paruvata-kara-rājyē in line 4 of plate A and in line 6 of plate B, which means the kingdom filled by mountains. This description suits Garhwal very well. Of course some tract of land, specially the Katyur valley, which forms part of the present Almora District, must have been included in the kingdom. The boundaries of it must have exceeded it. The name Garhwal itself has been derived from giry-āvali, row of mountains. The name Kēdāra of fields we find twice in line 21 of plate B. Garhwal is known as Kēdāra-bhūmi or Kēdāra-khaṇḍa from very early times and we should naturally first look to that district for the places. Of course this is only circumstantial evidence, because by itself it proves little. But it is a link in the chain. We meet with the word Gōmati-sāryān in line 15 of plate B. Sāri occurs in line 20 in the inscription from Paṇḍukēśvara near Badrināth. It must evidently be derived from the causal of sri to flow, and on comparing these records we can say with confidence that it means 'bed' or 'valley.' So we are justified in taking Gōmati as the name of the river. The other river of which mention has been made is Pitrigaṅgā. But I cannot find it in the maps of the Garhwal and the Almora Districts. It cannot, however, be very far from the river Gōmati. The reference to two rivers in the inscription gives us a clue. Following the above line of argument, I am at this stage able to identify Kārttikēyapura and to suggest some tentative identifications.

The mention of Kārttikēyapura is very interesting and important. We know that it lay in the valley of the Gōmati and near the present village of Baijnāth.¹ Our record confirms this. Again it is believed that the Katyuri rājās found there the ruins of an old town named Karbirpur and used the materials for rebuilding the temple of Kārttikēya and also for constructing wells, reservoirs and bazars. Now in plate A we meet with the name Karavira-garttā in l. 18, which is, possibly, identical with Karbirpur.

Brahmapura, the capital mentioned in A 1 and B 1, I am much inclined to think with General Cunningham² was Lakhanpur or somewhere near it. One Brahmapura no doubt has been satisfactorily identified by Dr. Vogel³ with Brahmor in the Chamba State. But that is too far off and does not suit our record.

Kōllapuri, A 18, is most probably the present Kolapuri. Suvarṇnakāra-pallikā, A 20, may perhaps be Sonal, and Bhaṭṭi-pallikā, A 22, Bhetī. Sādhutungakagrāma, B 14, is perhaps Tuṅgēśvara itself. Sādhu is simply an attributive meaning 'well' or 'good,' and grāmā is equivalent to modern gāw, village, while ka is only a diminutive termination. Jyōrāpā, A 16, is probably represented by Jyura or Jolā. Bhēla(mastaka), A 18, may be Bhēla. Kapila-garttā, A 17, is in all likelihood Kaplēsvara itself or somewhere near it; Karkkōṭa, A 18, Garkhōt; Nandikērakakshētra, B 16, Nandikēsari, and Lavanōḍaka, B 16, Lavanasari or Lavanī.

It is perhaps worth noting that only the first king mentioned in l. 2 of the inscription on the seal, viz. Agnivarmman, has sri, illustrious, attached to his name, while the other names are without this epithet. Apparently Agnivarmman was a monarch of some importance.

The first inscription purports to be dated the 30th day of the month of Pausa of the 5th year of the reign, and the second the 5th day of the month of Mārggaśīrṣa of the 28th year of the reign. These dates, however, cannot be verified, and it is not possible to give the corresponding English equivalents.

The dātaka (messenger for the conveyance of the grant) in plate A is said to be the pramātāra Sūryadatta, the officer entrusted with the (arrangement of) peace and war; and the writer the divirapati Viṣṇudāsa; and the dātaka in plate B the pramātāra Varāhadatta and the writer the divirapati Dhanadatta. The engraver of both the grants was the goldsmith Ananta.

The accompanying plates have been prepared from excellent estampages supplied by Mr. H. Hargreaves, Superintendent, Hindu and Buddhist Monuments, Northern Circle, and the seals have been reproduced from photographs of plaster casts kindly taken by Mr. Rājārām Hari Sōjavalkar, Modelling Teacher, Mayo School of Art, Lahore.

I am far from being certain about the reading of the legend of the seals. What I can make out reads as follows:—

- 1 Viṣṇuvarmma-prapō(pau)ttrasya pō(pau)ttrasya Vṛishavarmmaṇa[h*]
- 2 śry-Agnivarmma-sutasya-cha śāsana[m*] Dvijavarmmaṇa[h*]¹
- 3²-nuggrah-ārthhāya sādhu-saṁrakṣaṇāya cha
- 4 Somavaṇś-ōdbhavō rājā jayaty-amita-vikrama[h*]

This legend I might translate,

‘Here is the charter of Dvijavarman, the great grandson of Viṣṇuvarman, the grandson of Vṛishavarman, and the son of the glorious Agnivarman. May the king, born of the lineage of the Moon, whose prowess cannot be measured, be victorious, for the purpose of favouring . . . , and of protecting the good ones.’

TRANSLATION.

Hail! From Brahmapura, comparable to the city of Purāṇḍara (Indra).

(Ll. 1-3) (There lived) the illustrious Agnivarmman, who was descended from the Moon and the Sun; who wished the welfare of cows and Brāhmins; of the illustrious royal lineage of the Pauravas,¹ uninterrupted as far as Purūravas; who like Fire burnt down the dry grass in the shape of his enemies; who meditated on the lotus-like feet of the lord, the holy Virapēśvarn, the incarnation of Ananta, whose thousand hoods were the base of the world, carrying the great load of the circle of the earth, and spreading good qualities.

(Ll. 3-6) His son, the illustrious Dyutivarmman, who obtained the greatness of royalty through the favour of his feet; who takes away the lustre of his brilliant foes like a second sun; the Paramabhāṭṭāraka, the Mahārājādhirāja, being in good health, in his kingdom filled with mountain,² pays respects to the excellent kings of my line, enquires about the welfare of the prefect of police,³ the pramātāra,⁴ the warder, the councillor of the king, being the heir-apparent,⁵ the masters of elephants, horses, armour,⁶ marts, cooks, cities and districts, land-holders, landlord-owners,⁷ police officers,⁸ the *kaṭukas*⁹ and other dependents and all neighbouring householders, the local heads of all the provinces and others, and then issues these orders:

(Ll. 6-13) Let it be known to you that, whereas the following request has been made by the solitary lord Trēta, the master of the sacrificial sessions who superintends the procession of the idols, who is endowed with political wisdom, breeding, learning, and good behaviour, accompanied by recluses, brahmachārins, and the congregation of the Ganggulikas,¹⁰ and further by the temple congregation, preceded by royal doorkeepers, the attendants of the sacred fire, the kāraṅkikas,¹¹ the superintendent of the female (temple) slaves, the minister Bhadraviṣṇu, "For the purpose of continuing the bali, charu and sattra; for the bathing with curds, milk and ghi, the worshipping with perfumes, incense, lamps, and flowers; for the observing of sweeping, besmearing and ploughing; for the repair of dilapidated, broken, and fallen parts, at the feet of the lord Virapēśvara-svāmin, the incarnation of Ananta, who is worthy of being praised by gods, demons, and the world, grants referring to land, hamlets, villages and crafts, have, after having inscribed them on copperplates, cloth and vrishatāpa-plates,¹² been granted, for the sake of their spiritual welfare, by your ancestors, the great kings, whose vow was the fixed observance of doing good to others, by other kings, and by givers of gifts, who were the means of production of many charitable acts. Those grants have been burnt by fire; and after lapse of time some greedy and bad persons, being beset by the evil influence of the Kali age, might lay hands on (those gifts), if there be no written record. So your Majesty may be pleased, in giving sanction to (the existing) grants, to get written specifically the dimensions and the names of the places that are being enjoyed;"

³ daṇḍāparika is probably some police officer.

⁴ Cf. Professor Vogel, Antiquities of Chamba State, Part I, p. 122.

⁷ Bhāgika, those who are in possession of land; bhāgika, owners of land. Cf. Vogel, loc. cit., p. 130.

⁸ About the form dāṇḍavāṣika, cf. Vogel, loc. cit., p. 129.

⁹ With regard to the word kaṭuka I made a reference to the learned Prof. V. V. Sovani, M.A., of the Meerut College. He thinks that it might mean a sect of the Jains. As far as I know, that sect flourished later. Again, a reference to the Jains in particular is not very probable. Kaṭukas apparently mean any persons (officers, members of a religious assembly not generally held in respect at the time, etc.) who were disagreeable to the public. But who these were in particular I cannot say with confidence.

¹² Vrishatāpa apparently signifies some mixture of copper and another metal. According to l. 14 the present grant was incised on vrishatāpa.

(Ll. 13-14) therefore I have given this charter on vrishatāpa, out of devotion for the god, and for the increase of the religious merit of preceding royal saints and of myself.

TRANSLATION.

(Line 1) Hail! From Vra(Bra)hmapura, the best of the cities.

(Ll. 1-4) (There lived) the Paramabhaṭṭāraka, the Mahārājādhirāja, the illustrious Agnivarman,¹ who meditated on the lotus-like feet of the adorable Lord Virapṛṣvara, in the form of the king of Snakes, observing concentration capable of supporting the earth; who reddens the surface of the lower region by the rays of the collection of the jewels growing about the array of the expanded hoods, large and wide as the surface of the earth; the excellence of whose power is without beginning, unknowable, unthinkable, wonderful, elevated, and extensive; the incarnation of Ananta; who causes the apportioning of existence and destruction of the whole world; (Agnivarman) who was the lamp of the house of the high family descended from the Moon and the Sun; whose power had been increased for the purpose of favouring all his subjects;

(Ll. 4-5) His son (was) the Mahārājādhirāja, the illustrious Dyutivarmman, who obtained (his) vast kingdom through the favour of his (his father's) feet, who had destroyed the lustre of the grass in the form of his enemies, backed by formidable allies.

(Ll. 5-9) His son, the Paramabhaṭṭāraka, the Mahārājādhirāja, the illustrious Vishṇu-varmman, who is, as it were, the embodiment of the qualities, political wisdom, breeding, bravery, fortitude, steadiness, gravity, magnanimity; who relieves the sufferings of the poor, like the wielder of the disc (Vishṇu); who is much devoted to his father, who has gained happiness, strength and vigour, in the kingdom filled by mountains, pays respects to the future godlike eminent kings, the ornament of our family, whose forms will be shining owing to the royal splendour, and then issues these orders to the host of dependants, the police officer, the pramātāra, the warder, the councillor of the king, being heir-apparent, the master of the elephants, the master of the horse, and further to householders, land-holders, land-owners, the karikas,² the kulachārikas,³ the chiefs, and others:—

(Ll. 9-13) Let it be known to you that, whereas we have been requested by the temple congregation headed by Trāta, Bhāripati Śarmman, and the congregation of the Gauggulikas, together with the officials, (in the following words):—

"May your Majesty be pleased to do the favour of issuing a copperplate to perpetuate the memory by specifying the names of the land given, for the increase of your religious merit and fame, since some bad persons, being possessed of greed consequent on the evil influence of the Kali age, may in the course of time lay their hands on the pieces of land in all the places that have been obtained in good manner from liberal donors, and that have been enjoyed and are being enjoyed without interruption,"

Therefore this sanctioning grant has been given by us, our heart being filled with devotion, regarding the plots (granted) and for the purpose of continuing the great sacrificial sessions.

(Ll. 13-26) In which (grants are included), of the elevated field of Vajra, the plot in which a *kulya*⁴ can be sown at Stambhasaṅkṛtikā; to its east the field Indukka-sūnā, near it

³ Kulachārika is perhaps the head of a kula.

the field Mālavaka in which one *khāri*¹ of seed is required, and more, together with the jungle, a plot of field in which 8 drōṇas of seed are required, in the lower part of the village Sadhutuṅga; Champakatoli and the Dēvakyakarnṇakas at Pāṭalikarāmaka; fields of Madhyamāraka in which 14 drōṇas of seed are required, the gift of the weaver of silk, the field of Sēmmaka, where 14 drōṇas of seed are required, of the field called Kapilēśvara the plot in which one kulya of seed is required, (all) at the bed of the river *Gōmati*² and near the temple of the God Brahmēśvara; the plot of the field Nandikāraka in which 6 drōṇas of seed are required, and two fields given by the brother of the land-holder Gollanannāka, in which one khāri of seed is required, at Lavanōḍaka; the field in which one kulya of seed is required at the Daḍḍavaka-jungle, and the field in which five drōṇas of seed are required, at Dēvakya-toli, (both) in Gabbhirapallikā; of the elevated field of Rajaka the plot in which six drōṇas of seed are required, of the field near the water of Dēvakyan a portion in which three khāris of seed are required, and further abodes (shades), water and jungle, above it Khaṭṭalikā beyond Madhyamapūraka; the field of Nara and the field of Bhṛishṭikā in which eight drōṇas of seed are required near Tulākāṇṭhakayaksha; the protruding field that can be reached from it; the field of Bhṛishṭaka where five drōṇas of seed are required, on the bank of the river; to its east Vijakarani,³ a portion of the field of Vadra in which eight drōṇas of seed are required, the portion of the field Parvatāra in which one khāri of seed is required, together with channels for irrigation⁴; near it the waste land Khōhnikā and the Khaṭṭalikā field in which nine drōṇas of seed are required, together with the jungle, the portion of the field of Dēvakya in which eight drōṇas of seed are required, Skambhāratoli, the kōḍāra (field) in which one kulya of seed is required, behind Niśchitadēvi; kōḍāra (fields) in which two drōṇas of seed are required at Dēvkhala village; the Sēmmaka, Madhuphalamūlaka and Khaṭṭalikā fields at Suṇṭhināvānūpa; the Nāgila field where one kulya of seed is required, with the jungle, the three Andhralakarnṇakas, Jarōlaka-Kōḍāra, the Sēmmahikā field, the jungle land Vyāśoshṭhina, and near it Daḍḍavaka at Chhidragarttā; many pieces of land belonging to the land-holder Varāhadatta on the hill; of the Śvētā field the plot in which five drōṇas of seed are required, which was purchased by the divirapati Dhanadatta, with roots (of trees)⁵ and all the things⁶ (that may be in the land) from Lavachandra, the Commander of the army, for four and a half gold coins, at Nimvasāri at Kārttikēya-pura; the field named the Vētasā plot in which one kulya of seed is required, with water and jungle land, purchased together with the roots (of trees) and all the things, from the kāvastha Nannaka for eight gold coins by this same divirapati, in order to be presented at the feet of Vāmanasvāmi, before the shrine, in the temple, at Dūrvāshaṇḍaka.

(Ll. 26-28) And after it has been ordered thus, (those who rescind this grant) will be born as black snakes, and he who should rescind it, would incur the guilt of the five great sins. And it has been said by holy Vyāsa, " (Those who confiscate a grant of land or assent to the act of confiscation) shall dwell in the hollows of dry trees in the waterless forests of the Vindhya mountain." The messenger is the pramātāra Varāhadatta. This has been written by the divirapati Dhanadatta, and engraved by the goldsmith Ananta. (Dated) the 5th day of the (month of) Mārgga(śirsha) of the 28th year of the reign.

² The Gōmati must be the Gumti. It is however also possible that Gōmatisāri is the name of a village.

³ This may mean the small portion of the field where seed might have first been sown and then taken out to be sown in larger fields.

⁵ Samūlāṇ, with trees, lit. with roots.

No. 8.—CONJEEVERAM PLATES OF KRISHNADEVA-RAYA : SAKA 1444.

By S. V. VENKATESWARA AYYAR, M.A., AND S. V. VISWANATHA, M.A., KUMBHAKONAM.

These plates were obtained by us on loan from the present head of the Śaṅkarāchārya Maṭha of Conjeeveram together with six other grants belonging to the Maṭha. The grants thus examined by us may be enumerated as follows :—

(1) Grant of a village Ambikāpuram by Vijayagaṇḍagōpāla to Śrī Śaṅkarārya. Language Sanskrit. Characters Grantha. Astronomical data for 1291 A.D.; edited Ep. Ind., Vol. XIII, No. 8 (the present inscription).

(2) Grant of a village Kṛishṇarāyapuram by Kṛishṇadēva-Rāya of Vijayanagara to Chandrachūḍa Sarasvatī, disciple of Mahādēva Sarasvatī. Language Sanskrit. Characters Nandināgarī. Date Śaka 1444 (1521 A.D.).

(3) Grant of a village Uḍayambākam by Kṛishṇadēva-Rāya to Sadāśiva Sarasvatī, disciple of Chandrasekhara Sarasvatī. Language Sanskrit. Characters Nandināgarī. Date Śaka 1450 (1527 A.D.).

(4) Grant of land by Vijayaṅgachokkanātha Nāyaka, son of Raṅgakṛishṇa Muthuvirappa Nāyaka, to Chandramaulīśvara Svāmin. Language Telugu and Sanskrit. Characters Telugu. Date Śaka 1630 (1707 A.D.).

(5) Grant of a village by Mahādēva Sarasvatī, disciple of Chandrasekhara Sarasvatī (originally given to the Maṭha by Akkanna Mādanna of Gōlkonḍa), to Rāma Śāstrin. Language Telugu and Sanskrit. Characters Nandināgarī. Date Śaka 1608 (verified as 1687 A.D.).

(6) Grant of a village Kudiyāntaṇḍal by Śrī Nṛsimharāya of Vijayanagara to Mahādēva Sarasvatī, disciple of Sadāśiva Sarasvatī. Language Sanskrit. Characters Nandināgarī. Date Śaka 1429 (1506 A.D.).

(7) Grant of a village Eluchuvi by Śrī Nṛsimha to the same donee as in (6). Language, characters and date the same.

No. 2, the Conjeeveram grant of Kṛishṇadēva-Rāya, has been engraved on three copper-plates bored at the top and secured by a ring, attached to which is a seal bearing the usual Vijayanagara emblem of a boar, the Sun and the Moon on the upper half and some writing on the lower half.¹ The plates are in good preservation.

The plates measure 9·6" by 7·2", except in the middle which is 11·9" long on account of the arch at the top. The ring has a diameter of 2·6" and the seal of 1·3". The holes through which the ring passes have a diameter of ·65". All the plates have raised rims. The writing, which runs across the breadth of the plates, is quite legible except in some places bordering on the rims. The first and third plates are engraved only on one side, the second on both sides. Only the sides of the plates bearing inscriptions are ruled. The inscription contains 102 lines in all excluding the signature. The height of each line is about $\frac{1}{4}$ " on the average. But the letters are larger in the signature, and smaller in a few places where there are erasures—viz. in lines 69-71, 82, 86-89.

The language is Sanskrit, and the whole inscription is in verse, excepting the opening invocation of Gaṇeśa. The metres used are the usual Anuṣṭubh, Śardūlavikrīḍita, Srag-dharā, Dōḍhaka and Śālinī. The poetry is of a low order. The characters of the inscription are Nandināgarī, except the signature at the bottom, which is in Kannaḍa characters. The inscription has several orthographical peculiarities. Stops are not supplied in their proper places. Instances of this have been pointed out in the text. Here and there we find the confusion of long and short i and u. We have =praticih diśam=āśritam, l. 87, for praticih diśamāśritam; diśi sthitaṁ, l. 88, for diśi sthitaṁ; pratyūha-, l. 51, for pratyūha-; -pūrvakam, l. 85, instead of -pūrvakam. In the third plate i and u are represented only by a loop over the consonants. There is a redundant anusvāra previous to the double consonants nya and nya, e.g. pūṇṇyair=, l. 7, for pūṇyair=; =avahnyām=, l. 28, for =avanyām=; -dānāṇy=, l. 30, for -dānāny=; -hiraṇṇya-, l. 85, for -hiraṇya-. We have instances of redundant anusvāra before other consonants in -ākhyām=, l. 79, instead of -ākhyām=, and -saṇyuktamāikabhōgyam, l. 81, for -saṇyuktamāika-bhōgyam. Visargas are very often left out. If in some places they are wanting, they are superfluous in others. The letters ya, va, pa, ta and na assume forms which are capable of passing easily one into another. There is confusion between the letters śa, sha, sa. We have nijavasē, l. 16, for nijavasē; turuskam, l. 18, for turushkam; =asēshēshu, l. 34, for =asēshēshu; -shisaya-, l. 81, and -shisya-, l. 82, for -śishya-. We find the use of ṭa for ṭha in jātapratishṭān=, l. 53. The termination for the imperfect and the pluperfect 3rd person singular is omitted in a few instances, thus vyatānī, l. 20, instead of vyatānīṭ; =akārshī, l. 30, instead of =akārshīṭ. In l. 36 we have -dharōḥkamṭitā instead of -dharōḥkaṇṭhītā. Such forms occur in the plates of Veṅkaṭa I and II. As in the Viṣṇupāka grant of Veṅkaṭa I¹ for instance, a conjunct consonant is expressed by combining the full form of the first with the secondary form of the second consonant. This is specially noticeable in the case of rya. In certain cases, however, the r sign is written over the line. Nua and ṇya are invariably expressed by adding the anusvāra before the consonants na and na. Instead of double consonants only one of the consonants is written in some cases, thus =udabhātasmām=, l. 12, instead of =udabhātasmām=; nirṇityai, l. 33, instead of nirṇityām; -rajaśushya-, l. 35, for -rajaśśushya-; dattavān=, l. 85, instead of dattavān=.

The inscription records the grant of the villages Kṛṣṇarāyapuram and Kāṭapaṭṭu by Kṛṣṇadēva-Rāya of the second Vijayanagara dynasty, who was at the time encamped on the banks of the river Kṛṣṇā. The donee is Chandrachūḍa Sarasvatī,² the head of the Conjeeveram Maṭha,³ reputed to have been founded by the great Śaṅkarāchārya. In the line of apostolic descent Chandrachūḍa was the disciple of Mahādēva Sarasvatī. He is styled Śivachēṭas (having his mind devoted to Śiva), yatirāja (prince among ascetics) and dhīmat (philosopher). He is also described as an expounder of the sāstras, as living at Conjeeveram, and as a great exponent of the doctrine of māyā. It may therefore be inferred that the donee was a teacher of the Śaṅkarāchārya maṭha. This is supported by the terms of the grant, śishyapraśiśyur- (śishyapraśiśhyair) bhōgyam, l. 81 f., i.e. the land was to be enjoyed by the donee and his descendants in the apostolic line. The religious seat of these teachers is known as Kāmakōṭi-piṭha, probably after the goddess Kāmakōṭyambikā of Conjeeveram. The maṭha itself is known as Śārada-maṭha to this day.

The villages are given in perpetuity as sarvamānya, to be enjoyed by the donee and his descendants in the apostolic line. The grant makes it clear that the villages had clearly marked boundaries. It is interesting to observe that the king reserves no right to himself over the land thus given away. All rights of property in the land, the products on it, in it and over it belong to the donee for ever, together with any unforeseen or unearned increments that might accrue on the same. The terms of the grant display a knowledge of the technicalities of the law of property.

³ See below No. 8.

The date of the grant is Śaka 1444 ; Svabhānu, Mārgaśīrsha, gōdvādāṣṭi. There is apparently a mistake here either of the Śaka or of the cyclic year as Svabhānu would be Śaka 1442. Curiously enough, neither the date of the month nor the tithi or the nakshatra is given.

Kṛishṇadēva-Rāya's journey to the holy places and the gifts made by him and his brother Vira-Nṛisinha are substantiated by various inscriptions on temple walls. An inscription at the back of the garbhagriha of the Śārṅgapāṇi shrine at Kumbhaghōṇam records his visit to the place and his gifts there. The stone inscriptions copied by the Epigraphical Department of Madras in 1915 record the gifts at Śrīśailām and Ahōbalam. No. 10 of 1915 records Vira-Nṛisinha's visit to the temple of Mallikārjuna at Śrīśailam. No. 18 (of Śrīśailam) records the construction by Kṛishṇadēva-Rāya of maṇḍapas in the car street, his gift of certain villages to the temple, and his ' remission of tolls on kāvaḍis, pack-horses, bullocks, asses and head-loads.' No. 64 records the king's gifts at Ahōbalam, his presents to the god of various jewels and of the revenues of the village Madūru in Chāṅgala-mari-śima. The tulāpurusha ceremony performed by the king is also mentioned in stone inscriptions (see Madras Epigraphist's Report, 1914-15, p. 109). The king's lavish gifts at the Tirumala temple attracted the greed of the Portuguese governor of Goa in 1545. In some of these places we find also statues of the king, his queens and ministers. At Tirumala are bronze statues of Kṛishṇadēva-Rāya and his queens, the king with his characteristic cap ' of brocade in fashion like a Galician helmet covered with a piece of fine stuff all of fine silk,' as described by Domingo Paes, having on either side his favourites, the courtesan Chinnādōvi, whom he afterwards made his queen, and a princess of Orissa, whom he likewise married. The figures are reproduced in Mr. Gangoly's South Indian Bronzes (p. 60 and pl. LXXIV). A stone image of the king was set up at Śrīśaila by the viceroy of that place, along with one representing the viceroy himself (Inscription No. 14 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1915).

The king's patronage of literature is mentioned in l. 91 and is too well known to need dwelling upon. Cf. Archaeological Survey Report, 1908-9, p. 185.

Various places are mentioned in the grant. These are Kṛishṇarāyapuram, Kāṭapaṭṭu, Chandragiri, Mūtukāvu, Cheṅgāḍu, Nivvalūr, Cheṅgōḍe, Kāñchūr, Akkāli-Vēlūru, Sēdamaṅgala, Poḍavūr, Śiruvāka, Paruṇḍūr, Koṭṭavāka and Śiruvallūr. Of these localities we are able to identify the following :—

Kṛishṇarāyapuram, which goes still by the same name, is situated to the south of Conjeeveram and is about 30 miles from it. It is a place of some historical importance, being the scene of the battle of Wandiwash.

Kāṭapaṭṭu is easily identified with Kāṭpāḍi which is now a railway station—a junction in the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway.

Chandragiri¹ is well known by the same name in modern times. The Rāja of this locality sold Madras to the English in 1639.

Kāñchur is the same as Kāñchivākkam situated 17 miles to the east of Kāñchi.

Vēlūr is the Vellore cantonment in North Arcot District.

Poḍavūr and Śiruvāka are villages 15 miles north-east and 7 miles north of Conjeeveram, respectively.

Paruṇḍūr is situated nine miles to the north of Poḍavūr. Near it runs a canal called Kutirakārpallam which is about 40 miles in length. Near this place is reported to be the scene of the battle of Pollilore which was fought during the course of the second Mysore War. Between Paruṇḍūr and Pollilore there are tombs of English generals who seem to have taken part in the war.

Koṭṭavāka is a small village situated 12 miles north-east from Kāñchi and quite close to Paruṇḍūr.

Siruvallūr is a mile¹ to the south from Parupūr.

Sēdamaṅgala is perhaps the same as Samudramaṅgala, a small village near Conjeeveram. [There is a Sōndamaṅgala about 8 miles E. of Poḍavūr.—H. K. S.]

Most of these places are now agricultural centres in the North Arcot and Chingleput districts.

Of the names occurring in the plates the most interesting are those of the donee and his guru. The names occur in the Guruparamparā of the Conjeeveram Maṭha, extracts from which must be interesting in this connection.

Bühler in the *Inscriptions from Nepal*² mentions a certain Svāmin of South India, named Sōmasēkharānanda, who went to Nepal in 1503 A.D. The Svāmin referred to must be either the donee of our grant or his guru's guru Pūrṇānanda alias Chandrachūḍa.³ The earliest of the āchāryas of this Maṭha referred to in Epigraphy is Śrī Śaṅkarārya mentioned in the copper-plate grant of Vijayagaṇḍagōpāla. Tradition ascribes the foundation of the Maṭha to Śaṅkarāchārya, the famous teacher of Advaitism, who installed there his disciple's disciple Sarvajña.⁴

The kings mentioned in the grant, Vira-Narasimha and Krishṇadēva-Rāya, were tolerant sovereigns, as they made gifts to the temples of both Vishṇu and Śiva. The genealogy of the Vijayanagara kings, as we learn from the plates, is as follows :—

⁴ For the contemporaneity of Sarvajña alias Sarvajñātman, author of the Saṁkshēpasāriraka, and the Chōla king Āditya I see Mr. Venkateswara Ayyar's note in the Ind. Ant., 1914, p. 238.

⁶ Narasa-Nāyaka usurped power in 1503-4.

⁷ Vira-Nṛsiṃha is here also styled Nṛsiṃhēndra. Our plate makes it quite clear that Krishṇadēva-Rāya began to rule only after Nṛsiṃha was dead. This agrees with the statement of Nuniz.

The signature attached to the grant is Śrī Virūpāksha, the name of the tutelary deity of the Vijayanagara kings. Virūpāksha is the king of the Nāgas and the guardian of the western quarter. Professor Grünwedel considers it probable that he is the Buddhist form of Śiva (Buddhist Art in India, p. 43). But the term simply means 'one with various eyes' (trivi dhāni ravi-chandr-āgni-rūpāni akṣhīni yasya saḥ) and has always been characteristic of Śiva. Cf. Tryambaka, 'having three eyes,' a Vedic epithet of Śiva, who is invoked for protection against death. Śiva is connected with the Nāgas in various ways, being called Nāgābharāṇa, 'having a serpent as his ornament,' Nāgēndrakuṇḍala, 'having serpents on his ear-lobes,' Nāgaṃātha, 'lord of serpents,' etc. As lord of the Nāgas, he was naturally regarded as the guardian of the western quarter, as snakes abound in the sea, and the sea lay to the west of the Aryans in the Panjab. The Vijayanagara kings were worshippers of Nāgas and of Śiva as Nāgaṃātha. Their queens not only set up nāgakals in the temples which they attended, but they had their own special female nāga deity, such for instance as was discovered by the Archaeological Survey, Madras, near the Kōṇḍaṇḍarāma temple at Vijayanagara (see Report, 1914-15, p. 38). The temple of Virūpāksha is now known as the Pampāpati temple and is still regarded as the most ancient and holy temple there. The annual festival of the god attracts forty or fifty thousand people (ibidem, p. 37).

The name of the composer is not given in the inscription. Perhaps his name was Urukavi [which may, however, mean simply 'great poet.'—H. K. S.]. But a blank in the next line may well be filled with the word Sabhāpati, the famous rhymester of the Rājā's court. In fact the metre requires it. If so, Urukavi was another name for Sabhāpati or a title assumed by him. The engraver of the inscription was Virapāghārya,¹ son of Mallapa, whose descendants continued hereditary engravers of grants to the third Vijayanagara dynasty as well.

TRANSLATION.

(ABRIDGED.)

(Verse 1.) Invokes Śambhu,

(V. 2.) the Varāha (Boar) incarnation of Viṣṇu and

(V. 3.) Gajānana.

(Vv. 4 and 5.) Trace the descent of the family from the moon, through Budha, Purūravas, Āyus, Nahusha, Yayāti, and Turvasu.

(V. 6.) Of the line of Turvasu was king Timma, the husband of Dēvakī, who shone in glory among the Tuluva chieftains as Kṛishṇa did among the Yadu race.

(V. 7.) To him was born, of his wife Bukkamā, Īśvara, the protector of the earth, a crest-jewel among the lords of the earth, flawless and unrivalled.

(V. 8.) King Narasa was born to him. He was born of Dēvakī,⁷ as Kāma was from the son of Dēvakī (Kṛishṇa).

(V. 9.) Narasa built a bridge across the Kāvērī in the teeth of the foe, defeated the (Chōla) king, took him captive and wrested the kingdom from him. He then captured Śrīraṅgaṇaṭṭana and planted a pillar of victory there.

(V. 10.) He defeated the kings of Chēra, Chōla and Pāṇḍya, Mānabhūsha, the Lord of Mathurā,⁸ the fierce Turushka, the Gajapati king (of Orissa) and others. He made all kings from Laṅkā to the banks of the Ganges, and from the first to the last mountain,⁹ bear his commands on their heads like a garland of flowers.

(V. 11.) His gifts in Ramēśvaram and other places.

(Vv. 12 and 13.) To that king were born, of Tippāji and Nāgalādēvi, the sons Viranṛisimbhendra and Kṛishṇarāya, who were brave yet well behaved, as Rāma and Lakshmaṇa were born to Paṅktiratha (Daśaratha) of Kausalyā and Sumitrā.

(V. 14.) The brave śrī Nārasimha, seated on his jewelled throne at Vijayanagara, eclipsed in fame and policy other kings of the world like Nṛiga, Nala, Nahusha. Brāhmaṇas from Sētu to Mōru praised him obeisance. He ruled his kingdom between the eastern and western mountains, drawing to him the hearts of all people.

⁶ In Kanarese letters.

⁸ This seems to be a better rendering than that of Messrs. Gopināth Rao and Rāghavayya (in Ep. Ind., Vol. IX, p. 340), who consider the Pāṇḍya king to be the same as Mānabhūsha. The passage lends support to the view that there were more than one Pāṇḍya prince ruling simultaneously in the Pāṇḍya country, or that Madura was under a separate ruler who was as strong as the Pāṇḍya king himself. The titular kings of the Pāṇḍyas were doubtless eclipsed by the growing power of the Nāyakas and Pālayagars in the 16th century

⁹ This probably means 'from the eastern to the western ghats' (see verse 14 below).

(Vv. 15 and 16.) He made various gifts at Kanaka-Sadas¹ (Chidambaram), Virūpāksha, Kālahasti, Venkaṭādri (Tirupati), Kāñchi, Śrīśaila, Śoṇasaila (Aruṇagiri), the great Harihara, Ahobala, Saṅgama, Srīraṅga, Kumbhaghōṣa, Mahānanditīrtha, Nivṛitti, Gōkarṇa, Rāma-sētu² and other holy places.

(V. 17.) Praises of the king.

(V. 18.) When that king, famous for his virtues, went to heaven, as it were, to rule there after having ruled his large kingdom without any difficulties,

(V. 19.) Kṛishṇarāya of irresistible might bore the rule of the earth on his arm as if it were a jewelled bracelet.

(Vv. 20-22.) Praises of Kṛishṇarāya.

(V. 23.) His gifts at Kāñchi, Śrīśaila, Śoṇāchala, Kanakasabhā (Chidambaram), Venkaṭādri (Tirupati) and other places.

(Vv. 24-26.) His birudas.

(V. 27.) The kings of Aṅga, Vaṅga, Kaṭiṅga, etc. paid him homage.

(V. 28.) His praises.

(Vv. 29-32.) In the Śaka year 1444, according to the Śālivāhana reckoning, in the year Svabhānu, in the month of Mārgaśīrsha, on the Gōdvādaśī day (is made the gift) on the banks of the Kṛishṇavēṇī river, to Chandrachūḍa Sarasvatī, the talented and high-souled saint, the disciple of Mahādēva Sarasvatī, a devotee of Śiva, the famous commentator on all the śāstras, an expert in Māyāvāda (the doctrine of Māyā), who is resident in Conjeeveram.

(Vv. 33-36.) The place granted is Old Poḍavūr,³ otherwise known as Kṛishṇarāya-puram, in the Mūtukāvu-pattu in Nivvalūr-nāḍu in Cheṅgāṭṭu-kōṭṭakam, (which is a division of) Chandragiri country. It is bounded by Cheṅgōḍu village on the west, Kāñchūr on the north, Akkāṭivēlūr on the east, Sēdamāṅgalam on the south.

(Vv. 36-40.) Nature and description of the grant. All rights to the land are given by Kṛishṇadēva-Rāya in perpetuity, on the advice of the learned men of his court.

(Vv. 41-43.) He also gives the village Kāṭapaṭṭu, bounded by Śīruvāka village on the west, Paruṇḍūr on the east, Kōṭṭavāka on the north, Śīruvallūr on the south.

(Vv. 44 and 45.) The composer of the grant was Urukavi (alias Sabhāpati).

(V. 46.) The engraver of the grant was Vīraṇāchārya, son of Mallāṇa.

(Vv. 47-51.) The usual imprecatory verses.

³ Prāktanī-Poḍavūr means probably 'Poḍavūr the old.' Such distinctions are common enough. Cf. Cuddalore 'new town' and 'old town.' We are however unable to identify "New" Poḍavūr.

No. 9.—THE SUSUNIA ROCK INSCRIPTION OF CHANDRAVARMAN.

BY MAHAMAHOPADHYAYA PANDIT HARAPRASAD SHASTRI, CALCUTTA.

Susunīā is the name of a hill in the Bānkurā District of Bengal, situated about 12 miles north-west of the town of Bānkurā. The existence of an ancient inscription on the Susunīā hill was brought to the notice of my friend Babu Nagendra Nāth Vasu, who published a short note on it nineteen years ago.¹ As he had to rely on an eye copy made by a friend who had very little experience in copying inscriptions, his transcript is not very correct. He recognized the importance and antiquity of the record and tried to obtain a better and more faithful impression or estampage. Subsequently he obtained some more impressions and edited the inscription in the Journal of the Baṅgiya Sāhitya Parishad with a crude facsimile.²

The inked impressions which accompany this paper were made by my pupil Babu Rākhāl Dās Banerji, at present an Assistant Superintendent in the Archaeological Survey, who paid a visit to the place two or three years ago. He described the place as being by the side of a hill-stream and below a small water-fall, which had caused the destruction of a cave, on the back wall of which the inscription was incised.

The record consists of three lines, two of which are incised below a big wheel with flaming rim and hub, measuring 2' 3" and 2' 2" respectively, while the third line to the right of the wheel measures 2' 6" in length. The height of the letters varies from 1½" to 4".

The language of the inscription is Sanskrit and the characters belong to the eastern variety of the Northern alphabet of the 4th century A.D. There are some mistakes due to the carelessness of the mason, e.g. -adhiputēr= for -adhipatēr=, A l. 1; dāsagrān=ātisriṣṭaḥ for dāsāgrān=ātisriṣṭaḥ, in B. A consonant with a superscript r has always been doubled, and the only orthographical peculiarity is the spelling of the name Sinhavarman, A l. 1, where we find n in the place of the anusvāra. The historical significance of this record has already been dealt with in my paper on the Mandasor inscription of the time of Naravarman.³

I edit the inscriptions from the impressions supplied to me by Rākhāl Dās :—

No. 10.—SENDALAI PILLAR INSCRIPTIONS.

By K. V. SUBRAHMANYA AIYER, B.A., M.R.A.S., OOTACAMUND.

The subjoined inscriptions are engraved on four pillars of black granite which stand in a maṇḍapa in front of the central shrine¹ of the Sundarōśvara temple at Sendalai in the Tanjore district. As the tops of these pillars are chopped off, some portions of the inscriptions are irretrievably lost. In 1897, when the records were copied for the first time, the lower portions of the pillars were found to be built in. Excavation was accordingly made by the late Rai Bahadur V. Venkayya, but the results were not very satisfactory. He remarked: "All the four pillars are much damaged and worn at the bottom, so that very little can be made of the writing there. If the pillars had been neither mutilated nor damaged, they would have contained 27 Tamil verses in all composed by four poets."²

Other inscriptions copied in the Sundarōśvara temple at Sendalai belong to several dynasties³ and refer to the temple as that of the Mahādēva at Perundurai in Chandralēkhai-chaturvēdimangalam, which was a village in Ārkkāṭṭu-kūrṇam, a subdivision of Pāṇḍyakulāśani-valanāḍu. Narikkūḍichchēri is stated in the Tanjore inscriptions to be the eastern hamlet of this village and Tugaiyūr was another hamlet belonging to it.⁴ One of the records of Rājakōsarivarman, which provides for the recitation of the Bhārata in a *maṇḍapa*⁵ of the same temple, mentions the 53rd ward and the great assembly of Chandralēkhai-chaturvēdimangalam. This might be taken to show that Sendalai was a town of considerable size and importance in ancient times. Ārkkāṭṭu-kūrṇam, the division to which Sendalai belonged, owes its name to Ārkkāḍu, a small village not far from Sendalai. Two records dated in the 10th and 16th years of the reign of Māraṇḍajaiyaṇ⁶ and one of Nandippōttaraiyar,⁷ 'who gained a victory at Tellāru,' which are also found on these pillars, make provision for the Piḍāri temple at Niyama-māgālam, said to have been built by Perumbiḍugu-Muttaraiyaṇ.⁸ As none of the inscriptions of Sendalai refer to the Piḍāri temple, it may be presumed that these pillars did not originally belong to the maṇḍapa where they are now found, but were brought thither from the village of Niyamam which is about 4 miles distant from Sendalai.⁹

² The same for 1899, paragraph 19.

⁴ South-Ind. Inscr., Vol. II, Part IV, Nos. 94 and 95.

⁸ Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1897, paragraph 9.

¹⁰ The same feature is noticeable in the Kūram grant of Parakōśavaravarman and in the Kāśakuḍi plates of Nandivarman.

while that of the letter ku does not pass to the left of the vertical line representing k.¹ The puḷḷi or virāma is in most cases marked by a slightly curved top-stroke and, curiously enough, it is also marked on some vowels and combined consonants.² Va has an indenture at the bottom³ and the akshara ya has always a closed loop at the beginning. The central loops alone of ṇa and ṇa are fully developed and they are engraved on a lower level than the tops of the letters.⁴ ḍa is represented by a mere curve, concave at the right side, as in the Kūram grant and the Kāsākuḍi plates. The i sign of vi and ḷi in viḷi (line 3 of the 1st pillar, south face) are very peculiar, inasmuch as they are written apart from the letters to which they belong and almost on the top of the following syllables. The symbol for u in lu, ṇu and tu is a mere horizontal line slightly indentured. Being written in Tamil poetry, the record is free from Sanskrit letters and words, except when it mentions the titles of the king. The only other instance where Grantha letters are used is found in the word paramēśvara occurring in line 4 of A on the first pillar.

Of etymological interest is the word Paḍāri, which occurs in the first inscription (A) on the first pillar, (line 7). Paḍāri is the feminine form of Paḍārar, which is the Tamil adaptation of the Sanskrit word Bhaṭāra. In several inscriptions we meet with the form Piḍāri with its honorific Piḍāriyār which seems to be a variant of Paḍāri. The word, of which Paḍāri or Piḍāri is the Tamil equivalent, is Bhaṭṭārakī, Bhaṭārakī or Bhaṭāri. At present, the term Piḍāri invariably indicates a village goddess, of probably Dravidian origin. It is worth while to ascertain if it had the same significance in ancient times. In the modern temple of Śelliyammaṇ at Ālambākkam, we have some early inscriptions of the 11th century. One of them states that the temple of Piḍāri was constructed by a certain Irāyūr Alaṅkārapriyaṇ alias Tiru-Oṟṟiyāraṇ (No. 704 of 1909); while two others on the same temple register gifts made to the temple of Saptamāṭṭrikas (Nos. 705 and 706). It is not unlikely that they all refer to the same temple, i.e. that on which the inscriptions are found. Similarly also the Śelliyammaṇ temple at Vēlachchēri near Madras is referred to in one of its inscriptions, which belongs to the 11th century A.D., by the name Kālā-Bhaṭāri (No. 317 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1911); while in another, it is called the temple of the Saptamāṭṭrikas (No. 316 of the same collection). From these references it looks as if the Saptamāṭṭrikas were known by the term Piḍāri or Kālā-Bhaṭāri. The Tanjore inscriptions of Rājarāja mention the three Piḍāri temples Kālā-Bhaṭāriyār, Tiruvāḷudaiyāl and Kuduraivaṭṭamudaiyāl. Though the first of these might refer to the Saptamāṭṭrikas, the latter two at least appear to denote village deities. Thus it is plain that in the 11th century A.D. Piḍāri was indifferently used to denote Aryan gods and village deities. In course of time it seems to have lost the former application. And it is worthy of note that the term Paḍāraṇ, Paḍārar or Piḍāraṇ has now degraded in its meaning. The original significance of this word, i.e. 'the lord or god,' is now entirely lost, as it means 'a snake charmer or snake catcher.' The change in this case can be easily accounted for by the original application of the word Paḍāraṇ to Śiva, who is the great snake charmer.

There is nothing in these records to show the time when the kings mentioned in them flourished or the duration of their reigns. As we have not got many Tamil inscriptions belonging to periods earlier than the 8th century A.D. to enable us to compare the characters employed in the subjoined records, palæography seems an unsafe guide to fix with any amount

² The vowel e in enṇṇu (line 3 of A on the second pillar), the letter k in konḍa (line 4 of F on the third pillar) and t in tōḷ (line 3 of H on the same pillar) bear on them the puḷḷi mark.

It may be noted that va has no curve at the bottom in the Kūram grant.

⁴ The shape of ṇa differs very widely from that in either of the two grants.

of certainty the date of these records. All that can still be said of them from a study of the characters is that they may be tentatively referred to the first half of the 8th century A.D.

Before noticing the achievements of Perumbidugu Muttaraiyan, which are recorded in the following inscriptions, it is necessary to add a few words regarding the family to which he belonged. The members of this family appear to have played an important part in the history of Southern India. The exact nature of their origin and the extent and development of their dominions from time to time cannot be clearly made out from the few records that speak of them. Though much of their history still remains in the dark, the little that can be gathered from the available materials is put down here.

There is but a single reference to this family in ancient Tamil literature and it occurs in the Nālaḍiyār. Two stanzas here mention a certain Peru-Muttaraiyan. This name seems to be a contraction of Perumbidugu Muttaraiyan, which, as will be pointed out below, was borne by some kings of this line. The date of the poem not being known, it is not possible to say which king is here alluded to. Some commentators on the work take the word Muttaraiyan to mean 'a king whose territory included parts of the three ancient dominions of the Dekhan, viz. the Chōra, Chōla and the Pāṇḍya.' The traditional account relating to the origin of the Nālaḍiyār inclines one to the belief that the Muttaraiyans were of Pāṇḍya descent. The title Māraṇ, which we find connected with some of the known kings of the line, seems to lend support to this view. Even if they did not belong to the original Pāṇḍya stock, there is not much doubt as to their being a branch of them.

Pagāppiḍugu is mentioned as one of the birudas of the early Pallava king Mahēndra-varman in two of his inscriptions,¹ and it may be observed that there is a strong affinity between this title and those borne by the Muttaraiyan family. The Tamil work Nandikkalambayam which describes the valorous deeds of another Pallava sovereign, viz. Nandivarman 'who gained a victory at Tellāru, Kuṇṇōḍu and other places,' designates him as Viḍḍiḍugu, which is actually found to be the surname of one or two Muttaraiyan kings. There are not sufficient grounds at present to decide whether the Pallavas borrowed these titles from the Muttaraiyans or lent the same to the latter. Nor do we know the circumstances which led either of the two to adopt the titles of the other. Stone inscriptions discovered so far reveal two other similar titles, viz. Perumbidugu and Mārppiḍugu.

The first of the inscriptions edited below may be considered as an introduction to the Tamil verses that follow inasmuch as it states that on these pillars are recorded the titles of king Perumbidugu Muttaraiyan, the places where he gained victories and the names of the poets who composed the stanzas. Three generations of kings are here given, viz. (1) Perumbidugu Muttaraiyan alias Kuvāvaṇ Māraṇ, (2) his son Ilaṅgōvadiyairaiyan alias Māraṇ Paramēś-vaṇ and (3) his son Perumbidugu Muttaraiyan alias Suvaraṇ Māraṇ. The subsequent verses register the military exploits of the last member. His surnames are stated to be Sri-Māraṇ, Abhimānadhīraṇ, Śatrukēśari, Atisāhasan, Tamarālayan and Kalvarakaḷvaṇ. In the body of the stanzas, Seru-Māraṇ, Vēl-Māraṇ, Vāṇ-Māraṇ, and Sāttan-Māraṇ are also applied to him. One of the verses on the 2nd pillar (marked B, below) states that Māraṇ was the king of Taṇjai (i.e. Tanjore), and two other stanzas on the same pillar (A and C) make him the lord of Vallam, which is identical with the village of that name, 7 miles south-west of Tanjore. Thus, Tanjore and Vallam appear to have been places of importance in the dominion of Perumbidugu Muttaraiyan, and it is interesting to note that the former place, which Vijayālaya had to capture in the middle of the 9th century A.D., was included in the dominions of Perumbidugu Muttaraiyan in the 8th century A.D. The banner of the king contained the vēl and another weapon whose name is lost in the inscription.

The following places, where the king gained victories, are also mentioned : Koḍumbālūr (also called Koḍumbai), Maṇalūr, Tiṅgaḷūr, Kāndaḷūr, Aḷundiyūr, Kārai, Maṇaṅgūr, Aṇṇalvāyil, Śemponmāri, Veṅkōḍal in Taṇjai-Śembula-nāḍu, Puḡaḷi and Kaṇṇaṇūr.

At Kaṇṇaṇūr the arms of the king were directed against the people of Kō-nāḍu and at Tiṅgaḷūr he defeated the Teṇṇavar, i.e. the Pāṇḍya, causing their queens to mount the funeral pile. Tiṅgaḷūr is situated $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east of Tanjore¹ and is celebrated as the native village of Appūdi-Nāyaṇār, one of the sixty-three Śaiva devotees, who flourished in the 7th century A.D. Koḍumbālūr was a place of considerable antiquity, being the principal town in Kō-nāḍu and the capital of Iḍaṅgaḷi-Nāyaṇār and a local family of chiefs.² The part played by the chief of Koḍumbālūr in this battle is not stated. But as the people of Kō-nāḍu are represented as having been defeated at Kaṇṇaṇūr in the hill near which they are said to have taken refuge, the chief of Koḍumbālūr might be supposed to have been one of the opponents of Perumbidugu Muttaraiyaṇ in this battle. Kaṇṇaṇūr was the capital of the Hoysala king Vira-Sōmēśvara in the 13th century A.D. and it has been identified with Samayaveram in the Trichinopoly taluk. It is interesting to note that the Pāṇḍya king Arikēsari Tēr-Māraṇ, the father of Neḍuñḡadaiyaṇ (A.D. 769-70), defeated the Pallavas at Koḍumbālūr.³ Maṇalūr mentioned in our record may be identified with a village of that name in the Tanjore District, 10 miles from Kumbakonam. Aṇṇalvāyil is a village in the Pudukkōṭṭai State. The poet's description of Kāndaḷūr shows that it adjoined the sea. It is not unlikely that the Chēras were here overcome. Śemponmāri, where Perumbidugu Muttaraiyaṇ is said to have gained a victory (2nd pillar, G), is referred to in the Mahāvamsa as having been taken by the Singhalese general Laṅkāpura-Daṇḍanātha in the war of the Pāṇḍya succession, which happened in the latter half of the 12th century A.D. It is probably situated in the Pudukkōṭṭai State. Kārai may be identified with the modern Kāraiṇūr, a village in the Tiruppattūr taluk of the Rāmnāḍ district. It is mentioned, in an inscription,⁴ as being situated in Kōraḷaśiṅga-vaḷanāḍu, the same division in which Tiruppattūr was.⁵ I am not able to identify the other two places. As the records of this king are not distributed over a large extent of country, which would have been the case if he had acted independently and conquered in battle the Chēra, the Pāṇḍya and the Koḍumbālūr kings, it may perhaps be presumed that he was a feudatory prince under one of the southern powers.

The verses engraved on these pillars were composed by Vēḷṇamban of Pāchchil, Āchāryar Aniruddar, Iḷamberumāṇār of Kōṭṭāru and Amarunṇilai of Pavadāyamaṅgalam in Kīḷār-kūṛram.

Pāchchil⁶ was the head-quarters of a subdivision in Maḷa-nāḍu alias Rājāśraya-vaḷanāḍu,⁷ and it has been identified with Tiruvāṣi in the Trichinopoly district. Kīḷār-kūṛram was a subdivision of Nittavinōda-vaḷanāḍu.⁸

It may not be out of place to notice here a few kings who appear to have belonged to the same family, and to show the probable relation that existed between them. At Tirumaiyam in the Pudukkōṭṭai State there is a record of a certain Viḍēlviḍugu Viḷuppēradi Araisaṇ whose other name was Śāttaṇ Māraṇ.¹ As his mother is stated to be Perumbiḍugu Perundēvi, we may take him for a probable son of No. 3 Perumbiḍugu Muttaraiyaṇ. Pūdikāḷari alias Amarūṇri Muttaraiyaṇ, referred to in a record of Pīvālaikkūḍi, is perhaps an early king of this dynasty.² A contemporary of Dantivarman of the Pallavatilaka family was a certain Mārppiḍugu.³ What his other name was, we do not know. Śāttaṇ Paḷiyili, who excavated the cave at Nārttāmalai,⁴ was also a member of this branch. He was the son of a certain Viḍēlviḍugu, who must have been different from the one already noticed, because he appears to have been the contemporary of the Gaṅga-Pallava Nripatūṅga. Later in point of time was a certain Śatrubhayaṅkara Muttaraiyaṇ, whose queen figures as donor in a record of the Pāṇḍya king Śaḍaiyamāraṇ, discovered at Śēvilipēri in the Tinnevely district.⁵ Perhaps this Śaḍaiyamāraṇ is identical with Rājasimha-Pāṇḍya, the opponent of the Chōla king Parāntaka I. Varagunaṇāṭṭi, the daughter of a certain Viḍēlviḍugu Muttaraiyaṇ, was the queen of Śombiyaṇ Irakkuvēl,⁶ whose identity with the Koṇṭmbālūr chief Vikramakēśari is established in the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1908, p. 88. As Vikramakēśari is said to have fought with Vira-Pāṇḍya, the opponent of Āditya II Karikāla, this Viḍēlviḍugu may be considered to be different from the two others mentioned above. From what has been said now, the following synchronism may be established :—

Several traces of the rule of this family exist in the Tanjore and Trichinopoly districts as well as in the Pudukkōṭṭai State. Some of the inscriptions of the Chōla king Rājārāja I (A.D. 985-1013) mention a place called Mārppiḍugudēvi-chaturvēdimaṅgalam in Rājēndrasimha-valanāḍu,⁷ evidently called after one of the queens of Mārppiḍugu. The big well at Tiruvēḷḷarai called Mārppiḍugu-Peruṅgiṇaru was constructed between the 4th and 5th years of Dantivarman.⁸ Records of Parāntaka I found at Ālambākkam show that there was, in ancient times, a tank called Mārppiḍug-ēri in that village.⁹ Ālambākkam itself was called Dantivarmamaṅgalam.¹⁰ An inscription of Danti discovered at Tiruvēḷḷarai makes mention of Mārppiḍugu-Iḷaṅgōvēl,¹¹ who should have been an officer under Mārppiḍugu. and a few other places in the Trichinopoly district there was in use in ancient times a weight called Vidēlvidugu-kal.¹ The naming of places, wells, tanks and weights, such as here noticed, cannot but point to the sway of the members of the Muttaraiyaṇ family in this part of the country. Their inscriptions have, as already pointed out, been found in the Tanjore and Trichinopoly districts and in the Pudukkōttai State. Though these are few, the unmistakable marks left by them in the country are not so. On the growth of the Chōla power in Tanjore the Muttaraiyaṇs seem to have sunk into insignificance. A certain Vijayālaya Muttaraiyaṇ figures as a signatory in a record of the Chōla king Kulōttunga I, discovered at Tiruneḍuṅ-gulam in the Trichinopoly district.² Probably he was an officer under the Chōla sovereign. It may also be noted that the village of *Muttaraśanallūr*³ in the same district may date from early times and may probably have to be traced to some member of these kings. There is a class of people who call themselves Muttaraśans,⁴ and this is perhaps the only living remnant of this ancient dynasty.

No. 11.—BHUBANESWAR INSCRIPTION IN THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.

By LIONEL D. BARNETT.

This inscription, which is now published for the first time, is incised upon a slab of stone, 3 ft. 10 in. in width and 1 ft. 8½ in. in height, which for many years has been standing in the hall of the Royal Asiatic Society in London. All that is known as to its provenance is that it came from the collection of "Colonel Stewart"; and as the contents shew that it was brought from Bhubanēśwar in Orissa, one is led to suspect that it was originally carried thence by Major-General Charles Stuart, of the Bengal Army.¹

The inscription is imperfect, containing only the first block of the record. It is on the whole well preserved; but in a few places the stone has been damaged, and the letters are accordingly uncertain. I have prepared this text from rubbings and estampages kindly made for me by the Assistant Secretary of the Society, Miss M. Frazor, by the courtesy of the Secretary, Miss Hughes, and have checked the readings where necessary by examination of the stone itself.—The character is of the North-Eastern type, and is akin to the "Lantsa" hand familiar in manuscripts, the chief point of difference being that, whereas in most manuscripts the block-shaped tops of the letters are "solid", i.e. inked all over, on this stone the tops are "hollow", outlined only, and the letters are somewhat more rounded. On the whole, the style of writing suggests the fourteenth century. The writing covers an area of about 3 ft. 7 in. in width and 1 ft. 2 in. in height. The average height of the letters is about ⅝ in.—The language is Sanskrit. Of lexical interest are the words ulvāta (l. 4), uḍ[ḍ]ina-parṇāyatē* (l. 4), kārāyat (l. 5), janitha (l. 8). The nasal is usually written in the exact form, according to the varga of the following consonant, instead of by means of the anusvāra. S is several times written for ś; and v does duty both for the proper v and for b.

Owing to its incomplete state the purport of the inscription is not clear. What there is of it may be summarised as follows. After an introductory stanza (v. 1) come praises of king Chōḍa-Gaṅga, whose empire is said to have extended from the Godāvarī to the Ganges (v. 2), and of his descendant Anaṅga-Bhīma,² who overcame a Yavana enemy³ (vv. 3, 4), followed by praises of Anaṅga-Bhīma's daughter Chandrikā and of the valiant Haihaya prince Paramardin, who married her (vv. 5-7). Then come verses extolling the land of Utkala, i.e. Orissa (v. 8), and of the sanctuary of Ēkāmra, the modern Bhubanēśwar (vv. 9, 10), with a description of the lake Bindusaras there (vv. 11, 12). Next we are told that in the reign of Bhānu (Bhānudēva), son of Narasiṅga-dēva, when the Śaka year represented by the chronogram vyōma-viyat-phaṇindrarasana-chandra (i.e. 0, 0, 1000, '1)¹ had elapsed, the princess Chandrikā constructed at Ēkāmra a temple of Vishṇu (vv. 13-16), of which the dedicatory inscription was written by the poet Umāpati (v. 17). She was named Chandrā-dēvī (Chandrikā) by her father (v. 18), and was married to the Haihaya prince Paramāḍi, or Paramardin (v. 19). Paramāḍi fell in battle against the enemies of Nṛsiṃha-dēva (Narasimha-dēva) some time later (v. 20). Chandrikā built and visited the temple of Vishṇu at Ēkāmra, and there offered worship with great magnificence to Baladēva, Kṛishṇa, and Subhadṛā (vv. 21-23). Here the record breaks off.

¹ Charles Stuart entered the army as a cadet in 1777, and became a captain in 1795, a major in 1799, a colonel in 1814, and a major-general in 1814. He died at Chowringhee on 1 April 1828. He was notorious for his love of Indian manners and ideas, which caused him to be known as "Hindoo Stuart", and for the audacious manner in which he collected antiquities. Rājēndralāl Mitra feelingly refers to his depredations in the temples of Orissa (Antiq. of Oriss, vol. 2, pp. 84, 93). Mr. James S. Cotton, who at my request has kindly investigated the subject, writes to me saying: "In a little book by Lewis giving an account of the Baptist missionary J. Chamberlain p. 142, he (Stuart) is openly called an 'idol-stealer'. If he could not purchase an image that took his fancy, he sometimes took it by force. He kept two Brahmans to look after his trophies, and some of them (cow mutilated) seem to have been used to decorate his tomb When commanding at Sangor, he built a temple there." He was buried at Calcutta in a tomb that is a model of a Hindu temple.

³ Cf. J. A. S. B., vol. 67 (1898), p. 325, and vol. 72, pt. 1, p. 119.

We are thus introduced by our inscription to several kings of the Eastern Gaṅga dynasty of Kaliṅga-nagara, namely, Chōḍa-Gaṅga (Ananta-varman), his great-grandson Anaṅga-Bhīma II, or Aniyāṅka-Bhīma, his son Narasimha-dēva I, his son Bhānu-dēva I, and possibly his son Narasimha-dēva II, if the latter is the "Nṛsiṃha-dēva" mentioned in v. 20. These facts in themselves shew that the date given in v. 14 for the foundation of the temple is impossible. Chōḍa-Gaṅga is known to have been crowned in A.D. 1078, and to have reigned until about 1142. Anaṅga-Bhīma I ascended the throne about 1192, and had a reign of ten years; and after him Rājārāja III, Anaṅga-Bhīma II, and Narasimha-dēva I reigned respectively for 17, 34, and 33 years.² Hence it is clear that the writer of the present document in fixing the date of the foundation of the temple had no reliable materials at his command, and utterly miscalculated it.

As already remarked, the site to which the inscription refers is Ēkāmra, i.e. Bhubanēśwar in Orissa, the temples of which are amongst the finest examples of the Northern style of Indian architecture. It is however impossible to discover from which of these temples it comes. It belongs to a Vaiṣṇava sanctuary, and this fact excludes the great Līṅgarāj and other Śaiva temples of the place; but of positive evidence there is no trace. The mention of the river Gandhavatī (Gandha-sindhu, l. 7) and of the lake Bindusaras (l. 8)—on which we may refer the reader to Antiq. of Orissa, vol. 2, pp. 65, 68 ff., 98—do not carry us any further.

¹ This chronogram seems to represent 1100, but it is peculiarly constructed, and in any case the date is wrong (see below). [phaṇindrarasana I take to mean 2, snakes being dvijihva, so that the date intended would be Śaka 1200.—S. K. The accession of Narasimha-Deva II has been ascertained to be about 1275-6 A. D. (see the Śrikūrmam records, Madras Epigraphical Report for 1896, para. 21). The date 1200 would thus be correct for Narasimha-Deva II and not for his father Bhānu. A king Bhānu is said to have reigned between Narasimha I and Narasimha II in Śaka 1193, 1197 (ibid.).—H. K. S.]

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1) Victorious are the deeds of the sportive manifestation of Śambhu (Śiva) in eggar's guise, which are (like) nectar to the eyes of the dames of the city of the King of Gods and which (exercise) dominion over the corners of the moon-eyed (women) who are indolent with play and are revered by the fortune of the bewildered enemy of Jambha [Indra].

(Verse 2) A hero, an emperor, who performed the worship of the goddess Earth with smiling lotuses (that were) the faces of hostile knights cut off in battle, Chōḍa-Gaṅga was the sole enjoyer of the earth from the region of the Gōḍā [Gōḍāvari] as far as the River of the Gods (and became) in the end a gallant to the mistresses of the gods.

(Verse 3) In his lineage was like a flag the heroic Anaṅka-Bhīma, whose profound strength was celebrated by the damsels of a multitude of hostile kings destroyed by (his) might, (and) who was exceedingly proud of (his) similar horses, the speed of which surpassed (that of) the Snakes' Foo [Garuḍa]. With good fortune he destroyed in battle the Yavana, although he possessed an impetuosity that effectively advanced (to the attack):

(Verse 4) Distressed by the sparks of whose radiance, in the guise of the wreath of rubies glittering upon his own thousand heads, Śēsha, that lord of snakes, plunged down into the waters of Pātāla; and from the roaring blasts from the nostrils of whose elephant-troops tempests raged in the sky, (so that) for long he is like a flying leaf.

³ Metre: Śārdūlavikṛīḍita; the same in verses 20 and 21.

⁶ Metre: Vasantatilakā.

⁷ This may also be read as -saushṭhya-.

⁸ Metre: Ślōka (Anuṣṭubh).

(Verse 5)~ From this terrestrial moon of kings was born the beauteous Chandrikā,¹ bathing the world's soul with showers of the delightful nectar of the moon ;

(Verse 6) Dwelling in the lotus of whose face, Fortune thinks not of the (natural) lotus-lake. Having a constant home in (Chandrikā's) modest lotus-eyes, she has no longing for Kṛishṇa ; but, as she embraces her limbs in delight, she takes no thought of the gods : thus she (Chandrikā) becomes as it were a prison-house to enslave the glances of the whole world.

(Verse 7) Her husband Paramardin, an ornament of the Haihaya lineage, having a body of native strength, skilled in warfare, transcends the Lord of the Stars.

(Verse 8) There is this province of Utkala, where the five friends of the god of the five arrows²—the eye and the others—appear fulfilled of desire in (their several) series of objects.

(Verse 9) And there (lies) the holy place (called) Ēkāmra, tenanted by hundreds of mango groves, a single home of the god [Śiva], crowded with families of gods miraculous.

(Verse 10) This is where dwells the Lord of the Mountain's Daughter, who established in the form of the river Gandhayatī³ in the vicinity a stream furnishing a true fount for the company of the gods (and) fortune enabling the valiant Chōḍa-Gaṅga, in intense love for whose descendants Kṛittivāsas⁴ founded it, to win to the throne of Mahēndra ;

(Verse 11) Where is the Bindu-saras (lake),⁵ incomparable ocean, with streams worthy to be drunk by the sight, removing the weariness of travellers as it falls, its body welling forth from nectarous sources ; these holy places do not attain the divine rank of even a drop thereof ? (The place is) distinctly one created in grace to (his) creatures by the Conqueror of the Cities [Śiva], uniquely removing the sorrow of the world.

(Verse 12) See, an old turtle swimming within it is taken by damsels . . . swinging and standing on its back, and made into a pleasure-boat by them, who when it dives in dive in after it here ; at their monkey-like aquatic antics the crowd in front, trembling on the bank, spring up and are thrown into consternation.

(Verse 13) On the bank of this ornament of holy places, which is thick-set with various woods, sanctified by the residence of the blessed Kṛishṇa and the blessed Baladēva, forming a very Nandana,—

(Verse 14) Here, when there had elapsed from the (epoch of the) Śaka king years measured by the dimensions " sky, sky, snake king's tongues, moon ", when Narasiṅga-dēva's son king Bhānu had long been reigning over this land as far as the sea, that daughter of Bhīma constructed for Hari a temple lasting as long as sun and moon.

(Verse 15) Into the temple, which by the stately display of firm golden capitals upon lofty spires suggests the primal spheres whence arose the universe, and is a fitting essence of Brahman, those two parts of Hari as he lies in the great ocean [Kṛishṇa and Bala-dēva] have entered.

(Verse 16) This (temple), brilliant with a thick-set forest of decorations consisting of the two deities [the Sun and Moon], has assumed the nature of a sportive diadem in order to surpass him whose crest-jewel is the moon [Śiva], and has laughed to scorn the Sun.

³ See Antiquities of Orissa, vol. 2, pp. 65, 98.

⁵ See ibid., pp. 68 ff.

(Verse 17) For this (temple), which was constructed by her from affection, the fortunate poet Umāpati, a devotee of the Ēve of the Three Cities, duly composed a dedicatory inscription having perfect merits of every kind, (like) a flagstaff brilliant with gold, in no long time.

(Verse 18) King Bhima gave the name of Chandrā-dēvi to her, who was forsooth modest like the moon of the daughter . . .

(Verse 19) Learned in song, a seat of sport in skilful practice of the arts of musical measure, beating of time, and the dance, having a soul inspired with devotion to Achyuta from childhood onwards, this daughter Chandrikā together with jewels was given by her father to her peer in fortune, the scion of the Haihaya lineage, pure as is the moon, the knight bearing the name of Paramāḍi.

(Verse 20) After he had practised with this wife diverse kinds of pleasure, in which delight was attendant upon amorous passions, the valiant Paramāḍi-dēva, having found the enemies of the battle-loving king Vira-Nṛisimha-dēva to be dwelling in the world of the gods, went himself thither in fury to conquer them, I trow, with full display of glory.

(Verse 21) In the glorious district famed under the name of Ēkāmra, (which is) dear to the blessed Kṛittivāsas, mighty in holiness, bearing as fruit the nectar of Divine revelation, brilliant with flowers of every season, she, inspired with faith, caused to be made for Purushōttama a perfect Vaishṇava temple bestowing welfare, topped with auspicious capitals, in order to visit it.

(Verse 22) She constructed this peerless temple to be like Kōśava himself in bodied shape, having a form beloved by the world from foot to head, busied in holy work, visited by virtuous companies [or, associated with the holy discus], exceedingly bounteous (in dispensation) of holy food [or, of Divine grace].

(Verse 23) Inspired with energy, devotion, and joy, she decorated with diadems and other ornaments Baladēva, Kṛishṇa, and Subhadrā, with a view to (her final) bliss.

NO. 12.—POTAVARAM GRANT OF PRATAPA-PURUSHOTTAMA-DEVA :

SAKA 1412.

By LIONEL D. BARNETT.

Illustrations of the six faces of the copper plates containing this document were published in Part I of the Transactions of the Literary Society of Madras (London, 1827), together with a rather loose translation by Ram Raz, Head English Master in the College of Fort St. George, under the title "A Translation . . . of an ancient Grant in the Carnataca Language" (ib., p. 119). As it has been omitted from Professor Kielhorn's List of Southern Inscriptions (above, vol. 7), I here give a transliteration and amended translation, so that the document may not be altogether lost sight of.²

As the illustrations shew six faces, two of which bear emblems, the document appears to have consisted of three copper plates, of which the first and last were inscribed on only one side and the second on both sides. Nothing is known of its provenance or of its present whereabouts. The plates, if their size is represented correctly in the illustrations, measured $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches from top to bottom and $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches from side to side; their left sides were prolonged angularly outwards, so as to make room for a ring-hole in the middle of the left-hand margin.

² This document was brought to my notice by Dr. Fleet.

The first and second sides of the text are numbered 1 and 2 respectively, on these margins. There are two faces which contain no writing, but are ornamented with devices; on both of them are the sun on the left and the moon on the right, with the bull Nandin in a squatting posture underneath, his haunch being marked by a liṅga on an abhishēka-stand. They seem to have been in perfect preservation.—The character is Telugu: the letters are somewhat irregular in shape, and of an average height of $\frac{1}{2}$ inch. The lines of the text are divided by ruled lines.—The language is Telugu as far as l. 20; then come three comminatory verses in Sanskrit. Grammar and spelling are very careless and inaccurate, and it is unnecessary to point out and correct all the blunders which teem in the record. The distinction between the long and the short vowels i, e, and o appears usually to be neglected.

The subject of the grant is the gift of the village of Pōtavāram for the maintenance of the worship of Mahādēva (Śiva) at Chadaluvāḍa, the donor being the Gajapati of Orissa, Pratāpa-Purushōttama-dēva, in the Śaka year 1412. One of the standing titles of the Gajapatis, applied to him here, was Kalubarigēśvara, "Lord of Gulbarga"; but this had long been a mere fiction, and one of their most formidable enemies had been the Bahmani dynasty ruling in Gulbarga since the accession of Bahman Shāh in A.D. 1347. But shortly before the date of our record the fortunes of the Gajapatis had taken a turn, rising in proportion as the empire of Gulbarga declined, and by 1490 Purushōttama seems to have recovered much, if not all, of the Telugu territories recently wrested from his kingdom by the Bahmani Muḥammad Shāh II. In order to secure his possession of the throne, to which he succeeded in A.D. 1469-70, Purushōttama apparently had ceded to Muḥammad a large part of his Telugu dominions. A few years later he tried to recover them. Muḥammad responded to this move by an invasion of Orissa in 1477; but it seems to have failed, more or less, for in 1488-89 the disputed territories had reverted to the Gajapati. Purushōttama died in 1496-97.¹

A chronological difficulty arises in connection with this inscription. In l. 7 it equates the cyclic year Saumya, corresponding to Śaka 1412 (current), with the trisāṅka of Purushōttama's reign (l. 7). This word trisāṅka can only mean "the third aṅka", according to what is known as the Oṅko cycle of Orissa. The aṅkas, or figures of a reign, are calculated by omitting all numbers that end in zero except ten and all that end in six, so that in a reign of thirty years the first, sixth, sixteenth, twentieth, and twenty-sixth years are omitted in counting the aṅkas.² Now Purushōttama's other inscriptions shew that the second aṅka of his reign, his third regnal year, fell in A.D. 1470, and that his third aṅka began on Bhādrapada śukla 12 of Śaka 1393 current;³ hence the given month Kārttika of the year Saumya, Śaka 1412 current, falling in A.D. 1483, must have been in his twenty-third aṅka, and our inscription should accordingly be corrected so as to read samastavunī 23 aṅka, with some appropriate word meaning "twenty-third" (possibly tri-viṃśa, for tri-viṃśa) in the place of the trisa of the text.

As regards the items of the date, other than the aṅka-year, Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks:—"The given details are in the first place the cyclic year Saumya, coupled according to the southern luni-solar system of that cycle with Śaka 1412 (current) beginning in March, A.D. 1489. Then the day, which is that of the fifteenth tithi of the bright fortnight of Kārttika. Then the weekday, which is expressed by the abbreviation Ma. And then mention is made of the Kṛittikā-yōga: but, as Kṛittikā is not known as a name of any of the twenty-seven yogas, the meaning seems to be that the moon was in the Kṛttikā nakshatra. If the abbreviation Ma was intended to mean Maṅgala-vāra, Tuesday, as would usually be the case and was understood by Rān Raz, the date is an irregular one, since the given tithi cannot in any way be connected with a Tuesday. But, if we may take it as denoting Manda-vāra, which is a quite permissible name, though not much used, of Saturday, then the details may be taken as answering to Saturday, 7 November, A.D. 1489, on which day the given tithi Kārttika śukla 15 began at about 6 h. 52 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain), i.e. at about an hour after midday, and the moon entered Kṛttikā about twenty-eight minutes later: the local times, for Guṇṭūr, would be about eighteen minutes later." It is, however, most likely that we must take the given day to be Tuesday, and class the date as an irregular one.

² See the account of the Oṅko reckoning in Sewell and Dikshit's Indian Calendar, p. 38; also Ind. Ant. vol. 19, p. 255, and J. A. S. B., vol. 62, pt. 1, p. 59.

³ Bhādrapada śukla 12 is the day with which the years of the Oṅko reckoning always begin.

The towns and villages mentioned are all surviving. Kalubariga is the present Gulbarga in the Nizam's territory: the Orissa inscriptions usually mention the city as Kalavaraga or Kalavaraka: the modern spelling of its name, at first Kulbarga and more recently Gulbarga, seems to be due to a popular etymology, perhaps connecting the name with the Persian gul. Pōtavāram, the village granted, still exists under the same name: it lies in lat. 15° 40', long. 80° 8', according to the Indian Atlas sheet 75.¹ Our record states that it forms part of the śimā of Ammanāmbōlu (l. 10); the latter is the modern Ammanabrōlu, which is given on the same map as a village in lat. 15° 34' and long. 80° 12', with a station of the same name on the Madras Railway in lat. 15° 36', long. 80° 11'. Chadaluvāḍa (ll. 8, 9) is in lat. 15° 36' and long. 80° 8'. All these three villages are in the Ongole tāluka of Guṇṭūr District, Madras Presidency.

(Lines 13-20)—To him who maintains this pious foundation shall accrue the merit of performing a hundred sacrifices at Benares; he shall have life, health, dominion, and increase. They who obstruct this pious foundation will incur the guilt of slaying on the banks of the Ganges ten thousand tawny cows and Brāhmanas.

(Lines 20-28)—I bear on my head the slippers of the offspring of (any) line,—born of my line or born of the line of other kings,—who, inspired with brilliant righteousness, constantly maintain this my pious foundation. The maintenance of another's donation is twice as meritorious as making a gift oneself; if one takes away another's gift, his own donation will be without effect. No. 13.—INSCRIPTIONS IN THE UDAYAGIRI AND KHANDAGIRI CAVES.

By R. D. BANERJI, M.A.

The inscriptions in the caves on the Khandagiri were published for the first time by James Prinsep in 1837.¹ The late Rājā Rājendra Lāla Mitra copied Prinsep's transcripts and translations in his great work on the antiquarian remains of Orissa.² But mechanical stampages of these inscriptions have not been published as yet. The late Pandit Bhāḡwan Lal Indraji published his own reading of the big Hāthigumphā inscription and three of the smaller inscriptions in 1885.³ Dr. Fleet's recent suggestions⁴ about the interpretation of certain passages of this inscription (the Hāthigumphā inscription of Khāravēla) have made the publication of a mechanical inked impression absolutely necessary. I had the opportunity of examining the inscriptions in November 1913 and the inked impressions reproduced in the accompanying plates were made by Babu Hari Das Dutta, Draftsman of the Archaeological Survey, Eastern Circle. I made no attempt to copy the inscription of Khāravēla, as the time at my disposal was limited, and the record was a big one.

I.—Inscription in the Manchapuri Cave—Upper Story.

This cave is called Vaikuṇṭha gubhā by Prinsep and Vaikuṇṭhapura by Mitra. It is in reality the upper story of a cave with two stories and a side-wing, but the local people very often give different names to different parts. It was known as svargapura some time ago.⁵ In the plan printed with the Puri volume of the Bengal District Gazetteer, the whole group is called Mañchapuri. I have found that the local names of these caves vary with each generation. As one name is forgotten a new one is immediately invented.

The record is incised on the raised space between the second and third doorways in front. This raised space represents a house or veranda, with a pointed roof, and spires supported by quaint little dwarfs, who act as brackets. It consists of three lines which have suffered much from exposure. The characters of this and the two following inscriptions are slightly later than those of the Hāthigumphā inscription of Khāravēla.

NOTES.

(1) The eighth letter in the first line was taken by Bhagwan Lal Indraji to be na and this assumption led to the translation, "of the Arahata profession"; which is rather strained. It, however, appears to be ya. There is a short vertical stroke attached to the right end of the horizontal base line of the letter and there are indications of a similar vertical stroke at the left end. It cannot be na as the forms of other known cases are normal and quite different from that of this one. Take for example the form of na as we find it in samanānam in the same line or dhutunā in the second line.

(2) The last word in the first line appears to be Lālākasa and not Lālakasa; in fact the ā mark is more prominent in the second syllable than in the first. The last letter of the first line is sa, and is distinctly visible on the stone, though on account of weathering it has become deep and is indistinct in the impression.

(3) The fifth letter in the second line is clearly sa. It does not resemble pa in the least. The third letter of this line is a sa and the fifth letter resembles it in all respects. It is very difficult to understand what led Pandit Bhagwan Lal to read Hathisāhānam instead of Hathisāhasa.

(4) There is an ā stroke in the third letter after Kaliṅga in l. 2 which Pandit Bhagwan Lal proposed to read va of chakavaṭi.

"This temple of the Arahats (and) cave for the Śramaṇas of Kalinga has been made. It has been made by the chief queen of the illustrious Khāravēla, the overlord of Kalinga, who was the daughter of King Lalaka, the grandson of Hastisāhasa (or Hastisāha)."

II.—Inscription in Manchapuri Cave—Lower Story, Front Wall.

A faint impression still lingers in the minds of men that a king named Aira is mentioned in one of the inscriptions at Khandagiri. I believe this is the inscription which has fostered that impression. The first word of this inscription was read Vērasa by Prinsep and Bhagwan Lal. Dr. Lüders reads it as airasa and translates it as "noble." Some scholars have even gone so far as to assert that this word is the name of the king. I find that there is no epigraphical record in the inscriptions in the Khandagiri and Udayagiri caves in which a king named Aira is mentioned.

The record is incised on a raised band between the third and fourth doors from the left.

NOTES.

(1) The first word was read Vērasa by Prinsep¹ and Bhagwan² Lal and Airasa by Professor H. Lüders.³ I found, on careful examination, that it cannot be either. The letter consists of a triangular base, one side of the triangle being projected towards the proper right and ending in a curve. Now, if this syllable had been Vē, it would have been a triangle with a short vertical line on the top of the apex, with another horizontal straight line to the proper right. This horizontal line would have been perfectly straight, indicating the ē mark. In this inscription the ā is denoted by a perfectly horizontal straight stroke to the proper left, consequently the ē stroke should be denoted by a straight horizontal stroke to the proper right. This is really so, as we find in lē of lēṇam, the last word of the inscription. The ē stroke was also used in another syllable, mē of Mahānēghavāhana, but this syllable is now lost. So the first syllable of the inscription cannot be Vē.

Similarly it cannot be ai. The Brāhmī letter ai in any period consists of the initial and medial forms of ē. In this period the initial ē is a triangle placed in any position and the medial ē mark, as we have seen, is a straight horizontal line to the proper right. So the first syllable of the first word cannot be ai. The side of the triangle which has been projected to the proper left limb of it, and the extremity of the projection is distinctly curved downwards. The only other letter with which we can compare our akshara, is the kha of the second century B.C. of the earliest¹ inscriptions from Mathurā.² The only difference between the form used in the Mathura inscription and that of the present inscription is that the curve is more pronounced in the former.

On a close examination of the first line of the Hāthigumphā inscription, I find that the word vērēṇa should also be read Kharēṇa. The triangular form of the base of kha is rather unusual in this inscription, but I find that it actually occurs in the name Khāravēla at the end of the first line. The first word of the Hāthigumphā inscription, after the invocation, has been taken by Dr. Indraji to be an adjective and not a proper name. Now it appears that the first word of this inscription also is an adjective and not a proper name. Khara, Mahārāja, Kalīṅgādhipati, Mahāmāghavāhana, all appear to be titles of the ancient dynasty to which Khāravēla belonged. In the Hāthigumphā inscription they are in the instrumental case, and in the Mañchapuri inscription in the possessive.

(2) The name of the king seems to be Kūḍēpasirī. It cannot be Vakradēva as we have two short horizontal strokes attached to the lower extremity of ka. There is no doubt that this represents the long u, as in the same word we find that two short vertical strokes represent the long i in sirī.

III.—Inscription in Mañchapuri Cave—Lower Story, Side Wall.

This inscription³ is incised on the right wall of the veranda of the lower story, to the right of the entrance to the right-hand side-chamber of the main wing. It consists of one line:—

TEXT.

Kumārō Vaḍukhasa lēṇaṁ

NOTES.

- (1) The α stroke in kumārō is added to the middle instead of the top.
- (2) The medial u in Vaḍukha is very small in size but quite distinct.
- (3) The kha in Vaḍukha is very remarkable, as it has neither a triangle nor a circle at its base. On this ground this record may be considered to be a little earlier than the inscription of king Kūḍēpasirī.

TRANSLATION.

“The cave of the Prince Vaḍukha.”

IV.—Inscription in the Sarpagumpha, over the doorway.

This inscription,⁴ consisting of one line, is incised over the doorway of the Sarpagumpha, which is very close to the Barā Hāthigumphā (No. 14 of the plan published in the Bengal District Gazetteer, Puri).

TEXT.

Chūlakamasa (1) koṭhājēyā (2) cha

NOTES.

(1) The first word looks like Chūlakēmēsa, owing to the abrasions on the inscribed surface. [The estampage seems to read Chūakrēmēsa.—S. K.]

(2) Koṭhā and jēyā have been separated by Dr. Lüders, most probably because it is followed by the conjunction cha. Koṭha, Skt. kōshṭha, is still in use in Modern Vernaculars to denote a brick or stone-built house or chamber, or even a fort. Jēyā may have a technical meaning and may denote the veranda or some other part, while koṭhā denotes the main chamber. But it is also possible to take it in another way, in which there is a sandhi between this word and ajēyā, "unconquerable," qualifying koṭha or koṭhā. The only difficulty is the use of the conjunction.

TRANSLATION.

V.—Inscription in the Sarpagumpha, to the left of the doorway.

This record¹ consists of two lines and the characters used in it are about a century later in date than those of the other epigraph in this cave. The characters belong to the first century B.C.

TEXT (1).

- 1 Kaṁmasa Halakhi-
- 2 paya (2) cha (3) pasādo (4)

NOTES.

(1) The inscribed surface is so rough that it is very difficult to distinguish vowel marks or anusvāras.

(2) The second word is Halakshinaya [=Ślakṣhāyāḥ?—F. W. T.]; the second syllable being lu and not ra.

(3) In the second line cha is written chē.

(4) The shortening of the vowel in the first syllable of pasādo (Skt. prāsādo) is also to be noticed in Mathurā Inscriptions of the same period.²

VI.—Inscription in the Haridas Cave.

This record³ consists of a single line and is incised over one of the three entrances to the main chamber of the cave from the veranda. The characters belong to the first century B.C. and are distinctly later in form than those of the Mañchapuri inscriptions.

TEXT.

Chūlakramasa pasāto koṭhājēy[ā] cha

NOTES.

(1) The last two letters of the record have been partly broken away; but a part of the curve of ya and the vertical line of cha is distinct in the impression.

² See ante, Vol. II, p. 198, No. 1. [The plate has, however, pāsādo, though the ā-stroke is indistinct and perhaps erased. If we should read pasādo, this word is perhaps Skt. prasāda, a gift. I would also explain pasāto in No. VI in the same way, and in No. I, where Mr. Banerji translates pasādāyam as if we had pāsādo-yam, I would explain pasādāya, where the anusvāra is uncertain, as the dative of pasāda=prasāda, gift.—S. K.]

³ Lüders, No. 1353. In the plate this inscription has been, by mistake, inverted.

(2) The ē mark in jēyā is not very distinct. Here also we may take koṭhājēyā as being united by sandhi; and ajēyā as the adjective of koṭhā. It is interesting to note that here two words denoting almost the same thing, i.e., pasāto (Skt. prāsāda) and koṭha or koṭhā, have been used, and that we here find the word pasāto. The Sarpagumphā has only one small chamber, but the Haridāsgumphā has a veranda, a large inner chamber with three doorways and one small side chamber on each side. So it is quite possible that the word pasāto refers to the main chamber and the word koṭhā to the side chambers.

(3) The donor of this cave has the same name as that of the Sarpagumphā, though the persons must have been different, as the epigraphs are separated in date by more than a century.

VII.—Inscription in the Bagh Cave.

This record¹ is incised on the outer wall of the inner chamber of the Bāgh or Tiger cave (No. 15 of the plan). It consists of two lines. The characters used are as old as the inscriptions in the Mañchapuri cave and belong to the second century B.C.

TEXT.

- 1 (1) Nagara-akhadamsa (2)

NOTES.

(1) The inscription begins with a symbol which resembles one of the symbols on the lower part of one of the pillars found in the recent excavations at Pāṭaliputra, which is a modification of the cruz ansata or the Egyptian Symbol of life. It ends with a regular, well-formed Śaśtika mark.

(2) The reading of the first line has been established by Dr. Lüders.

(3) The first letter of the second line is probably a part of the name of the donor and is not connected with the second word of the first line. There is plenty of space after the last letter of the first line and so it cannot be said that the possessive case ending had to be incised in the lower line for want of space. Generally a mason does not mutilate words, when there is no dearth of space.² The name of the donor therefore seems to be Sabhūti, which is intended to be Subhūti.

TRANSLATION.

"The cave of the town-judge Sabhūti (Subhūti)."

VIII.—Inscription in the Jambesvara Cave.

This record³ is incised over one of the entrances to the inner chamber of the Jambesvara cave (No. 16 of the plan). The characters of the inscription are of the same age as those used in the Mañchapuri inscriptions.

NOTES.

- (1) The a in da in the first letter is superfluous.
- (2) Bāriyāya is a mistake for bhāriyāya.
- (3) The i in Nākiya is not long, as stated by Dr. Lüders.

IX.—Inscription in the Chota Hathigumpha.

This inscription does not seem to have been noticed before in print. It seems to have been noticed for the first time by Mr. A. E. Caddy, when he was taking casts of these inscriptions for the Calcutta Museum, as there is a good cast of it in that institution. The record consists of a single line, very much mutilated, on the outer face of the tympanum of the arch over the doorway.

X.—Inscription in Tatwagumpha No. II.

This inscription is the oldest of the inscriptions in the Khandagiri caves. Most of the caves on the Udayagiri are ancient, as proved by their inscriptions; but, with the exception of Tatwagumphā No. 1, Tatwagumphā No. 2 and Anantagumphā, all other Khandagiri caves appear to be mediæval, as the inscriptions in them are not earlier than the ninth or tenth century A.D. The record in this cave is incised over one of the entrances to the inner chamber and consists of one line (No. 1344 of Dr. Lüders' list). The cave is No. 1 of the plan of the Gazetteer.

TRANSLATION.

XI.—Inscription in the Anantagumpha.

There are two inscriptions in the Anantagumphā, one on the architrave outside and the other on the rock outside the cave. The second one was noticed by the late J. D. M. Beglar,¹ and both of them were afterwards noticed by Babu Mon Mohan Chakravartti in his "Notes on the Remains in Dhauli and in the caves of Udayagiri and Khandagiri," which was printed by the Government of Bengal in 1903. This inscription is incised "on the architrave outside, between the left antæ and the first pillar." The characters of this inscription are certainly later than those used in the inscription in Tatwa cave No. 2. No other notice of this inscription has been published, except Mr. Chakravartti's note; but there is a cast of this inscription in the Indian Museum, taken by the late Mr. A. E. Caddy in 1895.

XII.—Inscription in Anantagumpha.

This record is incised on the rock outside the veranda of the Anantagumphā. Mr. Chakravartti reads it *Dajachāra*¹ but it is really something like a mason's mark. There are three symbols, of which a central one is the Brāhmī letter ja, while the other two may resemble, but are not, letters.

XIII.—Painted inscription in Tatwagumpha No. 1.

This inscription was noticed for the first time by the late Mr. J. D. M. Beglar in 1882, who published an eye copy of it with his report.² But unfortunately the eye copy was printed upside down. Mr. Mon Mohan Chakravartti tried to read it from this plate, but apparently did not succeed. The whole inscription is written or painted on the back wall of the inner chamber of the cave, and on prolonged examination I found that, in addition to a row of letters which I cannot make out, it was a repetition of the Indian alphabet. Some young monk had used the back wall of the cell as a copy book and improved his knowledge of the alphabet by writing on it. The characters belong to the first century B.C. or first century A.D.

XIV.—Inscription of Udyotakesari in the Navamuni Cave.

There are two inscriptions in the Navamuni cave, both of which belong to the same date, about the tenth century A.D. The first inscription was incised in the eighteenth year of the reign of Udyōta-kēsari-Dēva, and is to be found on the inner side of the architrave. The inscription was noticed by the late Mr. J. D. M. Beglar, who published it with Cunningham's reading of it.³ The only other known inscription of Udyōtakēsari is the, now lost, long inscription published by Prinsep.⁴ Mr. Mon Mohan Chakravartti also tried to read the Navamuni cave inscription. It consists of three lines and has been very clearly incised.

XVI.—Inscription of Udyotakesari in Lalatendu-Kesari's Cave.

This inscription was discovered in the cave called Lalāṭendukēsari's cave or Lion gate by Mr. S. Ganguli, photographer of the Archaeological Survey, in October 1913. It is incised on the back wall of the cave, at a height of about thirty or forty feet from the floor of the cave above a group of Jain images of the Digambara sect. It is not in a good state of preservation. The record consists of five lines of characters of the same date as those used in Nos. XIV and XV. The language used is very incorrect Sanskrit.

No. 14.—BANKAPUR INSCRIPTION OF THE TIME OF SOMESVARA I AND THE KADAMBA HARIKESARIN; SAKA 977.

By LIONEL D. BARNETT.

Baṅkāpūr, the town which gives its name to the Baṅkāpūr tāluka in Dhārwar District, Bombay Presidency, is situated in lat. 14° 55' N. and long. 75° 16' E.; the ancient town, Hale Baṅkāpūr, lies nearly two miles south-by-south-west from the modern town. From it comes the present inscription, which is now edited for the first time from a photograph and an ink-impression belonging to Dr. Fleet, who has kindly lent them to me.¹

The inscription is incised on an oblong stone slab topped by a sort of slightly projecting pediment. The sculptures on the latter, as shown on the photograph, are, in the centre, a linga on an abhishēka stand, with the sun and moon on the left and right respectively, and a chakra on the top: there appear to have been also other sculptures, now unrecognizable. The area covered by the writing is about 5 ft. 8½ in. in height and 2 ft. 8½ in. in breadth.

The character is fairly good Kanarese of the period, strongly resembling that of the Belagāmi inscription published in Ind. Ant., Vol. IV, p. 179;² the letters are approximately from ⅔" to ⅞" in height, and are well preserved throughout, except in lines 3 and 4, which have been completely defaced, apparently by some vandal who endeavoured to break off the upper part of the stone. The language is Kanarese of the ancient type, in prose and verse, except for the eight Sanskrit stanzas on ll. 1-3, 17-18, and 55-59, and one on ll. 3-4 which is lost. On the side of grammar the inscription is not of any special interest. Some words are worth notice, such as uppaṭṭa-varshe (l. 22), adagunti (l. 26), aṁtigi (l. 47), gāṇḍharviga (l. 47), piriy-ara (l. 48), kal-vesa (l. 50), etc. In ll. 40, 41, we have several instances of the use, found in other records too, of a god's name in the neuter, to denote the temple of the god. As regards orthography, we may note that there is a frequent confusion between s, ś, and sh, besides many other errors. Instances of the Kanarese confusion between r and l are punal (l. 18) and mattal (l. 46, beside mattar in ll. 47-48); cf. Dr. Fleet's observations in Ind. Ant., Vol. XIX, p. 274. The archaic ḷ does not appear, except in iḷḍu (l. 34) and pēḷḍ- (l. 54), ḷ being substituted for it elsewhere. The u is often used, but not always, to denote the absence of a vowel after a consonant. In -vaḷeya- (l. 17), we have the popular change of ay to ey.

After the introductory verses, the inscription refers itself to the reign of the Chalukya emperor Trailōkyamalla-(S3mēśvara I), and to a time when his son Satyavākya-Komgunivarman Permanaḍi Vikramāditya-dēva (afterwards Vikramāditya VI)³ was governing the Gaṅgavāḍi ninety-six thousand and the Banavāsi twelve-thousand (ll. 4-10), and when the Kādamba Mahāmaṇḍuḷēśvara Harikēsari-dēva, whose name is also found in the forms Arikēsari-dēva (l. 33), Hariga (ll. 22, 23), and Ariga (l. 17), was administering the Banavāsi twelve-thousand in company with his wife Lachchala-dēvi (ll. 10-27). Its object is to record (ll. 28-37) that, on the petition of the cloth-merchant Kēti Seṭṭi, Harikēsarin and Lachchala-dēvi, in conjunction with representatives of the five maṭhas of Baṅkāpura and sixteen burgesses of that town, in A.D. 1055, made a donation to the god Kadambēśvara, the tutelary deity of the Kādamba race, granting to Somaśvara-panḍita-dēva, as trustee, a taḷa-vṛitti estate consisting of a village named Paḷlavura. After a statement that the Binavāsi-puravar-śvara Satyāśraya-dēva made a grant of all taxes under his control (ll. 37-39), the document specifies the boundaries of the estate (ll. 39-44) and the divisions thereof for particular purposes and beneficiaries (ll. 44-50).

² He is here described with the usual Gāṅga titles, Kaṣaḷā-puravar-ēśvara, Namdagiri-nāṭha, etc. As he himself reigned A.D. 1076-1126, he must have been quite a child, and his government must have been a nominal one, at the time of this record.

When & under what circumstances a Kādamba family came to be governing the Banavāsi province and the town of Baṅkāpūr is very obscure. Baṅkāpūr had witnessed many vicissitudes of fortune in its rulers. It took its name from Baṅkeya—likewise styled Baṅkeyarasa, Baṅkeyarāja, and Baṅkēśa—a son of Adhōra, of the Mukula or Sellakēṭana (Chellakēṭana) family,¹ a feudatory of Amoghavarsha I, who appears in one inscription² as administering the Banavāsi twelve-thousand, the Belgali three-hundred, the Kuṇḍarage seventy, the Kuṇḍār five-hundred, and the Purigeṇa three-hundred, while his son Kuṇḍaṭṭe governed the Niḍugundage twelve. Probably he flourished about A.D. 860.³ His son Lōkāditya, also known as Lōkaṭeyarasa, was residing in Baṅkāpūr as governor of the Banavāsi province under Kṛishṇa II Akālavarsha, in Śaka 820 current (A.D. 897);⁴ and A.D. 902, under the same king, he was governing a still larger extent of country, comprising 31,102 towns and composed of the Banavāsi 12,000, the Palasige 12,000, the Mānyakhēḍa 6,000, the Kolann 30, the Lōkāpura 12, the Toregare 60, and some 1,000 district (very likely Tardavāḍi) the name of which was omitted.⁵ In Śaka 841 (current), we find another Baṅkeya—most probably a Sellakēṭana also—ruling over the Banavāsi province as a feudatory of Indra III Nityavarsha. The last of the family who appears on record is Kali-Viṭṭa, who was holding the same office under Kṛishṇa III in Śaka 868 (current), A.D. 945. Within a few years from that date Banavāsi seems to have come under the control of the Māṭūras.⁶ After the lapse of nearly a century we find in the present inscription a Kādamba prince Harikēśarin or Arikēśarin governing the Banavāsi province under a younger son of the reigning king of the now dominant Chālukya line. This is the earliest known connection of the later Kādambas with the province.

The details of the date of this record (l. 30) are: the Śaka year 977; the cyclic year Manmatha; the thirteenth day of the bright fortnight of Paushya (Pausha); Sōmavāra (Monday); the uttarāyaṇa-samkrānti or winter solstice. Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks:—"This Manmatha saṃvatsara was the Śaka year 977 expired, beginning in March, A.D. 1055. The given tithi Pausha śukla 13 answers in this year to Wednesday, 3 January, A.D. 1056, on which day it ended at about 15 h. 31 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain), and cannot in any way be connected with a Monday, which is the given weekday. Further, the winter solstice occurred at 14 hours after mean sunrise on Sunday, 24 December, A.D. 1055, ten days before the given tithi; and it, too, cannot in any way be connected with a Monday. Thus, the date is altogether irregular both for the tithi and the solstice. It may be added that the tithi of the day of the solstice was Pausha śukla 3, which ended at about 38 minutes after mean sunrise on the Sunday. But this does not help us: because, in the first place, the figures are unmistakably 13; secondly, the day, as has been said, was a Sunday, instead of a Monday; and thirdly, the tithi actually current at the moment of the solstice was śukla 4."

Several places are mentioned, beside Baṅkāpura. The village granted, Paḷlavura, cannot be traced on the map; we are told, however, that it lay in the Niḍugundage twelve, which was a

TRANSLATION.

Fortune !—(Verse 1)—Homage to Thee, Śiva, to whom are patent the realms of reality, the friend of the universe, cause of the maintenance, dissolution, and birth of the cosmos, universal soul, conqueror of wrath and Desire, lord of Thine own worlds !

(Verse 2)—May the blest destroyer of the demon Andha, maker of creation and dissolution, potent to preserve the earth by means of Fortune (seated) in the lotus that is the Kadamba lineage, grant protection.

(Verse 3)—

(Lines 4-6)—[Hail !] While the victorious reign of the refuge of the whole world, the favourite of Fortune and the Earth, the Mahārājādhirāja, the Paramēśvara, the Paramabhaṭṭāraka, the ornament of [Satyāśraya's] family, the embellishment of the Chālukyas, king Trailōkyamalla, was proceeding on a course of successively increasing prosperity, (to endure) as long as moon, sun, and stars ; (and) his son—

(Lines 6-11)—Hail !—He that is praised of all monarchs, Satyavākya Koṅgunivarman, the emperor of righteousness, supreme lord, lord of Kuvalālapura best of cities, master of Nandagiri, having the crest of a fiery royal elephant, receiving the grace of boons from Padmāvatī, a Kāma of the Gaṅgas, a Gaṅga of truth, an archway of victory, a wishing-jewel to sages, a crest-jewel on the diadems of rulers of provinces, the Chālukya-Gaṅga Permanaḍi Vikramāditya-dēva, was ruling the Gaṅgavādī ninety-six-thousand and the Banavāse twelve-thousand so as to suppress the wicked and protect the excellent, with enjoyment of pleasant conversations :—

(Lines 11-17)—Hail ! While he who bears all titles such as “ a Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara who possesses the five mahāśabdās, lord of Banavāsi best of cities, ornament of the lineage of the great monarch Mayūravarmā the Kādamba emperor which is sprung from the Three-eyed [Śiva] and Earth presides over eighty-four cities, is consecrated in eighteen world-renowned horse-sacrifices of Śiva and Viṣṇu, binds its fiery elephants to crystal pillars established by its might on the massive summits of the royal mountains of Himālaya,⁴ and is charming in its great majesty,—he who is attended by the thunder of the permaṭṭi and (other) musical instruments ; he who is brilliant with the banner (having for device) the lord of apes ; whose crest is the lion exalted in pride ; a giver of abundant gold ; a warrior to assailants ; a gun to the lotuses of the Kadamba race ; an elephant to the lotuses his enemies ; an adamant chamber for those who come to him for refuge ; a Mēru among the exalted ; ” (to wit), the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Harikēśari-dēva, was ruling over the Banavāsi twelve-thousand :—

(Verse 4)—All the nobly born Kshatriyas whom this sun and moon know¹ within the circle of the ocean have their heads bound by thy royal badge of office, Ariga; much more then is thy foot worshipped by the multitude.

(Verse 5)—Possessing seventy-seven banners² (with the device) of the lord of apes, sovereign of the Kadambas, attended by the sound of the permaṭṭi and (other) musical instruments, having performed eighteen horse-sacrifices, lord of eighty-four towns belonging to Rudra's lineage, bearing the ensign of a lion, having puissant might established upon the lordly Himālaya and possessing the glorious majesty of Hiranyagarbha—(such) is the Kadamba emperor.

(Lines 20-23)—Om! Dwelling on the broad bosom of this Kadamba emperor—hail!—she who has for her lot a thousand fruits of ceaseless supremely blessed success; equal to a second Fortune; a treasure of bounty; a river³ of charms; a wishing-jewel of liberality; receiving the grace of boons from Gauri; having the fragrance of the champaka; a vidyādhari of discernment; a mistress of all arts; purifying her gōtra; swarthy of limb as a śrīvāt of dārvā; delighting the court; crushing the pride of rival wives; raining abundance³; attractive to righteousness; the royal swan in the lake of Hariga's soul; charming in grace; the half of Hariga's body; a celestial cow to her household—(to wit) Lachchala-dēvi :—

(Verse 6)—“A charming dame of glorious fame, who, brilliantly displaying herself as the Lady Fortune on the bosom of that valiant king Hariga the bridegroom of the Lady Earth, as the Lady Victory on his pair of stout arms, (and) as the Lady Eloquence in his mouth, has won high exaltation”: in these words the folk of this world extol Lachchala-dēvi.

(Verse 7)—Dames of the rulers of Vaṅgas, . . . Magadhas, Koṅgas, Kaliṅgas, . . . Draviḷas, Maḷayas, Mālavas, Vēṅgi, Gāṅgōyas, and Pāṇḍyas, are they peer to you, O Lachchala-dēvi?

(Verse 8)—“A bound of courtesy, a home of righteousness, a native soil of truth, a structure of greatness, a great treasure of bounty, a jewel-heap of excellence, a delightful palace of virtue, a royal fillet of knowledge, (at once) witty and modest, renowned among the virtuous”: in these terms the folk of this world extol Lachchala-dēvi.

(Line 28)—While thus they were ruling the kingdom with enjoyment of pleasant conversations; in view of a petition of the cloth-merchant Kēti Seṭṭi touching divine service,—

(Lines 29-31)—For the benefit of the god Kadambēśvara belonging to (the cult of) the lineage of the Kadambas, following the usage of aforetime, king Harikēśarin and Lachchala-dēvi and the establishment of five monasteries of the city Baṅkapura and the burgesses of the (latter) town, and the Sixteen (burgesses), at (?) at the residence of settlement of the Īśa [Śiva] of the thirty-six towns,

(Lines 31-32)—On Sunday, the thirteenth day of the bright fortnight of Paushya of the cyclic year Manmatha, the 977th year of the Śaka era, at the time of the sun's entering on his northern course, during a vyatīpātā,

(Lines 32-36)—Hail!—King Arikēśarin, having laved the feet of Sōmēśvara-panḍita-dōva, who is endowed with the virtues of practice of the major and minor disciplines, scripture-

² Sapta-saptati may go with Kadamba (country), if that perchance had 77 divisions.—H. K. S.

reading, meditation, spiritual concentration, observance of silence, prayer, and ecstacy, with pouring of water, acting together with the ministers, establishing a place of devotion, granted on taḷa-vṛitti tenure Pallavura, forming part of the Niḍugundage twelve, a kampana of the Pānuṅgal five-hundred, which follows the usage of aforetime, so that it be universally respected, with settlement of rights generally included¹ (to wit,) fixed land-rent, petty taxes, petty dues, the *dramma*² ca donations, house-taxes, and revenue from fines.

(Lines 36-37)—The establishment of the five monasteries and the Sixteen (burgesses) thus shall protect this pious foundation.

(Lines 37-39)—The possessor of the five mahāśabdas, the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara, lord of Banavāsi best of cities, brother-in-law of heroes, teacher of high resolution, gambler with warriors, king Satyāśraya, granted all taxes under his own control, as a universally respected (right) so long as moon and sun endure.

(Lines 39-42)—As to the boundary of the field for the sacred food (and) the flower-garden (which belong) to the establishment of the god: on the east the (?) rice-land is the boundary; on the south-east, the temple of Biddabēśvara; on the south, the Kadamba Tank; on the south-west, the boundary of the temple of Trikūṭēśvara; on the west, the temple of Jakkēśvara; on the north-west, the boundary of the temple of Chāvundēśvara; on the north, the upright phallic stone on the road; on the north-east, the temple of Deviśvara is the boundary.

(Lines 42-44)—As to the taḷa-vṛitti estate of the god: the boundary of the demesne of the town is, on the east, a cross-hill; on the south-east, a pile of stones; on the south, a phallic stone; on the south-west, a clump of stones; on the west, the boundary is the tank of the Jāla-gaṭṭa; on the north-west, the pool of the basuri tree; on the north, the stone well within the tank of the mattī tree; on the north-east, the holy hill. Thus the bounds on the four sides of access.

(Lines 44-50)—Within it (there are assigned) for the personal enjoyment of the god (and) for the restoration of broken, burst, and outworn (parts of the buildings), one hundred mattar (measured) by the daṇḍa of the royal standard; for the choultry, twenty-five mattar; for the monastery, twelve mattar; for the charities to students, twelve mattar; as an *unbali*³ for the Gāvundas (village headmen), twelve and a half mattar grain-field; for the antiga with the special tēja-rights of the cloth-merchant Kēti Setṭi, the manager of (the properties of) the god, twelve mattar; for the drummers, ten mattar; for the musicians, six mattar; for the manager of the estate, six mattar; for the piriy-ara,⁴ six mattar; for the four persons of the pole,⁵ twenty mattar; for the (maintenance of the) two chowries, ten mattar; for the troop of six public women, twenty-four mattar; for the keeper of the public women, five mattar; for the dancing-master, five mattar; for the artificer (oja)⁶ who fixed the carved stones in the field of the god, five mattar.

(Lines 50-53)—So to such as shall protect this pious foundation shall accrue the same fruit as if they had decorated the horns and hoofs of a thousand kine with the five kinds of jewels⁶ at Benares, Kurukshetra, Prayāga, Arghyaśrītha, Kēdāra, Śrīśaila, the Ganges, Gangāsāgara, and other holy places and bestowed them as *ubhayamukhis*¹ upon a thousand Brāhmanas learned in the Four Vēdas; the same fruit shall accrue as if they had made a great banquet to a crore of ascetics at Bonares.

² "The rent-free grant of a plot of ground or of a village" (Kittel, s. v. unbali).

(Lines 53-55)—So to him who should destroy this pious foundation, or should agree to its destruction, the same deep guilt shall accrue as if he had destroyed at the same holy places mentioned (above) a thousand kine and a thousand Brāhmanas and a crore of ascetics. Ōm!

(Lines 55-59)—“This general principle of law for kings must be maintained by you in every age”: again and again Rāmabhadra makes this entreaty to all these happy sovereigns. The earth has been enjoyed by many kings, beginning with Sagara; whosoever at any time holds the soil has at the same time the fruit thereof. He who should appropriate land, whether given by himself or given by others, is born as a worm in dung for sixty thousand years. He who should appropriate land belonging to gods or Brāhmanas which has been previously enjoyed perishes in course of time and is called a murderer of Brāhmanas. Poison is not called poison, gods’ property is called “poison”; poison destroys the individual, gods’ property (if misappropriated) destroys son and grandson. Ōm!

(Lines 59-60)—This decree the Sandhivigrahin Mañlayya and Kēti Setṭi, the manager of (the properties of) the god, wrote out; Kālōja executed the order. Happiness! Great fortune!

No. 15.—SOME RECORDS OF THE RASHTRAKUTA KINGS OF MALKHED.

By J. F. FLEET, I.C.S. (RETD.), PH.D., C.I.E.

(Concluded from Vol. VII, p. 231.)

G.—Soraṭūr inscription of the time of Amōghavarsha I.—A.D. 869.

Soraṭūr is a village about twelve miles south of Gadag, the head-quarters of the Gadag taluka of the Dhārwar District, Bombay: it is shown as “Sortur” in the Indian Atlas quarter-sheet 41, S.E. (1904), in lat. 15° 14', long. 75° 40'. There are several inscriptions at this place: one of them, of the time of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa III and dated in A.D. 951, has been published by me in Ind. Ant., vol. 12, p. 257.² This latter record gives the name of the place in the earlier form Sarataṭvura, “the Village or Town of Lizards”. Our present inscription does not mention the place by name, but locates it in the Purigere nāḍi (see p. 178 below). The place is now only an ordinary large village, with apparently a fort of the usual kind, but was perhaps of some considerable importance in early times. An inscription of the Hoysala king Virā-Ballāḷa II at Anṇigere, dated in A.D. 1202, tells us that he fought the Dēvagiri-Yādava king Bhīllama, who held himself to be unconquerable on account of his great array of elephants and horses and foot-soldiers, and pursued him from Soraṭūr to Lokkiguṇḍi, which is the modern Lakkuguṇḍi, six miles east of Gadag.³ And an inscription of Ballāḷa’s son and successor Narasiṃha II at Harihar, dated in A.D. 1224,⁴ referring to the same campaign, says that Ballāḷa met the armies of “the Sōṇa king”, i.e. Bhīllama, comprising two lakhs of infantry and twelve thousand cavalry, and pursued them with slaughter from Soraṭūr to the bank of the river Kṛishṇavēṇī (the Kṛishṇā), and names the place among the fortresses which Ballāḷa reduced, namely, Erāṇibarga (Yelbarga), “the proud” Virātana-kōṭe (Hāngal), Gutti, Bellittage, Rattapalli, Soraṭūr, and Kuṇḍōḍu.

The inscription now published is on a stone tablet at the temple of Virabhadra, on the right side of the god. I have no information as to what sculptures there may be at the top of the stone. The writing occupies an area about 2' 0" broad by 1' 6" high. It is somewhat damaged ; but only quite a few letters are badly affected.

The characters are Kanarese, boldly formed and fairly well executed. The size of them, by which is meant the height of those single letters which were customarily made, like our a, e, m, etc., between what may be called the two lines of the writing, without any projections above as in b, d, f, or below as in g, p, j, ranges from about $\frac{1}{2}$ " in the ch of āchāra, l. 8, to $1\frac{1}{4}$ " in the qh of āshāḍha, l. 6 : the śrī of śrīvāyilan, l. 10, is about $2\frac{1}{2}$ " high. Of the test-letters kh, h, j, b, and l, which are so instructive in connection with undated records and records of a questionable nature, the ś does not occur here : the others show a mixture of the earlier and later types. The kh, which occurs twice, in ll. 3, 4, and the b, which is found once, in l. 1, are of the later, cursive type : in connection with the general history of the kh, attention may be drawn here again to an apparent instance, not really existing, of its later type being supposed to occur in l. 12 of the Western Chalukya record of Vinayāditya, dated in A.D. 694, on the Harihar plates.¹ The j occurs three times, in l. 2, and is of the earlier, square type in a particular form, made rather loosely on the left and with a curl upwards in the top part of the letter and downwards in the lower part, which was probably a strong factor in the development of the later type. The l, which occurs twice, and once subscript, in ll. 1, 8, is transitional, and not as fully developed as might be expected at the time of this record : in śīla, l. 8, it is practically of the earlier, square type, except for the prolongation of the tail of the letter up to the right : in ballabha, l. 1, it is perhaps a little more of the later type ; but even there the subscript l is not at all fully cursive. We have an initial short a in l. 1, and long ā in ll. 4, 6 : and a final n, damaged, occurs in l. 10. The cerebral ḍ occurs in śhaḍ, l. 4, and nāḍan, l. 5, and five times subscript in ll. 3, 9 : it is not distinguished from the dental ḍ. In āshāḍha, l. 6, we have a character which in later times would certainly mean the unaspirated ḍ, and was used as such in the inscriptions I and J below, but which seems plainly to have been used here to denote the aspirated qh. The rather rare au occurs in śaucha, l. 8, and is not very well distinguished from ō.

The language is Kanarese, of the archaic dialect, all in prose, and accurate except in its treatment of some of the Sanskrit words. The form bāyil, for bāgil, bāgilu, 'door, gate', which we have in śrī-vāyilan, l. 9, does not seem to be given in Kittel's Kannada-English Dictionary : the change of g to y here is noteworthy. In respect of orthography we may note (1) the use of t for d in utbhava, for udbhava, l. 4 ; (2) the use of the Kanarese ḷ for l in Sanskrit words in maṇḍaḷa, twice in l. 3, and dhavaḷa and aḷamkāra, l. 4 ; and (3) the use of b for v in ballabha, l. 1.

The inscription refers itself to the reign of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Amoghavarsha I, who was on the throne from A.D. 814-15 to 877-78. It records that a certain Kuppēya, alias Āhavāditya, of the Āḍava, Āḍava, or perhaps Āṭava race,² was governing the Purigeṣe district, whereby it implies that Soratūr, as the place where the record stands, was in that district. Its object was to record that a village headman named Viḷikkara-Nāgiyamma caused to be built a gateway named Śrīvāyil, the "Fortune-Gate". This was perhaps a somewhat frequent name for village gateways : it is found elsewhere as Śrīvāgil or Śrīvāgila in the Naregal inscription which purports to be dated in A.D. 950,¹ and as Sirivāgil or Sirivāgila in the Kalhoji inscription of A.D. 1204 and the Saundatti inscription of A.D. 1228.²

The local governor Āhavāditya-Kuppēya is mentioned as simply Kuppēya, again as governing the Purigere nāḍi, in the Mantrawādi inscription of Amoghavarsha I of A.D. 865.³ He is also mentioned as the Mahasamanta Āhavāditya-Kuppēyarasa, again as governing the same district, in another inscription of Amoghavarsha at Soratūr dated in A.D. 866-67.⁴ This latter record also states the name of his family ; but unfortunately the word is even still more damaged there than in our present inscription.

The date of this record is unsatisfactory ; perhaps as a result of the record having not been framed exactly at the time mentioned in it. The given details are : the cyclic year Virōdhiṇ : the eighth tithi of the bright fortnight of Āshāḍha ; Bṛihaspativāra (Thursday). The Śaka year is not stated. But we know that this Virōdhiṇ samvatsara, as a mean-sign astronomical year, according to the First Ārya-Siddhānta began on 26 August, A.D. 868, and ended on 22 August, A.D. 869, and according to the Original Śārya-Siddhānta began on 11 September, A.D. 868, and ended on 7 September, A.D. 869. According to the luni-solar system of the cycle (not yet separated into the northern and southern varieties), being current at the Mēsha-samkrānti in March, A.D. 869, it gave its name to the Śaka year 791 expired, A.D. 869-70. In any case, therefore, this month Āshāḍha fell in A.D. 869. But in this year the given tithi Āshāḍha śukla 8 ended at closely about 23 h. 39 m. after mean sunrise for Ujjain, and a little more than one minute earlier for Soratūr itself, on Monday, 20 June, and cannot in any way be connected with a Thursday. Accordingly, the date must be set aside as irregular. Curiously enough, in the Soratūr inscription of A.D. 951, mentioned on p. 176 above, the text gives the Virōdhiṇ samvatsara by an undeniable mistake for Virōdhikṛit. But an assumption of the same mistake in our present record would not help us. If the assumption were made, the samvatsara would be the Virōdhikṛit which gave its name to the Śaka year 753 expired, A.D. 831-32, and which began and ended at such times in A.D. 830 and 831 that the month Āshāḍha would fall in any case in A.D. 831 : but in this year the tithi Āshāḍha śukla 8 ended at about 11 h. 7 m. on Wednesday, 21 June, and again cannot in any way be connected with a Thursday.

The only place-name mentioned in this record is that of the Purigere nāḍi. The mention of it tacitly but distinctly places Soratūr, as the village from which the record comes, in this district. Another well-known form of the name of this district is Puligere : the earlier form Porigere also is met with : and the name is found Sanskritized as Purikara and Pulikara. This district is well known, from many records, as a three-hundred district, that is as comprising actually or conventionally three hundred cities, towns and villages ;⁵ and it and the neighbouring Belvola three-hundred are sometimes mentioned collectively, without names, as eraḍ-aru-nāru, "the two (which make together a) six-hundred".⁶ The town Porigere, Purigere, Puligere, from which the Purigere three-hundred took its name, is the modern Lakshmēshwar, an outlying town of the Senior Miraj State within the limits of the Dhārwar District, situated about twelve miles towards the south-west from Soratūr, and shown in the same Atlas map in Mānyakhēṭa: Māḷkhēḍ.

The capital of the Rāshtrakūṭa dynasty to which Amōghavarsha I belonged was a city named Mānyakhēṭa. It is not referred to in the inscriptions published herewith. But it is mentioned in various other records, bearing dates from A.D. 860 onwards.² And those of A.D. 940 and 959 on the Dēoli and Karhēḍ plates show that Amōghavarsha himself either founded the place or else developed and completed it as the capital.³ It was also perhaps for a time the capital of the Western Chālukyas, who succeeded to the kingdom of the Rāshtrakūṭas: at any rate, the earliest known mention of the Chālukya capital Kalyāṇapura is found in a record of A.D. 1054 of the time of Sōmēśvara I⁴; and Bilhana tells us in his Vikramāṅkadēva-charita, 2. 1, that Sōmēśvara made Kalyāṇa, i.e. either founded it or adapted it as his capital.⁵ In fact, it appears that an inscription at Kulpak mentions Mānyakhēṭa as a city at which Vikramāditya VI was ruling in A.D. 1110.⁶

A Mysore inscription of A.D. 902 presents the name of this city as Mānyakhēḍa, with the second component in its Prakrit form, and marks the place as the chief city of a 8000 province, that is, of a province comprising, whether actually or conventionally, six thousand cities, towns, and villages, and includes its province, with the Banavāsi 12,000, the Palasige 12,000, the Kolānu 30, the Lōkāpura 12, and the Toṭegare 60, in a group which it calls "the 31,102 towns (bāḍa)":⁷ and it may be noted, in passing, that this statement is further of interest in helping us to explain two other inscriptional statements which were previously obscure; namely, the mention of "30,000 villages of which Vanavāsi is the foremost" in the record of A.D. 860,⁸ and the mention of "the Banavāsi 32,000 province" in a record of A.D. 919:⁹ these statements were puzzling because everywhere else the Banavāsi province is presented as a 12,000 province. This half-Prakrit form Mānyakhēḍa is found again in a Mysore inscription of A.D. 1151, which mentions a Sāmanta Gūḷi-Bāchi, of the Adala family, who had the hereditary title of "over-lord of Mānyakhēḍa a best of towns".¹⁰ The city is mentioned by a fully Prakrit name as Mannekhēḍa, the capital of Nityavarsha-Khoṭṭigadēva, in a Mysore inscription of A.D. 968,¹¹ and as Mannakhēḍa in the Pāṇiyalachchhi, verse 276, where Dhanapāla tells us that he wrote that work at Dhārā in the Vikrama year 1029 expired

(A.D. 972-73), "when Mannakhēḍa had been plundered in an assault by the king of Mālava" (probably Vākpati).¹ And the city was known as Mānkīr (? rather Mānkēr) to the Arab writers of the tenth century, who, however, seem to have had a rather vague idea as to its situation.² It has been supposed that it is mentioned as simply Khēṭaka in a record of A.D. 930,³ and as Khēḍaga in the Chāmundaṛāya-Purāṇa;⁴ but it seems more likely that these references are to some place the name of which was Khēṭaka and nothing more, and probably to Kaira in Gujarāt, because the mention of the "Khēḍaga war" is in connection with Chāmundaṛāya, an officer of the Gaṅga prince Nalambāntaka-Mārasimha, and the last-mentioned acquired the title "king of the Gurjars" by subduing the northern parts of Western India for his sovereign Kṛishṇa III.⁵

For a long time past Mānyakhēṭa has been identified with a town Malkhēḍ or Mālkhēḍ, in the Gulbarga District of the Nizam's territory, which is entered as "Mulkaīr" in Thornton's Gazetteer of India, vol. 3 (1854), p. 547, and is shown as "Mulkaīd" in the Indian Atlas sheet 57 (1854), in lat. 17° 11', long. 77° 13', and as "Malkhed" in the Hyderabad maps of 1883 and 1909. This town is about ninety miles east-south-east from Shōlāpūr in the Bombay Presidency, about the same distance east-by-north from Bijāpūr, about eighty-five miles west-by-south from Hyderabad, and between twenty-two and twenty-three miles towards east-south-east from Gulbarga. It is situated on the south bank of a river, apparently known as the Tāndūr river, which is a considerable tributary of the Bhīmā, flowing into the latter at a point about nineteen miles towards south-west-by-west from the town. And it gives its name to a station known as "Mulkaīd Gate" on the Nizam's State Railway between Wāḍī Junction and Hyderabad. The identification seems to have been made, in 1835, either by Wathen, who, in bringing to notice the record of Kakka II on the Kharḍa plates dated in A.D. 972, said that Mānyakhēṭa "seems to be the present Māndkhēra, and must have been situated in the Hyderabad territory;"⁶ or else by Wilson, who remarked that the place was "supposed, with great probability, to be Man-khēra in the Hyderabad country."⁷ It was recognized in 1872 by Sh. P. Pandit, who wrote the modern name as "Mal-Khed".⁸ And it was ratified in 1877 by Bühler, who wrote the name as "Mālkhēḍ".⁹ As regards the exact spelling of the modern name, the forms presented by Wathen and Wilson perhaps suggest that the n in the first part of the ancient name had not been altogether supplanted by the l even as late as in their time; but the source of these forms cannot be traced; and it is not impossible that these two writers put forward what they thought should be the modern name, rather than any form of it actually found by them.¹⁰ As to the quantity of the vowel in the first syllable, Thornton's "Mulkaīr" and the "Mulkaīd" of the Indian Atlas suggest the short a; and this is supported more or less by the Prakrit forms Mannakhēḍa, Mannekhēḍa. On the other hand, the long ā is suggested by the Mānkīr (? Mānkēr) of the Arab geographers, and is equally likely to be right. In any case, this latter form, Mālkhēḍ, was adopted by Bühler, and so became fixed.¹¹

The identification of Mānyakhēṭa with Mālkhēḍ was accepted without any questioning until some fourteen years ago. In 1901-2 Dr. Hultsch, Government Epigraphist, Madras, was on tour for collecting inscriptions, and intended to go to Mālkhēḍ. He was not able to visit the place, because his train was four hours late. But he was told by the Tahsildār of Seram that Mālkhēḍ does not possess any ancient remains. And on this basis he said :—"Hence it is very doubtful if its identification with Mānyakhēṭa is correct."¹ It is possible that his informant may have meant only inscriptional remains, and not general relics of antiquity. However, in any case, while the matter is of course always open to re-examination, the grounds are insufficient for the expression of doubt. In the first place, even if there are really no remains indicative of antiquity at Mālkhēḍ, the point, though of course not without its weight, would not be at all conclusive: the remains at "Kulliannee", "Kaliani", or Kalyāṇi, about forty-eight miles north-north-east from Mālkhēḍ, are quite insignificant, if indeed there are any really old ones at all:² yet there can hardly be a doubt that the place is the Kalyānapura which was the capital of the later Chālukyas in the eleventh and twelfth centuries and of the Kalachuryas after them. But also, the statement that there are no such remains at Mālkhēḍ is not based on any skilled survey of the place. In such a case, we have to look for signs of ancient importance, not simply at a modern site itself, but also for some little distance round it. And the Atlas map of 1854 suggests that, if an examination of the locality were made by an expert, the required indications might be found: within a radius of eight miles round "Mulkaid", from the north-west through the north to the south-east, it shows four places marked by the name "Boorge", i.e. burūj, 'a bastion', which is suggestive of traces or traditions of outlying fortifications, and eight places (as well as many others just outside that limit) marked "Pag." and "Pagoda", which are indicative of temples or shrines of sorts. Mānyakhēṭa must have been greatly damaged when it was sacked by the king of Mālava, and again some forty years later when it was wrested, with all the surrounding territory, from the Chālukyas by the Chōlas under Rājendra-Chōladēva I: and it was very likely the havoc which was wrought on those occasions that led to its being eventually abandoned, and to the making of a new capital at Kalyāṇa by Sōmēśvara I. When once it had been given up as the capital, its ramparts and fortifications, most likely made largely of earth, would begin to crumble and disappear. And from that same time, and particularly in the Musalmān period, there would be a constant demolition of its stone temples and other buildings for the sake of their materials. The absence of ancient remains at the place, if that should be found on proper examination to be really the case, would be fully explainable.

The case in support of the identification is quite a good one. Mālkhēḍ stands in a locality where we may very appropriately place the Rāshtrakūṭa capital. Its present name, whether the actual form is Malkhed or Mālkhēḍ (or possibly even Maḷkhēḍ or Māḷkhēḍ) answers exactly to an original Mānyakhēṭa, through the Prakrit Mannakhēḍa, Mannekhēḍa (see p. 179 above), followed by a subsequent *Mankhēḍa or *Mānkhēḍa, and a slight further transformation through the well-known interchange of n and l. And, though it is now only a subordinate town in the Seram tāluka of the Gulbarga District,³ its status has been much higher in times gone by. In the seventeenth century it was twice a battlefield, in the time of Aurangzēb: it was at Mālkhēḍ that the Mogul army under Khān Jahān was defeated by the Bijāpūr general Bahlōl Khān in 1673:⁴ so, again, it was by defeating the Qutb Shāhī army at Mālkhēḍ in 1686 that Prince Mu'azzam (Shāh 'Ālam) won Golconda (Hyderabad) :¹ and the town seems to have been then, at least, a place of very primary importance and a well fortified one ; for, in connection with the event of 1686, Orme says that the Qutb Shāhi general Ibrāhīm Khān "suffered him [Prince Mu'azzam] to reduce Malquer, the principal barrier of the capital [Golconda], with much less resistance than might have been made by the strength of the fortress, and the force in the field."² Later, in the eighteenth century, it gave its name to a Circār in the Bidar province of the Hyderabad territory. This we learn from Orme : in a Note on "Malquer, circar and fortress" to his mention of the success of Prince Mu'azzam in 1686, he gave a translation of a passage from one of his "MSS. of the Deccan" from which we gather that the Circār in question, known sometimes as the Muzaffarnagar Circār but more commonly as the Mālkhēḍ Circār, consisted of fourteen parganas and yielded revenue to the amount of nearly eleven lacs of rupees;³ and, as he tells us, among other details, that the river Bhīmā flowed into this Circār and then into the Sābah of Bijāpūr, it would seem that the Mālkhēḍ Circār extended to the west of the river and touched the Bijāpūr territory there and towards the south. And, from the place being noticed by Rennell, Cruttwell, and Thornton,⁴ and from its name being shown in capital letters in the Atlas map, Mālkhēḍ seems to have retained the position of being the chief town of a Circār until well into the nineteenth century.

Such is the evidence in favour of the identification. To upset it, we need much more than an unskilled statement that the place has no ancient remains. As to that, we need at least a professional examination of the locality. But, if such examination should result in an assurance that any remains which do exist—and there must surely be some, of one kind or another—only date from or shortly before the seventeenth century, still we could discount even such a result, for reasons already stated. The evident primary importance of the place in the seventeenth century points strongly to its having had a previous history. And, all things being taken together, we need hardly hesitate to dismiss the suggestion of doubt which was put forward on the basis mentioned above, and to adhere to our belief that this town Mālkhēḍ is the ancient Mānyakhēṭa.

³ Op. cit. (preceding note), Notes, p. 130 ; for the title of the Note see p. 172. Orme mentioned the place three times as "Malquer", from Manucci ; but in his Note he substituted the form "Malkar" : this latter form (apparently introduced by Orme, and seemingly due to some misunderstanding of Manucci's "Malquer") is found also in Rennell's Memoir of a Map of Hindoostan (second edition, London, 1792) and Cruttwell's New Universal Gazetteer (London, 1808). Orme gives the names of the thirteen other parganas as "Mouzafernagar, Karimour, Nergounda, Mangalquin, Kaukonrni, Sindam Konkl, Sanour, Koudouni, Adjouli, Ountkour, Mankool, Doumer, Amerdjena." He adds that the fourteen parganas comprised 109 villages : this seems a rather low figure, and may possibly be due to some mistake in writing or printing ; however, many villages in all that part of the country have very large areas.

H.—Rōṇ inscription of the time of Amōghavarsha I.—A.D. 874.

Rōṇ is the head-quarters town of the Rōṇ tāluḷa of the Dhārwar District: it is shown in the Indian Atlas quarter-sheet 41, S.E. (1904), in lat. 15° 42', long. 75° 47'. It is mentioned by the name which it still bears, as Rōṇa, in the present record, and in I below, and in the Adaraguñchi inscription of A.D. 971.³ The place was in the Beḷvola three-hundred district which, however, is not mentioned here.

At this place, too, there are several inscriptions. The present one is on a stone tablet at a temple of Basavanna, inside the town. I have no information as to whether there are any sculptures at the top of the stone. The writing occupies an area about 2' 3½" broad by 2' 6½" high. As may be seen from the Plate, it is considerably damaged, and much of it from line 8 onwards is quite illegible. But all the historical matter in it can be read; and it has been found worth illustrating because it is interesting from the palæographic point of view.

The characters are Kanarese, boldly formed and well executed. The size of them ranges from about ⅞" in the d of idan, l. 10, to 1½" in the j of mahājanake, l. 8: the ti at the end of l. 12 is about 2¼" high. Of the test-letters kh, n, j, b, and l, the kh does not occur here: the others show here, again, a mixture of the earlier and later types. The n is found once, in sainvatsaraṅga, l. 4; it is of the earlier, square type. The j is found five times: in rājya, l. 2, and jaya, l. 5, it is of the later, cursive type; in -dhirāja, l. 2, and mahājanake and pūjya, l. 8, it is of the earlier, square type, in the particular form which has been noticed under the inscription G above. The b occurs three times: in tombattu, l. 4, and emba, l. 6, in both of which words it is subscript, it is certainly of the later, cursive type; in ballava, l. 7, where it is somewhat damaged in the upper right corner, it seems to be of the earlier, square type, in the form having the curl upwards on the left of the top stroke which matches the form of the earlier j of this record. The l is found four times, and also twice subscript, in ll. 1, 4, 7, 11; in every case it is of the later, cursive type, but not as fully so in the subscript form as might have been expected. We have an initial short i, of the earlier type, in idan, l. 10;¹ and perhaps an initial short a, transitional, near the end of l. 9. Final forms occur of r in ll. 7, 9, and of l in l. 7. The m has mostly its usual full form; but in tombattu, l. 4, and emba, l. 6, it has a special secondary form which is found first in the Kanarese record of Gōvinda III of A.D. 804,² and which is very much like the final m of this period which we have, for instance, in kūlidam, in l. 7 of the Batgere inscription J below. This special form of the m is found several times in the Mantrawāḍi inscription of A.D. 875, which also presents once the corresponding form of v (see vol. 7 above, p. 199); but these forms of m and v, with a corresponding one of y, were not of any really frequent occurrence till the tenth or eleventh century.³ This form of the m seems to have been confined at first to cases in which the m was the first member of a combined consonant: the Mantrawāḍi record, however, already presents four or five instances of its use as a single letter before a vowel.

The language is Kanarese, of the archaic dialect, all in prose: it is not very accurate in its treatment of some of the Sanskrit words; and the Kanarese l has been written by mistake for r twice, in ll. 4, 13. We may note the dative in ke, instead of kke, in mahājanake, l. 8; this is found again in the same word in the inscription I below, l. 3, and in kāḷagake in l. 2 of that same record. It may also be noted that the neuter mahājanam is used here, as in other records, to denote collectively the body of the mahājanas; just as in other Kanarese records a god's name is often used in the neuter to denote his temple. Here, in ll. 10, 11, as in so many other epigraphic records, we have aḷi, 'to be ruined, destroyed, etc.', used in the active sense 'to ruin, destroy, etc.': Kittel's Dictionary, indeed, gives it as both an intransitive and a transitive verb, but has quoted only the Śubdamaṇidarpaṇa and the Basava-Purāṇa for its use in the active sense in literature.

This inscription, again, refers itself to the reign of the Rāṣṭrakūṭa king Amōghavarsha I. Its object was to record a grant to the mahājanas of Rōṇa by a local potentate named Ballavarasa: this passage is mostly illegible; but he seems to have assigned the tax on clarified butter or ghee,⁴ and also something in connection with male buffaloes.

The details of the date of this inscription are: Śaka 796 expired; the cyclic year Jaya; the month Śrāvaṇa; an eclipse of the sun. The weekday is not given. And it is to be noted that the record does not say, in the usual fashion, "an eclipse of the sun on the new-moon day of Śrāvaṇa", but only says "an eclipse of the sun of the month Śrāvaṇa". As a mean-sign astronomical year, this Jaya saṃvatsara according to the First Ārya-Siddhānta began on 5 August, A.D. 873, and ended on 1 August, A.D. 874; and according to the Original Sūrya-Siddhānta it began on 21 August, A.D. 873, and ended on 17 August, A.D. 874. According to the luni-solar system of the cycle (not yet separated into the northern and southern varieties), this Jaya, being current at the Mōsha-saṃkrānti in March, A.D. 874, gave its name to the Śaka year 796 expired, A.D. 874-75. In any case, the new-moon day of the amānta month Śrāvaṇa fell in Śaka 796 expired, in A.D. 874. But it answered in this year to 15 August, on which day it ended at about 18 h. 42 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain); and on this day there was no eclipse of the sun, visible or invisible, anywhere.⁵ At the preceding new-moon, however, which ended at about 6 h. 9 m. on 17 July, there was an annular eclipse of the sun, visible in India.¹ This day was the new-moon of the amānta Āshāḍha or the pūrṇimānta Śrāvaṇa. But the use of a pūrṇimānta month in Southern India, at any rate as late as in A.D. 874, would be very exceptional;² and it is hardly possible to understand the record in that way. The month Śrāvaṇa, however, begins at the moment of the new-moon of the amānta Āshāḍha. And the eclipse of 17 July, may be accepted, if we understand the record to mean "an eclipse of the sun (at the new-moon which gave the beginning) of the month Śrāvaṇa". In the circumstances, I think that this may be done, and that we may accept the intended day as being 17 July, A.D. 874. The date, however, must be characterized as an anomalous one, though perhaps not actually irregular: it is unfortunate that the weekday, which might have given a clear guide, was not given.

The only place mentioned in this inscription is Roṇ itself, as Rōṇa, in l. 7.

I.—Rōṇ inscription of Turagaveḍṅga.

This record stands on the same stone tablet below the inscription II of A.D. 874, from which it was marked off by a line made across the stone. It consists of five lines of writing : and there is a separate and somewhat later record of two lines below it. The writing in lines 1 to 5 occupies an area about 2' 3½" broad by 11½" high. It is well preserved and quite legible all through.

The characters are Kanarese, boldly formed and well executed; and, though the record is a little later (at any rate certainly not earlier) than the inscription H above it, they are markedly more archaic than the characters of that record; in this respect we may compare the case of the Nilgudi inscription of A.D. 866,¹ the characters of which are decidedly more archaic than those of the Sirūr inscription of exactly the same date.² The size of the letters ranges from about ⅓" in the n of idan, l. 4, to 1½" in the b of baniyam, l. 3: the rvu of pārvuman, l. 5, is about 3¼" high. Of the test-letters kh, ñ, j, b, and l, the n does not occur: the others show here, again, a mixture of the earlier and later types. The kh occurs once, in l. 1, and is of the later, cursive type. The j occurs twice, in l. 3, and is of the earlier, square type. The b is found three times, in one case subscript, in ll. 1, 3: in all three instances it is of the earlier, square type. The l occurs four times, in ll. 4, 5, and is in each case of the later, cursive type: its subscript form does not occur. We have an initial short i of the earlier type, in idan, l. 4; and a final n in biṭṭon, l. 3. The cerebral q occurs twice, in vedēga and naḍavuttu, l. 2, and is distinguished clearly from the dental d: it has the form which is used to denote the aspirated qh in the Soratūr inscription G above.

The language is Kanarese prose, of the archaic dialect. Here, again, in l. 3, we have the collective neuter mahājanam; and we have twice the dative in ke, instead of kke in kīloguka, l. 2, and mahājanake, l. 3 (compare p. 184 above). In l. 3 we have a word bani, the sense of which is not clear: it is given in Kittel's Dictionary as a Mysore word meaning 'substance, essence, as of grains, milk, butter, or vegetables'. The short later record below this one gives the word paṭtagāra, apparently as a Kanarese adaptation of paṭākāra, 'a weaver'. In the title Kishkindhā-puravar-ēśvara, "lord of Kishkindhā a best of towns" (l. 1), we have a term pura-vara, 'a best of towns' (found also in various other titles of the same class, and often followed by adhīśvara instead of īśvara), which calls for notice only because of the way in which it is always treated wrongly in another series of epigraphic publications:³ that the word vara belongs to pura, not to īśvara, and is used in the sense of 'best, most excellent, or eminent among', is made quite clear (even if a knowledge of Sanskrit usage is lacking)⁴ by the fact that the Śravaṇa-Belgoḷa epitaph of Mārasimha II mentions, in its list of the places at which he fought and conquered, Mānyakhēḷa-puravaravum, "and Mānyakhēḷa a best of towns".⁵

The inscription does not mention any king, and is not dated, but is plainly to be placed a short time later than the inscription H which stands above it. Its object was to record that some local personage styled Turagaveḍēga,—"he who is a Marvel with Horses", i.e. in the training and riding of them,—who was of the Bāli-vaṃśa race and had the title of "lord of Kishkindhā a best of towns", when going out to battle laved the feet of a Mahājana named Sāntayya, and gave the bani to the body of the Mahājanas of Rōṇa.

The record does not disclose the proper name of the person whom it mentions by the biruda of Turagaveḍēga. It represents him as belonging to the Bāli-vaṃśa or race of Bālin, and as having the hereditary title "lord of Kishkindhā a best of towns". Bālin was the elder brother of the monkey-king Sugriva, the friend of Rāma, and seized and held for a time Sugriva's capital Kishkindhā, on the Kishkindha mountain, while Sugriva was

³ Even in the latest volume of that series, Coorg Inscriptions, revised edition (1914), we find Kovalāla-puravar-ēśvara (p. 31) mistranslated by "boon lord of Kovalāla-pura" (p. 52).

away with Rāma on the campaign against Rāvaṇa. The Bāli-vaṁśa is mentioned again in an inscription of A.D. 1113 or 1114 at Sūḍi, in the Rōṇa taluka, which records a grant made at Sūḍi by a certain Mahāsāmanta Daḍigarasa, son of Guṇḍarasa, and a descendant of Lōkarnasi, of the Bāli-vaṁśa, lord of the Daḍiga-maṇḍala country, i.e. the Daḍigavāḍi country in Mysore.¹ And there is very likely another mention of it, specifying a member of it named Ārakuṭṭi, in an inscription of the tenth century at Gaṇiganūr in Mysore.²

Ōm! Hail! Fortune! When the illustrious Turagaveḍenga, lord of the world-renowned Kishkindhā a best of towns, born in the Bāli-vaṁśa race, was going out to battle, he assigned the bani to the Mahājanas of Rōṇa; and Sāntayya gave (it) after laving the feet of the Mahājanas.

[This inscription seems to have been left unfinished. It appears to have been meant to register some donation which was made, after giving a site of ground, to the community of the weavers attached to the four-hundred Mahājanas.]

J.—Baṭgere inscription of the time of Kṛishṇa II.—A.D. 888.

Baṭgere is a town about one mile on the north-east of Gadag, the head-quarters of the Gadag taluka of the Dhērwār District: in the Indian Atlas quarter-sheet 41, S. E. (1904), it is shown in lat. 15° 26', long. 75° 42'. Its name is given there as "Betgeri": but in the old full-sheet of 1852 it is shown as "Butgeeree", which is at any rate more correct in indicating the a of the first syllable. Its ancient name, which occurs twice in the inscription now published, was Baṭṭakere, meaning apparently "the Round Tank"; and the record tells us that it was founded by the Superintendent Gaṇaramma, whose valour in defending it is its topic. The name of the place is still current as Baṭgere among the rustic population. But liberties have been taken with it, as with so many other place-names, by the official classes; a confusion being made in this case between the original baṭṭa of the first syllable and beṭṭa, 'a hill', as well as, in the second syllable, between the original kere, gere, 'a tank', and kēri, gēri, 'a street':⁶ as the result of this, the name is actually certified in the publication

⁶ Compare the case of Appigere, now known officially as Appigēri: see my remarks in vol. 6 above, p. 100, note 2.

Bombay Places and Common Official Words (1878) as "Betgōri", and it appears in gazetteers, etc., as "Betigeri, Bettigeri, Betgere, and Batgeri". The official corruption of the name dates partly, in fact, from at least the fourteenth century, as the place is mentioned as Baṭṭagēri in the record of A.D. 1379 on the Dambaḷ plates, Journ. Bomb. Br. R. As. Soc., vol. 12, p. 357, l. 126.

The present inscription, which I edit and illustrate from an ink-impression supplied by Mr. Consens, is one of several at Batgere: for the illustration of it see the plate facing p. 182 above, below the inscription G. It is on a virgal or monumental hero-stone in a walled enclosure on the premises of Haṭagāra-Mallarāya, inside the town. There are two compartments of sculptures, one above and one below the record: but I have no information as to the details of them. The writing on lines 1 to 7 occupies an area about 2' 9" broad by 11' high. The compartment of sculptures below it is about 1' 7" high. Below this, the stone is wider, measuring about 4' 2"; and we have here the beginning of some well-known Sanskrit verses, which are an accompaniment to the principal record. First, after Om Svasti Śrī, we have the half verse, yasya yasya yadā, etc., of which the preceding line—usually Bahubhīr-vasudhā dattā (or bhuktā) rājabhīḥ Sagar-ādibhīḥ (or bahubhīḥ=ch=ānupālītā)—was not given. This is followed, partly in the same line and partly in a short line below it, by the verse, given in not at all a correct form:—Svaṁ dātum su-mahach-chhakyam duḥkham=anyasya pālanam | dānam vā pālanam v=ēti dānāch=chhrēyō=nupālanam ||. Then, in short lines of from two to four syllables down the left side of the lower compartment of sculptures, there is the verse:—Sva-dattām para-dattām vā yō harēta vasuṁdharām | shashṭīm varsha-sahasrāṇi viśṭhāyām jāyatē kṛmīḥ ||: this, again, is given very inaccurately. And finally, down the right side of the compartment of sculptures there was another verse of the same class: but here only a few of the final syllables are extant, and the verse cannot be identified. It has not been convenient to illustrate these supplements to the principal record beyond the beginning of them: but they are all in characters of just the same stage with those of the principal record, and were plainly put on the stone at the same time with it. They indicate that a grant of some kind was made to the hero whose prowess is commemorated by the inscription.

The characters are Kanarese, well formed and executed. The size of the letters ranges from about $\frac{1}{2}$ " in the r of keṛeyam near the beginning of l. 4, to about $1\frac{1}{8}$ " in the l of akāla, l. 1: the styā near the beginning of l. 1 is nearly 2" high. Of the test-letters kh, ṇ, j, b, and l, the ṇ does not occur: the others show here, again, a mixture of the earlier and later types. The kh occurs once, in l. 3, and is of the later, cursive type. The j occurs five times, in ll. 1, 2, 3, 6, and is in each case of the earlier, square type. The b is found three times, in ll. 3, 4, 5, and is of the earlier, square type, made rather loosely on the left side, and with a continuation of the right-hand part of the letter above the top line of the writing: its form may be seen very clearly in balamgaḷ, l. 5. The l occurs eight times, and once subscript, in ll. 1, 2, 4, 5, 6: it is of the later, cursive type all through. In the Sanskrit verses at the bottom and sides of the stone the ṇ does not occur; nor does the kh, because where it ought to be we have duḥkam by mistake for duḥkham. The j is found in jāyatē on the left side, and is of the earlier, square type. The b does not occur. In the half-verse shown in the Plate, l is used for l: but the verse which follows it preserves the l, three times, and presents in each case the later, cursive type. In aḷidam, l. 4, we have an initial short a, of a transitional type far advanced towards the later type. The only final form is that of m, in kādidam, l. 7.

The language is Kanarese, of the archaic dialect, with one verse beginning in l. 4. Some noticeable words are as follows. In l. 3 jonna, a yadbhava-corruption of jyōtsnā, 'moonlight', is used to denote "the bright fortnight". As in so many other records, here, again, in l. 4, we have aḷi, 'to be ruined, to be destroyed', etc., used in the active sense: compare p. 184 above. In

l. 5, we have a word ottambha which seems to be used in the sense of ottamtara, 'great haste, etc.' : the aspirated bh appears to mark it as a corruption of some Sanskrit word ; but its origin is not clear. In l. 6 we have a word maṇiya, which seems to be the usual variant of maṇihā, 'superintendence of temples, maṭhas, palaces, etc.', but to be used here in the sense of maṇihāra, = maṇihagāra, maṇiyagāra, 'a superintendent of any such buildings'.

The inscription refers itself to the reign of a king Akālavarsha, by whom it means the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa II, whose biruda Akālavarsha is well known, and for whom we have already dates ranging from A.D. 888 to 911 or 912. Its object was to record that a certain Sādēva, i.e. Sahadēva, attacked Baṭṭakere and laid the place waste ; and that a Brāhmaṇa named Gaṇaramma, who seems to have held some official post as superintendent of buildings, fought valiantly against him. The supplementary Sanskrit verses, mentioned above, indicate plainly that Gaṇaramma was not killed in the fight, but survived and received some grant in recognition of his prowess,—very likely the land on which the stone was set up,—though there is nothing to this effect on the stone itself.

The details of the date of this inscription are : the cyclic year Kilaka ; the seventh tithi of the bright fortnight of Vaiśākha ; Ādityavāra (Sunday). The Śaka year is not stated. This Kilaka samvatsara is the one which, being current at the Mēsha-samkrānti in March, A.D. 888, gave its name, according to the luni-solar system of the cycle (not yet separated into the northern and southern varieties), to the Śaka year 810 expired, A.D. 888-89. As a mean-sign astronomical year, according to the First Ārya-Siddhānta it began on 7 June, A.D. 887, and ended on 2 June, A.D. 888 : according to the Original Sārya-Siddhānta it began on 23 June, A.D. 887, and ended on 18 June, A.D. 888. In any case, the given tithi Āshāḍha śukla 7 fell in A.D. 888 : and in this year it began at about 9 h. 51 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain), i.e. about 3.51 P.M., on Sunday, 21 April. That hour, late in the afternoon, would fit in very well with the events recited in the record, namely, an attack on the village and an ensuing fight, which would very likely happen at some time during the evening or night. Accordingly, we may take the given details as answering satisfactorily to Sunday, 21 April, A.D. 888.

The only place mentioned in this record is Baṭgere itself, as Baṭṭakere, twice, in ll. 3, 4.

K.—Muḷgund inscription of the time of Kṛishṇa II.—A.D. 902-903.

Muḷgund is a village about twelve miles south-west-by-south from Gadag, the head-quarters of the Gadag tāluka of the Dhārwar District : it is shown in the Indian Atlas quarter-sheet 41, S.E. (1904), in lat. 15° 16', long. 75° 35'. It is mentioned as Muḷgunda in the inscription now published, and again in the Nilgund inscription of A.D. 866,³ which marks it as the chief town of a group of villages known as the Muḷgund twelve, and tacitly but plainly locates it in the Belvola three-hundred district, which is called in our present record the Dhavaḷa-vishaya (see page 192 below). The spurious record on the Kurtakoṭi plates gives its name as Muḷgundu with the ending u :⁴ but this form hardly seems admissible as an authoritative one, even as a variant. The first component of the name is, no doubt, muḷ, muḷlu, 'a thorn' : regarding the second component, gunda, kunda, which appears to mean 'low ground, low land', see remarks in vol. 12 above, pp. 147, 148. Here, again, there are several inscriptions. I published the present one in 1874 in the Journ. Bomb. Br. R. As. Soc., vol. 10, p. 190.⁵ I re-edit it now, partly to give a revised up-to-date treatment of it, partly to supply the illustration, which could not be given then.

The inscription is on a broken stone tablet built into the wall of a Jain temple : it may have been put there in the course of some repairs ; or it may have been transferred to some temple other than the one to which it belonged originally. There are apparently no sculptures accompanying it. The first twelve lines of it are extant, complete, with most of l. 13 and a few letters at the end of l. 14 : the remainder of the stone has not been found. The extant writing occupies an area about 1' 8½" broad by 1' 1" high : it is very well preserved and legible almost all through. The size of the letters ranges from about ⅜" to ⅝" : the śrē of śrēyase, l. 1, is about 1½" high.

The characters are Kanarese, and give a fine specimen of the alphabet of the beginning of the tenth century, mostly in the later type, more or less fully developed, but preserving

still several influences of the earlier type. Of the test-letters kh, ñ, j, b, and l, the ñ does not occur, but the others are all found: we have the kh five times, in ll. 1, 4, 5, 8, 9; the j fourteen times (twice subscript), in ll. 1, 3, 5 to 8, 10, 11, 12; the b three times (once subscript), in ll. 4, 12; and the l eight times, and four times subscript, in ll. 3, 7, 10 to 13. The subscript l still shows strongly the influence of the earlier, square type. But the l itself and the kh, j, and b are all of the later, cursive type. Other noteworthy points are as follows: We have an initial short a in l. 6, formed entirely between the two lines of the writing; and an initial e, both short and long, in ll. 9, 13. There are final forms of t at the end of l. 3, and n near the end of l. 4. As regards vowels attached to consonants, the long ā is formed sometimes by only a slight curve downwards, as in the khyā of prabhakhyāya, l. 1; sometimes by a stroke coming about half-way down, as in the bhā of the same word; and sometimes by a stroke continued quite to the bottom of the consonant, as in rāg-, l. 3. The ē is formed sometimes on the left of the letter, according to the earlier fashion, as in vēlinē, l. 1, and sometimes by a superscript mark, as in the first three words in the same line: the fourth word, śrēyasē, presents it in both forms. The ai, which we have three times, in jaina, l. 1, nagaraiḥ, l. 11, and brāhmaṇaiḥ-, l. 12, is of the earlier type, made by two ē-strokes, one above the consonant and one on the left of it: in the earlier stage both these two strokes were placed on the left of the consonant. The ō presents a different form in each of the five cases in which it occurs: in ōtkurshē, l. 3, it has its own separate form, of the later type: in ōnnala, l. 5, it has an intermediate form: in tanayō, ānujō, and prōdyuktas, l. 6, it is formed on the earlier lines, as a combination of an ē-stroke on the left and an ā-stroke on the right. The au is found in maukha, l. 8, and is of the earlier type, made partly by the e-stroke on the left of the letter. The m is still of the earlier type, to the extent that the turned up stroke on the right of it is made from half-way up the body of the letter, not from the bottom of it. The k and r, letters about which there is more to be said on another occasion, are almost entirely of the later type, being broadened and shortened so as to be formed very nearly quite between the two lines of the writing. The rare chh occurs in l. 1, in chhandra, by mistake for chandra.

The language is Sanskrit, five verses and then prose: there are several mistakes. The record presents two unusual words: in l. 8 maukha, which seems to be used in the sense of mukhya, 'original, first, principal, chief', and to mean here 'a chief disciple'; and in l. 6 prōdyukta (not found in dictionaries), used in the sense of, and perhaps actually standing for, udyukta, 'zealously active'.¹ In respect of orthography we may note (1) a somewhat free use of the Kanarese ḷ instead of l in Sanskrit words in kāḷa, l. 2; sakaḷa, l. 3; pāḷayati and dhavaḷa, l. 4; kuṣaḷa, l. 6; and nakuḷa, l. 9: but the l is retained in ālaya, ll. 7, 11, and kula, l. 12, and of course in vallabha, l. 3, and valli, vallī, ll. 10, 11, 13: and (2) the use of ś for s four times in the word sēna, as a name and part of a name, in l. 8.

The inscription refers itself to the time of a king Kṛishnavallabha, by whom it means the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kṛishna II. It tells us that some officer of his, whom it mentions as Vinayāmbudhi, "the Ocean of Modest Behaviour", was governing a district which it calls the Dhayaḷa-vishaya. It then recites that at the city Mulgunda, in that district, a certain Chikārya, son of Chandrārya, a merchant, founded a temple of Jina. And finally, its special object is to record the grant to that temple of three fields, each of the capacity of one thousand betel-creepers. One of these fields was given by Arasārya, a son of the Chikārya who founded the temple. The second was given by four head-men of guilds, who are not named. The third was given, in a very liberal-minded fashion, by some unnamed Brāhmanas of the Bellāḷa family. The grants were given in trust for the temple to a Jain teacher or priest named Kanakasēna, of the Sēna lineage, a disciple of Virasēna, who had apparently been the chief disciple of an Āchārya named Kanakasēna. The Sēna-anvaya, to which these teachers belonged, seems to be the Sēna-gaṇa, in the Mūla-saṃgha, which is mentioned in the Honwād inscription of A.D. 1054.¹

The inscription is dated in the cyclic year Dundubhi, coupled with Śaka 824 expired. No other details being given, there is no date that is capable of exact verification. All that we can say is that this Dundubhi samvatsara is the one which began in A.D. 901 and ended in the following year, and, being current at the Mēsha-saṃkrānti in March, A.D. 902, gave its name, according to the luni-solar system of the cycle (not yet separated into the northern and southern varieties), to the Śaka year 824 expired, and that consequently the record belongs to some time in A.D. 902-903.

As regards names of places, the record mentions Muḷgund itself, as Muḷgunda, and puts it in a district which it calls the Dhavaḷa-vishaya, "the White or Dazzling Country". In this latter name the record presents a Sanskrit translation, not yet found anywhere else, of the name of the well-known Belvola three-hundred district: and we should probably understand from this that in the name Belvola, the second component of which is pola, 'a field', the first component is not beḷa, 'to grow', or beḷ, beḷe, 'growing, growth, produce, corn',² but beḷ, 'whiteness, brightness', so that the name means, not "(the country of) fields of standing or luxuriant crops", but "(the Country of) Bright Fields"; but still, of course, with reference to the great fertility of its soil and the richness of its crops, especially its waving fields of millet. In l. 11 the record mentions three hundred and sixty cities, without naming any of them: it seems to mean the three hundred cities, towns, and villages of the Belvola country, along with some neighbouring two groups, each of thirty villages. Two of the fields that were given were situated in an area named Kandavarmamāla-kṣhētra, which was in an enclosure named Chandrikavāṭa; and the third was in an area named Baḷlagere-kṣhētra, which name perhaps means "Jackal-Tank area": these do not seem to be names of villages.

² The word beḷevola is given in the Śabdamanidarpana, p. 81; but only to illustrate the change of p to v, and without any indication of an allusion to the name of the country. The form Belvola is the usual one in inscriptions: but we also find Belvala and (in Nāgari) Beluvala. I do not know of any record giving it as Beḷevola.

⁴ Metre: Ślōka (Anuṣṭubh).

⁶ Metre: Āryāgiti; and in the following four verses.

⁷ Read tasmin=Muḷgund-, with samdhī.

⁸ Read Chandrāryyās. Here, and in the names of Chikāryya in the same line and of Nāḍāryya and Arasāryya in l. 6, it is not easy to say whether the final syllable is given as ryā or as yyō (in either case with a mistake of some kind). But we have ryā unmistakably in the name of Nakulāryya at the end of l. 9; and the analogy of that, with the contrast (as regards the vowel) presented by the rah of varshē, l. 2, suggests that the r was intended in each case.

⁹ Read Chikāryyō=chikaraj=Jin.; and see the preceding note.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1; line 1) Reverence to him who is named Chandraprabha,⁷ who is fortunate, who is great, who is tranquillity itself, who is eternal happiness, who knows all things, who is (the cause of) the increase of the Jain doctrine !

(V. 2; 1. 2) When the time of the Śaka king consisting of eight hundred (years) increased by twenty plus four has gone by ; while the year named Dundubhi, which overflows with kindness to mankind,⁸ is current :—

(V. 3; 1. 3) While the glorious king Kṛṣṇavallabha-(Kṛṣṇa II), whose fame is spread abroad, is protecting the whole world : (and) while, under him, the very illustrious one who has the name Vinayāmbudhi is governing all the Dhavala district :—

(V. 4; 1. 4) In this (district), at the city named Mulgunda,—(there was) the renowned Chandrārya,⁹ born in the excellent merchant caste : his son Chikārya caused to be made a lofty house of Jina.

(V. 5; 1. 6) His son (was) Nāgārya by name : his younger brother (is) Arasārya, skilled in the precepts of prudent conduct, zealous in charity, etc., characterized by thoughts intent on right behaviour.

³ This pāda contains two short-syllable instants in excess of the metre : it might be corrected by reading dān-ādy-udyuktas ; i.e. by taking udyukta instead of prōdyukta.

⁴ The final short i which we have here is quite justifiable : but the word is given three times with the long i in lines 11 and 13.

⁵ The omission here of the visarga of chaturbhiḥ before the s followed by r in the next word is justifiable according to the southern rule.

⁹ Regarding this and some following names, see note 8 on p. 192 above. This passage, as far as the mention of Arasārya, is of course parenthetical.

(L. 7) By him, adorned by the ornament which is discernment, there has been given, at the bidding of the Mahājanas of the city, for the abode of Jina which (his) father had caused to be made, in (the enclosure named) Chandrikavāṭa, to Kanakasēna, a chief of wise men, a follower of the Sāna lineage, a disciple of the great saint Virasēna, who was the chief disciple of the Āchārya Kumārasēna, whose feet were worthy to be worshipped by men, kings, and great ascetics, a field measuring one thousand (betel)-creepers, in the Kandavarmamāḷa area, which he bought for a very great sum¹ from the hands of Eṛekamāpavaka (? the youthful Ereka), Nakulārya, and Kaliyamma.

(L. 11) To that same abode of Jina there has been given, by four head-men of guilds (of) three hundred and sixty cities, a field measuring one thousand (betel)-creepers in the Ballagere area.

(L. 12) And to that same house of Jina there has been given, with the approval of one hundred and twenty Mahājanas, by the Brāhmanas of the Bellāḷa family, a field measuring one thousand (betel)-creepers in that same Kandavarmamāḷa area.

(L. 13) Thus, as many as three fields of betel-creepers, [free from] all molestation

No. 16.—CONJEEVERAM COPPER-PLATE OF VIJAYA-GANDAGOPALADEVA.

By PROFESSOR S. V. VENKATESWARA, M.A., KUMBAKONAM.

This is a single copper-plate bored at the top and ruled on both sides. The abrupt way in which the inscription begins shows that the plate is probably the last one of a grant of which one or more plates in the beginning are missing. This last plate was obtained by me on loan from the Śaṅkarāchārya Maṭha at Kumbakonam. It is in good state of preservation, and the inscription, so far as it goes, is quite legible. The length of the plate is 8·7 inches at the sides and 10·9 inches in the middle, and the breadth 7·5 inches at the top and 7·9 inches at the bottom. The height of the letters varies from ·2 to ·3 inches in the body of the inscription and from ·3 to ·5 inches in the signature.

The inscription is in verso, and the language is Sanskrit. The character is Grantha throughout, excepting the signature of the donor, which is in Tamil. As regards orthography we have tth used for th in line 2 and ddh for dh in ll. 9 and 20. Va looks like pa throughout. When three consonants have to be written in one compound letter, one of them is omitted or a vowel is inserted between them. Thus we have bhaktiā written bhatyā, l. 17, and kōshṭhya written -kōshṭhiya-, l. 13. The r is not written in compound letters in lines 4 and 7, where Śaṅkarārya is written -Saṅkarārya- and muhūrtakē, muhūttakē. In these cases we have a duplication of the y and t also. Short and long u, like short and long i, are not always written in their proper places. In l. 11, for instance, where -taṭṭisimā- is required for metrical purposes, we find that -taṭṭisimā- is actually written; -hīntālā-sōbhītam is written for -hīntāla-sōbhītam in l. 12; nīdhāya for nīdhāya in l. 17; and -āpnōti for -āpnōti in l. 21. Similarly we find -muhūttakē is written for -muhūrtakē in l. 7; bhumēr= for bhūmēr= in l. 15, and bhudāna- for bhūdāna- in l. 18. The vāṛama of final m is not marked in ll. 10, 14, 19 and 21. These are probably slips of the scribe, and so also is the writing of pridhig- for prithag- in l. 7 and -mauli- for -mauli- in l. 14. But nīdhāya munasīsvarē in l. 17 is certainly bad grammar.

The grant confers in perpetuity the village of Ambikāpuram, near Conjeeveram, on the teacher Śrī-Śaṅkarārya or Śaṅkara-yōgin of the maṭha in that place, for sumptuously feeding one hundred and eight² Brāhmanas every day.

² This is more likely, as it is the usual number held sacred in the case of gifts. But in this case =aśṭaśatānān= in the original, l. 8, should be considered bad grammar for =aśṭaśatānān=.

The Śāṅkara herein mentioned is perhaps no other than the then occupant of the Kāmakōṭi-piṭha in the *maṭha*¹ of Conjeeveram, which by tradition is said to have been founded by the great Śāṅkarācārya. Ambikāpuram is a village on the northern bank of the river Vēgavati and is now known as Ambigrāmam. In this village Kāmakōṭi-maṭha still possesses some landed property. Gridhrapura, one of the boundaries of Ambikāpuram mentioned in l. 9, is the modern Tiruppukkuḷi, otherwise known as Jaṭāyutirtha. Other boundaries mentioned are Kaṭchīpura (Conjeeveram), Kaiḍaḍuppuru and Śīrunanni. The last-named village is now known as Śeraṇai.

The donor is the chieftain Gaṇḍagōpāla-Chōla (l. 17 f.) or Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla-Dēva, as he signs himself at the end of the record. His accession took place between Mithuna and Simha in Śaka 1172 (=1250 A.D.), as has been calculated from his inscriptions on the so-called rock of the Aruḷāla-Perumāl temple at Conjeeveram.² We learn from another inscription³ of his that the cyclic year Bahudhānya was his 29th year. The present inscription, therefore, which is in the cyclic year Khara must belong to his 42nd year,—A.D. 1291-2. [The details of date given in ll. 4 to 7 do not work out correctly either for A.D. 1291 or for 1292; but in the cyclic year Khara which occurred 60 years after, i.e. in A.D. 1351, Monday, the 10th tithi of the bright half of Karkāṭaka, corresponded to 4th July 1351 when the nakṣatra Viśākhā ended at 16 hrs. 20 m. after mean sunrise and Anūrādhā commenced consequently in the last quarter of the day.—H. K. S.]

The full name of the king must have been Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla, as is clear from the Tamil signature. Dr. Hultzsch⁴ is therefore wrong in thinking that Gaṇḍagōpāla is the proper name and 'Vijaya' simply an adjective meaning 'victorious'. Various other kings are known to have had the surname Gaṇḍagōpāla; e.g. Erasiddhi,⁵ Tikka I.,⁶ *Manmasiddha*⁷ and even *Ēpilisiddhi*⁸ of another line of Telugu-Chōlas. Dr. Kielhorn⁹ seems to have been inclined to regard the two Gaṇḍagōpālas as identical, viz. Vira-Gaṇḍagōpāla and Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla. That the two are distinct is clear, however, from the inscriptions in the Tripurāntakēśvara temple. There we have inscriptions of the 5th year of Vira-Gaṇḍagōpāla and of the 5th, 16th, 18th, 24th, and 28th years of Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla.¹⁰

Evidence is not clear as to the ancestry of Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla. In the latest report of the Assistant Archaeological Superintendent for Epigraphy, Madras (August 1913, Part II, p. 126) a doubt is expressed as to whether this chieftain may be of the same stock as the Pallava usurper Peruñjūga-Dēva, for the reason that in one of the inscriptions Pallavāṇḍār Rājārāja Śembavarāyan is stated to have been a piḷḷaiyār of Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla. The term Pallavāṇḍār may show that Śembavarāyan was of Pallava descent, but the term piḷḷaiyār must be taken to mean 'feudatory' and not 'son'.¹¹ It is noteworthy that Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla distinctly styles himself a Chōla in the inscription before us (l. 18). He was probably one of the Telugu-Chōla chiefs whose genealogy has been given by the late Mr. Venkayya.¹

Several inscriptions of this dynasty are found in the Nellore district, and one of them has much to tell us about the donor of our grant. He belonged to the race of Parna² and the gōtra of Bharadvāja, his banner was the club, and his ensign the bull. The inscription (A. 25) is on the western wall of the Chandramaṇiśvara temple and it may be noted that Chandra-maṇiśvara is the tutelary deity to this day of the āchāryas of the maṭha of Conjeeveram. The inscription is dated Śaka 1207, and it styles Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla "Lord of Kāñchi."

It is a pity that the first plate or plates of our grant are lost. If discovered, they would have cleared up some of the difficulties of the subject. But it becomes clear even now that Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla fills up the gap between Manmakshamāvallabha,³ the son of Tikka I., and Rāja-Gaṇḍagōpāla, the last known king of the line. For No. 598 of 1907 records a grant made for Manmasiddha's recovery from illness and belongs to 1249-50 A.D., and Manmasiddha is the same as Manmakshamāvallabha.⁴ And it must be remembered that 1250 was the year of accession to the throne of Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla.⁵ Again, the last known year of this king is 1291-2, the year of the copper-plate grant before us. This tallies with the year of accession of Rāja-Gaṇḍagōpāla, as is clear from inscription 194 of the Epigraphist's collection for 1894 (the Śaka year 1221 being his 9th year). In the meantime, however, we have the accession of Tikka II. in 1278 and Mauma-Gaṇḍagōpāla in 1282-3.⁶ Perhaps they were joint rulers with Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla or ruled over other portions of the Telugu-Chōla dominion.

² The authors of the Nellore Inscriptions themselves suggest Parama as a probable reading. The epithets given to Vijaya-Gaṇḍagōpāla in this record, show that he must have belonged to the Pallava race. Parna is perhaps a misreading for Pallava.—H. K. S.]

The latter was the younger brother of Allu Tirukālatidēva Mahārāja alias Gaṇḍagōpāla, and Mauma-Gaṇḍagōpāla was his son (ibidem, p. 11). One of his known dates is 1260-1 A.D. (ibidem, p. 84).

No. 17.—THANA PLATES OF THE TIME OF THE YADAVA KING
RAMACHANDRA : SAKA 1194.

BY LIONEL D. BARNETT.

The record on these plates, which were found, with another set bearing a record of the time of the same king dated in Śaka 1212 current (A.D. 1289), in digging a grave in the Musalmān burial ground at Thāṇa, the head-quarters of the Thāṇa District, Bombay Presidency, was brought to notice by Mr. W. H. Wathen in 1835, in the Journ. R. As. Soc., first series, Vol. II, p. 388; and a reading of the text, prepared by a pandit, with an abstract in English, was given by him in Vol. V, p. 183, No. 10.² The original plates have never been traced again. But Dr. Burgess found ink-impressions of three of their four inscribed sides, evidently made by Mr. Wathen, in the Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society at Bombay, and made them over in 1902 to Dr. Fleet, who has placed them at my disposal. I now edit the record from these impressions, as far as they go. But an impression of the second side of the second plate (lines 46 to 68) being wanting, for my text of that I am entirely dependent on the reading given by Mr. Wathen's pandit; and he did not take the trouble to transcribe the whole of it, but omitted the names, etc., of all except the first of the grantees.³ An appropriate name for the record would be "the Vaula grant," as it registers an assignment of a village named Vaula: but the plates have always been known as a set of "Thāṇa plates," as which they are entered as No. 370 in Professor Kielhorn's List of the Inscriptions of Southern India,⁴ and it is convenient to retain the latter designation.

The plates were three in number; the first and third of them being inscribed on one side, and the second on both sides. Judged by the ink-impressions, the size of the plates was between 11 and 11½ inches in width, and about 9 inches in height; and the second plate seems to have been made slightly smaller than the other two, and also without raised edges, so as to fit in between them. The illustration of them is from Mr. Wathen's impressions: and these being very brittle, a few pieces broke off and were lost before the photographs were made, with the result of causing some small gaps in lines 7, 16, 20, 43 and 44, and a large one between lines 42 and 45. There is no information as to whether the ring on which the

⁴ Vol. VII, above, appendix: the other set of plates, dated in Śaka 1212 (A.D. 1279), is entered as No. 379 in the same List.

plates must have been strung bore any seal.—The character is a good Nāgarī of the period. The letters are about $\frac{1}{8}$ " in height.—The language is Sanskrit, partly in verse, partly in prose; the grammar and orthography call for no special remarks, and the only rare words are sarvīya, 'good to all' (l. 42; cf. Pāṇini V. i. 10, vārtt. 1), and vaṇṭaka, 'a share.'

The subject of the record is a grant of the village of Vaula under the Yādava king Rāmachandra of Dēvagiri. It contains a genealogy of the latter's dynasty, in verse (ll. 7-31) and prose (ll. 31-34), naming and extolling Bhīllama (v. 4), Jaitrapala (the Jaitugi of other records) (v. 5), his son Sīnghana (vv. 6, 7), Kṛishṇa (vv. 8-10),¹ his younger brother Mahādēva (vv. 11-13), and his son Rāmachandra (ll. 26-39), who is said to have defeated the Mālavas (ll. 29, 37), the Gūrjaras, and the Tāliṅgas (l. 36). It then relates that in the reign of Rāmachandra, while Hēmādri, the superintendent of all the elephant-riders (samasta-hastipak-ādhyaksha), was acting as chief minister of the kingdom (ll. 39-41), the village of Vaula was granted to thirty-two Brāhmanas by Achyuta Nāyaka, governor of the Koṅkan. After a specification of the boundaries, etc., comes a list of the beneficiaries, with the names of their fathers and Gōtras.

The minister Hēmādri of this inscription is plainly the famous author of the commentary Āyur-vēda-rasāyana upon the Ashṭāṅga-hṛidaya, the commentary Kaivalya-dīpikā upon the Muktā-phala, and—most important of all—the encyclopædic Chatur-varga-chintāmaṇi. In the metrical preface to the Parīśeṣha-khaṇḍa of the last work (ed. Bibl. Ind., p. 3 ff.) we have a good deal of information concerning him, from which we learn, inter alia, that he was the son of Kāmadēva, and held office under the Yādava king Rāmachandra and his predecessor Mahādēva.

The details of the date (l. 1) are: the Śaka year 1194, being the cyclic year Āṅgiras; the fifth day of the bright fortnight of Āśvina; and Ravau, i.e. Ravivārē, "on Sunday." Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks:—"This Āṅgiras samvatsara was the Śaka year 1194 expired, and began on 2 March, A.D. 1272. The given tithi Āśvina śukla 5 ended at closely about 47 minutes after mean sunrise (for Ujjain) on Thursday, 29 September, and cannot in any way be connected with a Sunday, which is the weekday specified in the record. Accordingly this date is an irregular one. In connection with the terms in which it is stated an incidental remark may be made, as follows. On the strength of the reading published by Wathen, this date has been quoted as containing the expression Śālivāhana-śakē, and as giving the earliest instance of the connection of the name Śālivāhana with the Śaka era: see Professor Kielhorn's notes on this matter in Ind. Ant., vol. 26, p. 150. But it is found from the ink-impression that that is only due to a gratuitous insertion by the pandit who transcribed the record for Wathen; the text says simply śrī-Śākē. This fact makes it very doubtful, to say the least, whether the said expression was really used in the Thāṇa record of A.D. 1289, mentioned above, Wathen's No. 9. Further, it is known now that the dates of the two Kurgōl inscriptions of Śaka 1095 and 1103 (A.D. 1173 and 1181) do not include the name Śālivāhana.² Also, I learn from Mr. Narasimhachar that the date of the Śravaṇa-Belgoḷa inscription of Śaka 1200 (expired), in A.D. 1278, also does not really contain any mention of Śālivāhana.³ In those circumstances the earliest reliable instance that we can quote, of the connection of the name of Śālivāhana with the era, is the date in the record on the Harihar plates of

² See footnote to the entry of these two records under No. 253 of Professor Kielhorn's List of the Southern Inscriptions.—J. F. F.

Bukkarāya I of Vijayanagara dated in Śālivāhana-śaka 1276 (current), with details falling in A.D. 1354.¹

As regards the places mentioned in this record, Vaula, the village which was granted, is described as being in Sāsaṭi. This last-mentioned is the present Sashti, Salsette, the island which forms the tāluka of which the head-quarters station is at Thāpa : its name is found as Shatshashti in the Bhāṣṇ plates of A.D. 1026 (see Vol. XII above, p. 257). Vaula still exists, and is shown in the Indian Atlas sheet 25, N.E. (1905), in lat. 19° 16', long. 73° 1', about five miles north-by-west from Thāpa. The village of the god Kamēśvara, on the east, is plainly the "Kavesvar" of the map, about a mile east-south-east from Vaula. The Sambhavaja river, on the north, must be the lower part of the Ulbās river, which there develops into the Bassein Creek. The map does not show any names answering to Śitalēśvara, on the south of Vaula, and Sāmbhavajā, the hamlet of the god Khōpēśvara, on the west.

⁴ Corrupt; perhaps we might read dhādhi-tāḍakaḥ*.

⁶ Metro: Sragidharā.

⁷ Probably we ought to write a single daṇḍa.

⁸ I give these words with due reserve; see below, p. 206, note 2, for the translation.

⁹ For the contents of this face we have the testimony of the ink-impression, supplemented by Mr. Wathen's text for the last two lines (see above, note 1).

TRANSLATION.

(Lines 1-2)—Om ! Hail ! In the Śaka year 1194, the cyclic year Āṅgiras, on Sunday, the 5th day of the bright fortnight of Āśvina, a grant of a village is drawn up, as follows :—

(Verse 1)—Victorious are Hēramba's sports,¹ in which the three worlds tremble on (seeing) the streams of water from the Seven Oceans mutually combining on the earth as the latter sinks down under the intensely heavy steps of his feet (in dancing) ; the lines of the primitive mountains become balls for his brilliant amusement ; and bees lose their way in the hot flow of his rutting ichor.

(Verse 2)—May Hari, in sport (assuming the form of) a boar, aid the three worlds ; he who bears on the tip of his tusk the earth, which has the graceful appearance of a swarthy cloud conspicuous on the crown of the Mount of Snows ; attached to whose body the Seven Oceans, spreading out in some corner, constantly suggest the idea that they are drops of newly arisen sweat.

(Verse 3)—There resides the race of the Yadus, resembling an ocean, famed through the three worlds : by the multitudes of the jewels that are the kings sprung thence the earth has been adorned like a deer-eyed damsel.

(Verse 4)—In this lineage was born Bhīllama, a gem for the decoration of the diadem of the Lady Earth, having glory white as the cool-rayed (moon) ; a celestial tree to troops of suppliants ; one whose sprout-like foot, brilliant in its dark-red hue, hostile monarchs ever placed on their heads as an ornament.

(Verse 5)—When this Mahēndra of the earth, a home of good deeds, an ocean for the jewels of virtues, had gone to heaven, after him the fortunate Jaitrapāla, a unique conqueror of the circle of the earth, became king.

(Verse 6)—Then his son, whose lotus-foot sported in the bosom of the waves of the noble lake (consisting) of the rays from the large jewels on the crests of bowing monarchs, a sun to the mists upon the ocean that is the famous Yadu race, drinking up by the fullness of the radiance of the sun of his majesty the mass of darkness (consisting) of the collyrium of elegant sport on the bright eyes of his foes' mistresses, Singhaṇa, became king.

(Verse 7)—As, when he was wroth, the ocean readily fell into misfortune owing to the canopies of dust thrown up from the multitude of mountains pounded down by the trampling of the lines of unsleeping hoof-tips in the circles of his army, wherein squadrons of horses galloped forward to undertake campaigns in (all) quarters, the monarchs of earth, defeated in battle, had no rest here either on the dry land or in the waters.

(Verse 8)—Then was born king Kṛishṇa, who bore a cloud (consisting) of a sword brightly shining with the sportive play of the lightning that is the Goddess of Victory ; the sun of whose haughty majesty, strange to say, causes to bud the lotus hands of hostile kings ;²

(Verse 9)—whose sword blade dances vehemently, on the stage that is the ground of the battle-field, to the accompaniment of songs (consisting) of the bellowings of lordly elephants

and of spreading music (consisting) of noises : this wonder (happened), that the jasmīnes fell from the locks of the tressed faces of his foes, and the necklaces were quickly broken off from the surface of their throats and heads.¹

(Verse 10)—This king arrived at the dwelling of the gods, being as it were summoned by the troops of the Maruts, who were delighted by his sacrifices.

(Verse 11)—After him his younger brother Mahādēva became king, whitening the whole sphere of the skies with glories rivalling the brilliance of the stainless rays of the (moon of) autumn, and casting mists of destruction on the multitudes of lotuses of royal races.

(Verse 12)—When the joyful rising of the moon that was his noble glory happened, the multitudes of the eyes of his foes' women became constantly moonstones,² the souls of living beings became night-lotuses, and the poverty of the needy everywhere fared like the darkness (when the moon rises), and worthy poets became bright chakōras.

(Verse 13)—This king, after conquering the whole surface of the ocean-girdled earth, in due course prepared to depart to paradise, as though from desire to overcome Indra.

(Verse 14)—A precious pearl from the opening (shell of the) Yadu race,—a Nārāyaṇa to the lords of earth,—a Grandsire [Brahman] of kings,—having the exaltation of a Bhīma in the rampart of his own arm,—a lion to the mighty elephants of the province of the wavering Mālavas,—the king Rāmachandra, son of the monarch Kṛishṇa, is victorious.

(Verse 15)—When he, beauteous in the possession of the sun's splendour, has ascended the Gods' Mount,³ which is like the Eastern Mountain, and has scattered in every direction a line of arrows rivalling the abundance of (the sun's) rays, what mass of darkness (consisting) of enemies has there been that is not eager to flee?

(Lines 31-39)—Now while king Rāmachandra, moon to the lotuses of the Yadu race, brilliant with the series of all titles such as : "he who dries up the pools of hostile monarchs' glory by his most fierce heat [or, majesty], who adorns the girdles of the ladies of the quarters of space with lines of precious pearls of his own stainless virtues, who displays the awfulness of a Nṛsiṃha by tearing open the surface of mighty foemen's breasts, whose face-lotus is kissed by the bees which are the restless eye-corners of Śambara's slayer [Kāma], who by his own arm has won the name Ēkāṅgavīra, who is a treasury of all virtues, who is a Vīra-Nārāyaṇa to the demons his enemies, who by his life makes light of the Grandsire [Brahman], a Grandsire of monarchs, who is the lord of the city of Dvāravatī, a lion shattering the elephants of the Gūrjara, an elephant in uprooting the tall trees of Tēliṅga, a blast of the Day of Doom in extinguishing the lamps of the Mālavas, a tree of desire possessing the virtue of liberality," is reigning over the whole girdle of earth ;

(Lines 39-41)—And while Hēmādri, superintendent of all the elephant-riders, inspiring men to appreciate the fineness of his virtues,⁴ conqueror of the province of Jhāḍī, crest-jewel of ministers, a Rōhaṇa Mountain⁵ of the gems of virtues, is exercising the administration of the whole kingdom which has been obtained by his favour and controlling the whole treasury :—

(Verse 16)—The fortunate Jalhana, a gem adorning the members of the blessed Gautama gūtra, a noble Brāhmaṇ, good to all, (was) the ancestor ; after him (was) his son Mūdhugi,

² That is to say, their eyes were always raining tears.

brilliant of virtue,¹ skilled in the weapons which are the Śruti and the Śāstraś; to him was born a virtuous son, the blessed Achyuta Nāyaka, who has the fortunes of the blessed Rāmachandra.

(Verse 17)—While this Achyuta Nāyaka has developed mighty radiance [or, majesty], is an excellence of beauty, a giver of much largesse, a person able to bear [or, rule] the earth, why has the Creator framed a sun? Why is this moon created (by him)? Alas! the wishing-gem is produced in vain! Why are these primitive mountains made?

And he, who is a Grandsire among governors of provinces,, a conqueror of western kings,— (Verse 18)—he, who occupies in this Koṅkan his seat established by the pleasure of the blessed Rāma, has given by a goodly dispensation to thirty-two Brāhmaṇs the village named Vaula, with the nine forms of treasure, as far as its eight boundaries, in the interior of Sāsaṭi, to be enjoyed freely by these most noble Brāhmaṇs, who give him blessings.

The bounds thereof (are): on the east, the village of the god Kāmēśvara; on the south, Śitalēśvara; on the west, the hamlet of the god Khōpēśvara (called) Sāmbhavajā; on the north, the Sāmbhavaja river. Thus the four bounds. The village called Vaula, as far as its proper limits, together with grass, wood, and water, with trees and vegetation, with khāri, vōra, and vēdhī,² has been given by Achyuta Nāyaka to the thirty-two Brāhmaṇs.

And these Brāhmaṇs (are): Vishṇu-dikshita, son of Bhānu, of the Gārgya gōtra, 1 share;
 Āu-prabhu,
 son of Vishṇu-prabhu, of the Jāmadagna-Vatsa gōtra, 1 share; Bāchhā-nāyaka, son of Rāghava-nāyaka, of the Atri gōtra, 1 share; Vāsudē-bhaṭṭa, son of Marasinha-paṇḍita, of the Jāmadagna-Vatsa gōtra, 1 share; Khētamāchārya, son of Kṛishṇāchārya, of the Vāsishṭha gōtra, 1 share; Nāgadē-bhaṭṭa, son of Mādhava-bhaṭṭa, of the Jāmadagna-Vatsa gōtra, 1 share; Añ-bhaṭṭa, son of Somanātha-ghaiśāsa, of the Gautama gōtra, 1 share; Nāgadē-bhaṭṭa, son of Purnshottama-bhaṭṭa, of the Bhāradvāja gōtra, 1 share; Rāmēśvara-bhaṭṭa, son of Somadē-bhaṭṭa, of the Bhāradvāja gōtra, 1 share; Kānhupādhye, son of Dāmōdara-upādhyāya, of the Chandrātrēya gōtra, 1 share; Trivikrama-ghaiśāsa, son of Vāsudē-ghaiśāsa, of the Kāśyapa gōtra, 1 share. Thus the 32 Brāhmaṇs. And the thirty-two Brāhmaṇs have given one share to (the god) Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa.

NO. 18.—THREE COPPER-PLATE GRANTS OF THE TIME OF THE CHAHAMANA KELHANA.

BY M. B. GARDE, B.A., GWALIOR.

I edit the three subjoined inscriptions from four sets of impressions kindly placed at my disposal by the late Rai Bahadur V. Venkayya, two of which had been sent to him by Mr. D. R. Bhandarkar and the other two by Pandit Gaurishankar H. Ojha. A brief summary of the contents of these records by Mr. Bhandarkar has appeared at page 53 of the Progress Report of the Archaeological Survey of India, Western Circle, for the year 1908-09.

The copper-plates on which the inscriptions are engraved are now in the Rājputānā Museum of Ajmer, and Mr. Ojha has kindly supplied the following information about their find-spot:—"The Chāhuāna plates . . . were found at Bāmpērā (in the Jōdhpur State) about 7 miles from the Erinpurā Railway Station, while the foundations for a building were being dug and I secured them from a Brāhmaṇa of the place, named Rāma."

A.—BĀMNĒRĀ PLATE OF KĒLHANA : [VIKRAMA-] SAMVAT 1220.

The inscription is on a single plate inscribed on one side only. Judging from the impressions, the plate varies from 7½" to 8" in length and from 4½" to 5" in height. In the middle of the topmost line there is a hole meant for a ring to hold the seal. Nothing, however, is known about the ring or the seal.

The inscription consists of 9 lines of well preserved writing and with the exception of two customary verses it is in prose. The characters are Nāgarī, and the language is incorrect Sanskrit, mixed with local words. The rules of Samdhī have not been observed in many places; these and other mistakes occurring in the text are corrected in the foot-notes. Instances of Prakritism are seen in the forms of the proper names -Kumarasiha-, l. 3; Ajayasiheṇa, ll. 3 f.; -Puinasiha-, l. 5; and perhaps in isī-, l. 4 (Skt. rishi). The following rare words may be noted :—ḍoḥalika,¹ l. 2, is a local word meaning 'a piece of land granted to Brāhmaṇas, Svāmīns, Sādhus and others.' Ugamaṇiyō,² l. 4, is also a local word which means 'on the east.' Vaḍaharā,³ l. 5, is probably a form of the Mārwarī word baḍḍō, which signifies 'an old man.' Āsādīta-, l. 4 (Skt. Āsāditya), and Vaīda-, l. 5 (Skt. Vaidya), appear to be proper names. The abbreviation dū°, l. 9, stands for *dāta*h. As regards orthography it is sufficient to note that the sign for v is used to represent b also; ri is once used for the vowel ṛi in rishi-hatyā-, l. 7.

The inscription opens with the benedictory syllable om and refers itself to the reign of Kēlhana, the son of Maharājādhirāja śrī-Ālhanadēva [of the Chāhamāna line of kings]. The object of the inscription is to record a grant of land made to a Brāhmaṇa named Nārāyaṇa, son of Samdhirāṇa, on the occasion of a solar eclipse, on Wednesday, the 15th of the dark fortnight of Śrāvaṇa in the year [Vikrama-] Samvat 1220. The grant was made at Kōrēṭaka by Ajayasiha, son of the great Rājput (mahārājaputra) Kumarasiha. The specification of the boundaries of the land granted is given in lines 4 and 5 and is followed by two customary verses. The last line records the approval and sign-manual (svahasta) of prince (Rajaputra) śrī-Kīrtipālādēva and gives the name of the messenger (dūta) as Chāmumḍarāja.

The inscription is of some historical importance inasmuch as it informs us that the Chāhamāna prince Kēlhana was reigning in the month of Śrāvaṇa of the year V. S. 1220. The earliest record of Kēlhana that has hitherto been published is dated on the 2nd of the dark half of Māgha of V. S. 1221.⁴ The present record thus gives us a date for Kēlhana about a year and a half earlier than any known hitherto. Śrī-Kīrtipālādēva referred to in the last line of the inscription is doubtless the same as the younger brother of Kēlhana who is already known from his Nadol plates⁵ dated in V. S. 1218 as well as from other inscriptions⁶ of the Chāhamāna dynasty. From the present inscription it appears that Kīrtipāla enjoyed a share

⁵ The Nādōl copper-plate inscription tells us that twelve villages appertaining to [the] Naddūlāi [district] were assigned to Kīrtipāla by his father Ālhanā and his brother Kēlhana (above, Vol. IX, p. 69, text lines 17 and 18). In the Sūndhā hill inscription Kīrtipāla is described as having defeated a Kīrātakūṭa chief named Āsala and routed an army of Turushkas at Kāsahrada (above, Vol. IX, p. 77, v. 36). He was the founder of the Sūnigarā branch of the Chāhamānas (above, Vol. XI, p. 73).

in the administration of the kingdom during the reign of his brother Kōṣhaṇa, since his signature and approval are specified in the grant. Nothing is yet known about Ajayasiha,¹ the donor of this grant, or his father Kumarasiha; and it is uncertain whether they were in any way connected with the ruling family of the Chāhamānas. Only one place-name, viz. Kōrēṭaka,² occurs in this inscription. Kōrēṭaka survives in the modern village of Kōrṭā (Jodhpur State, Rājputānā), which lies a short distance to the north of Bāṃṇērā. Mr. Bhandarkar³ observes, "Kōrṭā is no doubt the same as the ancient Kōraṃṭaka which has given its name to a Jaina gachchha and which formerly not only included the present village of Kōrṭā, but had spread as far south as Bāṃṇērā The whole ground between Kōrṭā and Bāṃṇērā is artificial and was doubtless the site of an ancient city, Kōraṃṭaka by name, as said above."

B.—BĀMŪNĒRĀ PLATE OF KĒLHAṆA-DĒVA : [VIKRAMA-] SĀMṼVAT 1223.

This inscription is engraved on one side of a single plate which, as the impressions show, measures $6\frac{1}{8}'' \times 5\frac{1}{8}''$. The letters are well engraved and are on the whole in a good state of preservation. A hole for the ring holding the seal is seen in the middle of the first two lines of the inscription. Neither the ring nor the seal has been preserved.

² The name of Kōrēṭaka appears in slightly different forms in all the three inscriptions of this group. Our record has Kōrēṭaka in l. 3; Kōraṃṭaka is to be inferred from the Taddhita form Kōraṃṭakiya, a resident of Kōraṃṭaka, in ll. 3 f. of record B, below, p. 210; and Kōrēṇṭhaka- occurs in ll. 2 f. of record C, below, p. 211.

The epigraph consists of 13 lines of writing, the whole of which is in prose. The characters are Nāgarī. The language is Sanskrit. As regards orthography it is worthy of note that a separate sign for b, resembling the modern Nāgarī b, occurs in one place, l. 4; but in two other places in the record, viz. l. 7 and l. 8, where b occurs, it is denoted by the sign of p.

A palatal sibilant is once used for a dental sibilant in śāsanam, l. 3; but in several other places where the dental sa occurs in this inscription it is denoted by its proper sign, e.g. in saṃvat, and sōmē, l. 1; in -Sāṃdhīraṇa-uta-, l. 4; in -sējāyām, l. 5, and so on. V is doubled after r; e.g. pūrvvasyām, l. 7. But the surd k is not doubled after r; e.g. -ārka-, l. 6. The word śāsanēna is written as śāsaṃnēna, l. 5; and the word Mahāsvāmidēva is written as Mahāsvāmivihdēva-, l. 9. There are many instances of the violation of Saṃdhi rules; e.g. -dēvō śāsanam, l. 3; -Nārāyaṇasya a-, l. 4; pūrvvasyām asya, l. 7; -vrikamālākulō pradattaḥ, ll. 10 f., and so on. Other serious mistakes occurring in the text are corrected in the foot-notes. As to the meanings of the unfamiliar words in this inscription, the word sējāyām, l. 5, is probably equivalent to the Sanskrit word bhuktan, property, which is usually met with in this connection in grants. The word ḍhikuaṭṭi,¹ l. 6, and its allied forms -ḍhikaḥ, l. 7, -ḍhimvaḍaṭṭi,² l. 8, and ḍhimkaḥ, l. 9, all mean the same thing, viz. 'a well,' as distinguished from araghaṭa,³ l. 8, which means 'a machine well or a well with a wheel to raise water.' Satka,⁴ l. 7, means 'belonging to.' Narap(b)rahma and Dādaḍāṭṭi, l. 8, are proper names, the former of a Vyāsa (=a Brāhmaṇa who reads the Purāṇas in public) and the latter of a well.⁵ Mahāsvāmī (Mahāsvāmī), l. 9, i.e. 'the great lord,' on "the analogy of Jagat-svāmī, by which (name) the Sūrya of Śrīmāla (Bhīmāl) was known"⁶ most probably refers to the Sun-god (Sūrya) of Bāṃpōrā.⁷

This epigraph registers a grant by Mahārājādhirāja śrī-Kēlhanadēva [of the Chāhamāna family] ruling over the Naḍūla maṇḍala, made on Monday, the 12th of the dark half of Jyēshṭha of the year [Vikrama-] Saṃvat 1223. The grant consisted of a well⁸ with its treasures and its trees, situated in the property (sējā) of the Rājput (Rājaputra) Ajaya[rāja] in the same, i.e. the Kōraṃṭaka village. The donee is the same as in the preceding and succeeding grants, viz. the Brāhmaṇa Nārāyaṇa, son of Sāṃdhīraṇa and a resident of Kōraṃṭaka (Kōraṃṭakiyaḥ). Lines 12 and 13 have "this is the sign-manual of Mahārājādhirāja śrī-Kēlhanadēva himself." The closing portion of the last line is not intelligible to me.

The Rājaputra Ajaya[rāja], in whose property the well granted lay, was probably the same as Ajayasiha, son of Mahārājaputra śrī-Kumarasiha of inscription A above and as Ajayasiha, son of Rāja Kumvarasiha of inscription C below. As regards the locality Kōraṃṭaka remarks on that name on p. 208, note 2, above may be referred to. In this inscription, however, the place is described as a grāma, l. 5, which may show that at the time of this record it was only a village.

Attention may be drawn to the late Professor Kielhorn's remarks⁹ on the date of this record: "This date . . . works out satisfactorily only for the amānta Jyāishṭha of the current Chaitrādi Vikrama year 1223, for which it corresponds to Monday, the 7th of June, A.D. 1165.

C.—BĀMNERĀ PLATE OF KĪLHAṆA-DĒVA [UNDATED].

This inscription is on a single plate inscribed on one side only. To judge from the impressions, the plate varies from 7½" to 8" in length and from 4½" to 5" in breadth. In the centre of the top line there is a ring-hole. Nothing is known about the ring or the seal.

The record contains 9 lines of writing. The characters are Nāgarī, and the language is Sanskrit prose with the exception of two customary verses in the Anuṣṭubh metre. In respect of orthography it is to be noted that v and b are both denoted by the sign for v. In one place, however, viz. pa(ba)hubhih, l. 7, the sign for p is employed to represent b. The dental sibilant is repeatedly used for the palatal sibilant in lines 4, 5 and 6. The surds t and k and the labial r are doubled after a preceding r; e.g. pravarttamānē, l. 2; āchamdrārkkā-kālam, l. 4, and so on. Once jā is substituted for yā, viz. in jāvat, l. 4. The abbreviation *rāja*⁹, l. 2, denotes rājaputra. Instances of peculiar spelling are mahārājāhīrāja, l. 1, for mahārājādhirāja; -vijayarāyyā,

The corrected word thus reads केनापि. Read केरपि.¹⁰ Read परिपंथनीयं. After परिपंथनीयः there is, on the impression, an ornamental sign of punctuation.¹¹ Read स्वर्हस्तोयं.¹² I do not understand this expression. [Nālacāu perhaps corresponds to Hindustani nālā, a channel, and the whole might be translated 'also the channel should not be damaged.'—S. l. 1, for vijayarājyā; Kumvara-, l. 2, for Kumara-; tasyāghātā, l. 5, for tasyāghātā. The form stha in Kumvarastha- and Ajayasthāna, l. 2, is perhaps a Prakritism. Rules of Samdhi are violated in -dēva-utthāpani-, l. 4; -parvani āchāndrārkkakālam, l. 4; -vamsajō kōpi, l. 6; pa(ba)kubhihruvasudhā, ll. 7-8, and so on. The unfamiliar words to be noted in this inscription are dhikō, l. 3; -dhiku, l. 5; and -dhiku, l. 6, all of which mean 'a well.' Rānrala-, l. 6, appears to be the name of a dhiku or well.

The inscription opens with the benedictory words ōh svasti and refers itself to the victorious reign of Mahārājādhirāja Kēlhaṇa-dēva [of the Chāhamāna dynasty]. It records the grant of a well¹ (dhikō) to a Brāhmaṇa named Nārāyaṇa, son of Sāmdhirāṇa, at Korēṇṭaka-sthāna. The grant was made by Ajayasiha, son of *Rāja*² Kumvarasiha, on the holy occasion of a dēva-utthāpani śkādaśi.³ The epigraph closes with the auspicious expression Māṅgalam Mahāśrīḥ.

The date of this grant is suggested by the words śkādaśi dēva-utthāpani-parvani as being the eleventh day of the bright half of Kārttika, but the year is not given. The donor, the donee and the locality of this grant are the same as those in the grant of inscription A above. The remarks on the word Mahāsvāmī in inscription B above hold good also in the case of the word Mahāsvāmī occurring in l. 5 of this inscription.

No. 19.—SIDDHANTAM PLATES OF DEVENDRAVARMAN,

By G. RAMDAS PANTULU, B.A., JEPPORE.

The subjoined plates were given to me by Tripurani Paparao, a native of Siddhāntam, a village near Chicacole, in the Ganjām district. It is stated that the plates were discovered while digging foundations for a new building. They are three in number and measure $7\frac{1}{2}$ by $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches. The margins of the inscribed inner side of the first and third plates and both sides of the second plate, are raised for the protection of the writing. The latter is in a good state of preservation. The ring on which the plates are strung was not cut when the plates were first acquired by me. It is $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick and 4 inches in diameter. The two ends of the ring are secured at the bottom of an oval seal ($1\frac{1}{4}$ by $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter), which bears on a counter-sunk surface a bull couchant facing the proper right with a crescent above and a floral device below. The weight of the plates with the ring and seal is $98\frac{1}{2}$ tolas.

The characters, which are a variety of the South-Indian alphabet, belong to the same stock as those used in other grants of the Gāṅga kings. They do not resemble the characters of the Chicacole plates,¹ presumably, of the same king; but are rather allied to those of the Alamanda plates² of Anantavarman, and of the Vizagapatam copper-plate grant³ of Dēvēndravarman, son of Anantavarman. Of palæographic interest is the conjunct akshara ṇṇa. This is made up of the letter ṇa with a ṇa written under it, just as in the Chicacole grant. The two other grants referred to above show correctly the two ṇas, one below the other.

The following remarks may be made about the orthography of the grant. The employment of the visarga is arbitrary. It is omitted in ll. 5, 7, etc., and inserted unnecessarily in ll. 6 and 12. The jihvāmūliya and the upadhmanīya are both expressed by the symbol representing the letter sha, e.g. in ll. 2, 8, 16, 20 and 28. In the middle of a word the anusvāra is converted to the class nasal of the consonant which immediately follows it; for example, in -saṅkshōbha- (l. 6), in saṅkara- (l. 29), etc. Before liquids it is changed into m, e.g. in -dattām=vā (l. 25) and in -samvachhara- (for samvatsara (l. 28)). The conversion of the anusvāra into ṇ before the palatal sibilant ś, e.g. in -nistriṇśa-, l. 5, and in chaturthōṇśō, l. 14, is probably a reflex of the local pronunciation of the sound. Before the dental s the anusvāra is changed into n in -pūrvaṇ=sampratta- (l. 14). Consonants preceding or following directly upon r are as a rule doubled: see ll. 1, 3, 5, 9, 10, etc. The following are some of the exceptions to this doubling: l. 1, -sarvartu-; l. 7, -chakra-; l. 10, -nur=naḥā-; l. 17, gartā-. Ohha is not doubled in -brahmachārīchhēdē in l. 11, even though the doubling is required by phonetic rules, and in dīnān-chhrēyō in l. 25. No distinction is made between b and v (ll. 10, 12, 13, 15 and 22), the only exception, perhaps, being -brahma- in l. 11.

The plates record the grant of a plot of ground equal to one hala in extent, in the village of Siddhartthaka, to Tampusāśarma-Dīkshita, a resident of Ēraṇḍapali, who was a student of the Rigvēda (Bahvricha), well versed in the Vēdas and Vēdāṅgas, and belonged to the Udavāhi gōtra (ll. 11-13). The donor was the king Dēvēndravarman, son of Guṇārṇava, a member of the Gāṅga family and a devout worshipper of Mahēśvara (l. 9). The passages which eulogise the king and his family are almost identical with those of the Chicacole plates and do not require further comment.

The grant was made during the Dakṣiṇāyana (Winter Solstice) on the 5th day of the dark fortnight of the month of Śrāvapa, in the 195th year of the victorious reign expressed both in words and numerical symbols. If this refers to the Gāṅga era, in which almost all the Eastern Gāṅga copper-plate grants are dated, the date of the Siddhāntam plates would be twelve years later than the Chicacole plates of the same king.

The writer or composer of the grant was Madanāṅkura-Pallava, son of Mātṛichandra of the Apūrvanāṣa family, living in Brāṇḍapali. He may possibly have been a brother of Pallavachandra of the same family who wrote the Chicacole plates. The purōhita Chharampanandīśarman, who communicated the order of the king, perhaps corresponds to the ājñapti of other grants.

With respect to the localities mentioned in the plates, it is to be remarked that the village Siddhārtthaka, like Tāmaracheru (or Tāmaracheruva) of the other Gāṅga plates, is mentioned as being situated in the district of Varāhavartanī. Dr. Sten Konow in his paper on the Madras Museum Plates of Vajrahasta III. says that Tāmaracheruva and its hamlet Vāṭaka "should be looked for in the neighbourhood of Chicacole."¹ In that case, the village Siddhārtthaka, which is referred to also in the Achyutapuram plates of Indravarman,² may be identified with Siddhāntam near Chicacole, where the plates were discovered. The district Varāhavartanī is probably the region between the Vamsadhārā and Nāgavālī.³

The word adhikṛita applied to the writer and the akṣaśālīn would point to the fact that there were special officials entrusted with the work of drawing up these documents and engraving them.—The parenthetical clause grīṣhm-ōḍakam, etc., in l. 12, is interesting as indicating how much the farmers depended upon irrigation works. The plot of land which is the subject of the grant is stated to have included a water-course and a house-site.

No. 20.—GAGAHĀ PLATES OF GOVINDACHANDRA OF KANAUJ: SAMVAT 1199.

By LIONEL D. BARNETT.

These plates, of which the contents are here published for the first time, were obtained by Mr. A. C. L. Carlleyle at the village of Gagahā, and passed from him in 1887 to the Trustees of the British Museum, where they are now preserved in the Department of Oriental Printed Books and Manuscripts, with the number "Indian Charters 17". A cursory account of them is given by Mr. Carlleyle in vol. xxii of the Archæological Survey of India, p. 59 f., and a paper on their date by Professor Kielhorn appeared in the Indian Antiquary, vol. 18, p. 20 f. (cf. his List of Northern Inscriptions in this journal, vol. 5, App. No. 119). Mr. Carlleyle describes Gagahā as lying on the western side of the river Rāptī, about twenty-one miles south of Gorakhpur. This rather vague specification seems to suit best the village of that name situated in the tappā of Gagahā in Bānsgaon taluk, which is served by the post-office at Kōri-Rām.—The record consists of two copper plates, with their edges turned up, and with holes for a ring, which is now wanting; evidently they were intended to fit one into the other. They are fairly well preserved. One of them measures about 17½ inches in width and 10½ inches in height; the other is slightly smaller, so as to fit into the larger. The writing is on one side only of each plate.—The character is an early Nāgarī, very similar to that given in Bühler's Plato V, col. xx. The letters are well shaped; their height is from ¾ inch to 1¼ inch.—The language is Sanskrit. As the nine introductory stanzas are known from the Kamauli plates published in this journal (vol. 4, pp. 100, 118), nothing need be said of them. In the remaining part there are a few points of interest. From a lexical point of view we may notice kāchha-bhūmi and *vāgara-bhūmau*¹ (both in l. 14), nālu, a measure of land² (ib.), and pāmcha, also a measure of land (ib.). In respect of orthography we may remark a very frequent confusion between s and ś, besides some other irregularities due to vernacular pronunciation, such as v for b (throughout), lishita for likhita (l. 17), śēsharam for śēkharam (l. 21), jāchatē for yāchatē (l. 28), tāmura for tāmra (l. 34). The grammar in the prose portion is sometimes irregular; thus in ll. 22-23 we have a dative singular in apposition with a locative plural (Śrīvatsa-gōtrāya . . . °tripravarāya . . . °sākhinē . . . °pautrāya . . . °putrāya . . . ēshu vrāhanvāśhu), as the indirect object of pradattō (l. 24).³ This irregularity is partly explained by the fact that the names of the donees in l. 23, as they now stand on the plate, are not what was written there in the first instance: the original writing has been punched out, and the present three names substituted. The nominative °nadi in l. 20 for the locative is a mere blunder.

The contents of the inscription are, as usual, a grant of an estate to Brāhmanas, and may be analysed as follows. First after the opening verse come nine stanzas (ll. 1-10) praising Yaśōvigraha (v. 2), his son Mahīchandra (v. 3), his son Chandradēva, a mighty warrior, who possessed himself of the monarchy of Gādhipura (Kanauj), protected Kāśī, Kuśika, Uttara-Kōsala, and Indrasthānīyaka, and bestowed very many tulā-purushas on Brāhmanas (vv. 4-5), his son Madanapāla, likewise a great man of war (vv. 6-7), and his son Gōvindhachandra, who captured the elephants of "nine kings" (vv. 8-9).⁴ Then follows the grant proper, in prose (ll. 10-25), which informs us that in the reign of the above-mentioned Gōvindhachandra, with his approval the maharājaputra Rājyapālādēva granted certain estates in the Hathaunda pattalā, in the Samvat year 1199, to three Brāhman brothers, Dēvarāma, Bhūpati and Śrīdhara, while he was in his camp at Guṇjhaḍagrāma. Then come eleven verses exhorting to the maintenance of this grant (ll. 25-34), and a final statement that the document was drawn up by the karanika Vivika, or Bibika (l. 34).

The details of the date (l. 19) are: Samvat 1199; the eleventh tithi in the bright fortnight of Phālguna; and Śanau, "on Saturday." Professor Kielhorn has shown that the year is Vikrama-samvat 1199 expired (either northern or southern), when the given tithi Phālguna śukla 11 ended at about 13 hours after mean sunrise (for Ujjain) on Saturday, 27 February, A.D. 1143.⁵

None of the places mentioned in the document can be identified with any approach to certainty, unless it be Guṇjhaḍa, which may be the same as the modern Gunjhari, in the tappā of Karmant, taluk Bānsaon, near Belghāt.

No. 21.—SRIRANGAM PLATES OF MADHAVA-NAYAKA : SAKA-SAMVAT 1343.

By T. A. GOPINATHA RAO, M.A., TRIVANDRAM.

The subjoined inscription is engraved on three copper-plates which, though all of them have a hole in the middle of their left margin, have no connecting ring. The plates belong to the Raṅganātha temple at Śrīraṅgam and were obtained on loan by me.⁷ From an impression taken under my supervision the inscription is edited below.

The preservation of this document is good; it is written in the Telugu alphabet but the language is Sanskrit. It belongs to the time of Mādhava Nāyaka (l. 39) or Rājarāja Mādhava-Bhūpāla (l. 16 f.), son of Śīṅgabhūpāla by his wife Annamāmbā (ll. 10-12), and is dated in the Śaka year 1343, corresponding to the cyclic year Plava (ll. 2-5). On the second tithi of the dark fortnight of the month Śrāvaṇa, Mādhava Nāyaka granted the agrahāra of Torlūri under the name of Śrīraṅgapura to the god Raṅganātha of Śrīraṅgam. Regarding the date the Honourable Diwan Bahadur Mr. L. D. Svāmikkannu Pillai writes: "The date Ś. 1343, Śrāvaṇa bahula 2 Budhavāra = Wednesday, 16th July A.D. 1421, the cyclic year Plava = Ś. 1343 (expired), on which day Śrāvaṇa bahula 2 ended at about 42 ghaṭikās after mean sunrise. There were two Śrāvaṇas in this year, and the present date fell in the first or adhik Śrāvaṇa, while the bahula 2 of nija Śrāvaṇa fell on Friday, 15th August A.D. 1421."

The name of Mādhava Nāyaka's father Śīṅgabhūpāla is known from other sources. In his report on the search for Sanskrit and Tamil manuscripts for 1896-7 the late Professor M. Śēshagiri Śāstri, M.A., while describing the Sanskrit work on Alamkāra named Rasārṇava-sudhokara, writes that "It was composed by Śīṅgabhūpāla, who was called Sarvajña on

⁴ The daṇḍa is superfluous.

⁵ Read -yāna iti.

⁶ Here follows on the plate an ornamental design, a double daṇḍa, the curved symbol sometimes representing om, and another double daṇḍa.

⁷ It forms No. 24 of Appendix A of the Assistant Superintendent of Archaeology's Annual Report for 1905-6.

"In a Vaishṇava sectarian work called Guruparamparāprabhāva Nainārāchārya, the son of Vēdānta-dēśika, is stated to have gone, as already stated, to the court of Śīngama Nāyaḍu and defeated Śākalyamalla, who was the author of the Udārārāghava, and established the Vaishṇava religion. In the commentary called Ratnapēṭikā on the Subhāshitānīvī, a didactic poem which, it is said, Vēdānta-dēśika composed in imitation of the Subhāshitatṛitātī of Bhartrihari, the author says that the poem was composed for Śīngama Nāyaḍu and, after finishing the poem, the author of the work sent it as a present to the king."

The Vēdāntadēśika-vaibhava-prakāśikā written by Chaṇḍamārutam Doḍḍayāchārya of Cholaśīngapuram asserts that Śīngama Nāyaka, the son of Mādhava, was a contemporary of Dēśika (v. 120). This fact is borne out by the very words of Dēśika; in the colophon to his Ābhāṣyasandēśa, written especially for Śārvajāna-Siriha Nāyaka, he says "to the son of Mādhava this fact was communicated by Nigamānta-Dēśika (i.e. Vēdānta-dēśika)."¹ Mādhava and his son Śīngama belonged to Rājāchala, a name which subsequently became corrupted into Rēcharla, which became the family name of the descendants of Śīngama Nāyaka. In our document the place is called Rājādri, and Mādhava Nāyaka is said to be ruling over it.

We are told in the Śrīvaishṇava chronicles that Vēdāntadēśika died in the Śaka year 1293 (A.D. 1371),² the year in which Śrīraṅgam was freed from the Muslims and the image of the god Raṅganātha was reinstated therein by Gōppanārya.³ Most likely the Mādhava Nāyaka of our record, the same as Māda of the genealogical table, was a contemporary of Nainārāchārya, the son of Vēdānta-dēśika.⁴ The subjoined inscription, however, mentions one Veṅkaṭāchārya, son of Rāmānujāchārya of the Śrīśaila-vaṇśa,⁵ as the guru of Mādhava Nāyaka. The lists of succession of the Vaḍagalai and Teṅgalai Tātāchāryas are so defective that my attempt at identifying the āchārya of Mādhava Nāyaka has proved futile.

TRANSLATION.

Salutation to the blessed Rāmānuja! Be it well!

The document (concerning) the agrahāra which was granted after one thousand followed by three hundred and forty-three of the fortunate, victorious and prosperous Śaka years had expired, on a Wednesday (corresponding to) the second tithi of the dark (fortnight of the month) Śrāvaṇa of the (cyclic) year Plava,—by Rājarāja Mādhava, your devoted slave, son of the glorious Śingabhūpāla and the full-moon (that rose out) of the sea (which was) the womb of the glorious Annamāmbā—who is the beloved disciple of Śrī Veṅkaṭāchārya, son of Śrī Rāmānujārya, the forehead ornament of the family of Śrīśaila and the devout worshipper of the lotus feet of (the god) Śrīnivāsa residing on (the hill called) Śrī Veṅkaṭagiri,—having prostrated with the eight parts of the body,⁴ to (the god) Śrī Raṅganātha, who is the glorious lord of all the universe; who is the blessed lord Nārāyaṇa; who resides between the two (branches of the river) Kāvērī⁵ and who is the master of the two vibhūtis, runs as follows :—The agrahāra of Torlūri, which has another name Śrīraṅgapura, in the country known as Rājādri has been granted along with the eight enjoyments and powers and the four boundaries,⁶ by the pouring of water, to you,—who are a friend in (times of) distress, who are like the kalpaka (tree) to supplicants, who are an ocean of mercy, who are the cause of the universe constituted by the chit and achit (or conscient and non-conscient) things,⁷ who are the enemy of all that is discardable (unworthy) and the abode of all virtues, whose brightness is equal to that of the atasī flower and who are the husband of Lakshmi,—for the daily offerings, the aṅgarāṅgabhṛḡa, (repairs to) the dilapidated temple and gōpura, for the garden and many other works. May this (village) be taken possession of (by you) and enjoyed as long as the moon and the sun (last)! In that (village) the lands (belonging to) the gods and brāhmanas shall be protected according to the previously subsisting conditions.

³ The anusvāra stands at the beginning of the next line.

⁴ The word sāṣṭāṅgam is used to denote profound obeisance.

⁵ The temple of Raṅganātha is situated on the island of Śrīraṅgam, formed by the two branches of the river Kāvērī.

⁶ Chaturśīmāsam evidently means that the boundaries of the village were clearly defined.

⁷ See Yatindra-mata-dīpikā, ch. IX.

² Read 'द्वये'.

In witness whereof (the following are cited) :—the sun, the moon, air, fire, Heaven, the earth, water, the heart, Yama, day and night, the two sandhyās (dawn and dusk) and dharma, witness a man's doings.

(The verse describing lord Rāmachandra's advice to the sovereigns about the protection of charity is next quoted.)

This is the writing of Mādhava Nāyaka.

No. 22.—TWO GRANTS OF VENKATAPATI I : SAKA 1508 AND 1535.

By LIONEL D. BARNETT.

The two records which are here published formerly belonged to the collection of Sir Walter Elliot, and were presented by him in 1887 to the British Museum, where they are now deposited in the Department of Oriental Printed Books and Manuscripts; the first of them, which I call A, bears the register-number "Indian Charters 31," and the second (B) the number "Indian Charters 29."

A.—OF ŚAKA 1508.

This document consists of five copper plates, of the shape usual at this period in the Carnatic; for examples I may refer to this journal, vol. III, p. 236, vol. IV, p. 269, and vol. XI, p. 326. It is in good preservation, and has the usual ring with seal bearing the device of a boar. The maximum height is $9\frac{1}{2}$ ", and the width is $6\frac{7}{8}$ ". The character is the peculiarly hideous Nandināgarī usual in records of this region and date; the letters are about $\frac{1}{4}$ " in height. The language, with the exception of a few Kanarese birudas, is Sanskrit, and has been already reviewed by Dr. Hultzsch in his paper on the Viḷāpāka grant (above, vol. IV, p. 269), the historical prelude of which is almost identical with that of the present record. It is in metre throughout.

The document refers itself to the reign of Venkṭapati I, Mahārāja of the Carnatic. After two introductory verses thirty-eight stanzas are devoted to the glories of his lineage and himself, on which see above, vol. IV, p. 270. We are then informed that he granted two villages to the Brāhmaṇa Kalimili Kṛishṇam-bhaṭṭa, son of Viram-bhaṭṭa and grandson of Malagam-bhaṭṭa, of the Kauśika Gōtra, the Kātyāyana Sūtra, and the śākha of the White Yajurvēda.

The poet who composed the record (or, more correctly, the part of the record subsequent to the prasaṣti), was Kṛishṇa, son of Kāmakōṭi and grandson of Sabhūpati (l. 154). The engraver was Gaṇapayāhārya, son of Virāṇa (l. 155). On these families see above, vol. III, p. 237.

The date of the grant is : the twelfth day, a mahā-tithi, in the bright fortnight of Kārttika of the Śaka year 1508, the cyclic year Vyaya. On this Mr. Robert Sewell has kindly sent me the following observations : "The date corresponds to 14 October, A.D. 1586. This was a Friday. As regards its being a mahā-tithi, I believe that technically it was not one of those days; that is to say, it was not a mahā-dvādasi in the language of the Pañchāṅgas. But Kārttika śukla 12 is always an important tithi, as it is the end of the Chāturmāsya-vrata, and is the occasion of the Prabōdhotsava festival, when the awakening of Viṣṇu is celebrated, as also his marriage to the Tulasi plant, the Tulasi-vivāha. Moreover, the forenoon marks a Manvādī day : see Kielhorn in Ind. Ant., 1897, p. 185, and Swamikannu Pillai's Indian Chronology, p. 51. Kielhorn quotes (footnote 23) an inscription in which the tithi is described as punyā utthāna-dvādasi-tithi, so I think the date may be accepted, so far as it goes. According to Swamikannu

Pillai, a Kārttika śukla 12 is a Mahā-dvādāśī when either it or the previous tithi is current on two successive sunrises. But this was not the case in this year, so it was not a Mahā-dvādāśī. But it might have been called a Mahā-tithi, for the reasons given above (ceremonial). On the other hand, I have a note that Albōrūni says that Kārttika śukla 12 was an 'unlucky' tithi.¹

A considerable amount of topographical detail is given. The villages granted are Yampēḍu, otherwise known as Venkaṭamahārāyasamudram, and Battulappalli, also styled Venkaṭēndramahārāyasamudram. From ll. 130-137 we learn that Yampēḍu lay in the Paḍa-nāḍu, and in the māgāṇī-sthāna of Guḍaliśva[ram], and that it was situate east of Vēlagampāḍu, south-east of Timmavaram, south of Inagalūr, south-west of Pōli, north-west of Gaṅgalappūṇḍi, north of Pallam, and north-east of Vāgiviḍu or Vāgaviḍu (the plate has the erroneous spelling Vāgīḍōś, l. 135). We may therefore conclude with certainty that Yampēḍu is the modern village of Empēḍu, in the Kālahasti tāluka (Zamindārī) of North Arcot District. The Indian Atlas sheet 77 (1828) shows "Impedoo"—i.e. Empēḍu—about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north of Pallam (or "Pullum," as it calls it), and places the latter in about lat. $13^{\circ} 49\frac{1}{2}'$ and long. $79^{\circ} 39'$. Vēlampāḍu, evidently the ancient Vēlagampāḍu, is in lat. $13^{\circ} 52'$, long. $79^{\circ} 37\frac{1}{2}'$. Inagalūr, Timmavaram, Pōli, Gaṅgalapūṇḍi, and Vāgaviḍu (to give them their modern names) are enumerated as adjacent villages of the same tāluka in the Lists of Towns and Villages constituting the Registration Sub-districts of North Arcot. Guḍaliśvaram is perhaps the Kuṇḍaliśvara mentioned in l. 90. As regards the second village, it may be identified with the modern Battulapalle, also in Kālahasti tāluka. We are told in ll. 137-141 that it was in the rājya of Chandragiri, and in the sīma of Vēlampāḍu (obviously a mistake for Vēlagampāḍu, i.e. Vēlagampāḍu), lying east of Kalavālpūṇḍi, south-east of Mannavaram, west of Vēlagampāḍu, and north of Yārlapūṇḍi. Now Yārlapūṇḍi, as it is now called ("Yaerlapoondy" on the old Indian Atlas), lies in about lat. $13^{\circ} 51\frac{1}{2}'$ and long. $79^{\circ} 36'$, and Mannavaram is in lat. $13^{\circ} 53'$ and long. $79^{\circ} 35'$. It is impossible on these data to identify the Kalavālpūṇḍi of l. 138 with the "Kalavālapūḍi" or "Culwulapoondy" of the maps, which is about $7\frac{1}{2}$ miles east by south-east from the modern Vēlampāḍu, whereas according to our grant it should be to the west of it; but it is possible that the author of the document made a blunder in his geography.

B.—OF ŚAKA 1535.

This record is engraved on five well preserved copper plates, similar in shape and in the character of the alphabet to A, and with a similar ring and seal. Their maximum height is 9 $\frac{1}{8}$ ", and their width 6 $\frac{7}{8}$ ". The size of the letters is about $\frac{1}{4}$ ".—The language is Sanskrit and metrical throughout. Vv. 1-38, with the exception of v. 28, are all found in A, and hence their language need not detain us; but we may note a sprinkling of Tamil words in the subsequent verses, viz. nādu, "county" (l. 103); pattu, a local group of villages (ib.); kanniru, "brook" (l. 134); kāṇi, "share in an estate" (l. 134, etc.); sanḍam (l. 134); kuḷi, i.e. kuḷi, a square foot (l. 137), besides proper names.

The document refers itself to the reign of Venkaṭapati I, and vv. 3-38 consist of a panegyric upon him and his ancestors, while the remaining verses record the grant of a village to a number of Brāhmanas (see the table on pp. 235-237). As 37 of the first 38 stanzas are contained with little variation in A, it is needless to reprint them here. Vv. 1-16 of A correspond to vv. 1-16 of B; vv. 18-22 of A to vv. 17-21 of B; vv. 24-25 of A to vv. 22-23 of B; v. 26 of A to v. 24 of B, but with the difference that B gives the names of the queens as Venkaṭāmbā, Pedōbamāmbā, Kṛishṇamāmbā, and Koṇḍamāmbā⁷; vv. 27-28 of A to vv. 25-26 of B; v. 30 of A to v. 27 of B; and vv. 31-40 of A to vv. 29-38 of B. V. 28 of B is not found in A, and is as follows: Vēṅga-tribhuvani-malla[h*] Saṁkhyā-kshiti-kal-Ārjunah | Urigōla-suratrāṇō Hari-gōcharamānasah | (ll. 77-78); on this see above, vol. IV, p. 270.

The composer of the verses subsequent to the prastuti was Chidambara-kavi, the nephew of Sivasūrya-kavi (l. 160); and the engraver was Kāmāyāchārya, son of Gaṇapaya and younger brother of Virāṇa (l. 161). On the latter's family see above, vol. III, p. 237.

The date is given as: Śaka 1535, Pramādicha, Śrāvaṇa, the twelfth of the bright fortnight, a mahā-tithi. On this Mr. Sewall has kindly sent me the following remarks: "Śaka 1535 expired was Pramādin ('Pramādicha' is a common South-Indian error in naming this year),⁸ i.e. A.D. 1613-14. The date was, so far as can be gathered, 18 July, 1613,

⁴ Metre: Śālinī.

⁵ Written in large Telugu characters.

No. 23.—VEMAVARAM GRANT OF ALLAYA-VEMA REDDI: SAKA 1356.

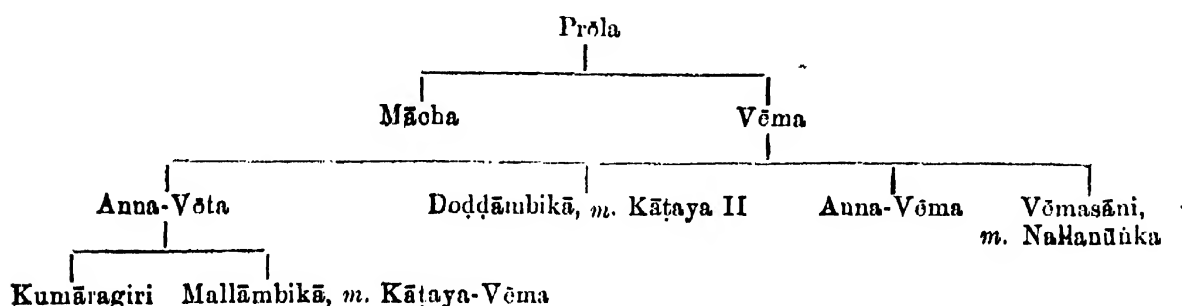

BY LIONEL D. BARNETT.

This grant was presented by Sir Walter Elliot in 1887 to the Trustees of the British Museum, where it is now preserved in the Department of Oriental Printed Books and Manuscripts, with the register-number "Indian Charters 26." A slip of paper pasted on the back, which gives an abstract of the contents and other notes, states that "it was received from Rajah-mundry. It is unknown from whom received." It comprises eight copper plates, about 9½" in width and 5½" in height; they are very well preserved, except that nos. 5 and 6 are slightly cracked on the left side. They are held together by a stout ring, which has been cut; there is no seal. They are numbered on the second face of each.—The character is good Telugu, of a type usual in the period; the letters vary between $\frac{1}{16}$ " and $\frac{1}{4}$ ".—The language is Sanskrit (all verse) in ll. 1-167; ll. 168-228 contain a prose Telugu specification of the bounds of the village granted; then comes the Sanskrit conclusion in ll. 228-237 (all verse, except a morsel of prose in ll. 228-229), with a Telugu subscription on l. 238. The Sanskrit presents no special features of interest; we may note the use of cha with omission of a second cha (l. 44), and the vā samuchchayē (l. 237). The Telugu on the other hand is quite interesting. It is a loose colloquial, and shows most of the features of orthography noticed above, vol. V, p. 54. The ara-sunna is never used; we have only the nimdu-sunna, and after the latter, when it comes after a short vowel, consonants are usually doubled in ll. 168-187. In this connection we may note the spelling of dāmkā (ll. 199, 223), kāmpulu (l. 224), māmdan (l. 193), māmdhug= (l. 186; but mōdhug= on l. 220; the modern form is mōdhuga), and rām-gānu, passim. Occasionally dh is written for d, e.g. in āyidhu (l. 184), dhari (ll. 169, 221, 226), mōmdhug= (vide supra). For the modern s we find ś in kalāśi (l. 202), galāśina (l. 227), śēnu (ll. 203, 206, 209, 212, 217, 227), besides occasional mistakes such as śīma (l. 168). A consonant following an r is usually doubled in ll. 168-187. Initial u alternates with vu; e.g. chīmta nunnadi, l. 196, by chīmta vunnadi, l. 193. Final sunna alternates with -mu and -nu: e.g. bolamu-lōpalamu, l. 183, beside bolam-l, l. 178, and -gām, l. 202, beside -gānu elsewhere. There is elision of a in nam-gān(u) in ll. 183, 189, beside anām-gānu on ll. 175, 178. Of some lexical interest are: gova, l. 189 (? connected with Tamil kōvai), gunḍāmu, l. 223 (i.e. gunḍamu=pit?), kaḍamu, ll. 207 f., 220 ("kidumbu-tree"?), kalayu and galayu, ll. 202, 207 ("join"?), kinamu, l. 214 ("threshing-floor"?), kapa, l. 194 (a kind of tree), kōḷa, ll. 207 f. ("clump"), pāḍe, ll. 175, 178, 183, 189 (apparently=Kanar. pāḍe, "waste land").

The record refers itself to the reign of Allaya-Vēma Redḍi (i.e. Vēma, the son of Allaya) of Rājahmundry, and adds a little to the sum of information derived from the grants and inscriptions of this dynasty and of the parent house of Koṇḍaviḍu (see E. I. above, vol. III, pp. 59, 286; vol. IV, pp. 318, 328-330; vol. V, p. 53; vol. VIII, p. 9; vol. XI, p. 313). It opens with addresses to Viṣṇu in his Boar-incarnation (v. 1), to Gaṇeśa (v. 2), and to Śiva's crescent (v. 3), and goes on to glorify the donor's ancestry. There was a famous Śūdra family styled the Paṇṭa-kula (v. 4), in which was born the generous and glorious king Doḍḍa, of the Polvōla gōtra (v. 5). His sons were Anna-Vrōla, Kōṭaya, and Allaya, or Allāḍa (v. 6). Though the youngest, Allaya was the most important (v. 7). He conquered Alpakhāna, made an alliance with the Gajapati who was the lord of Karṇāṭa, defeated Kōmaṣi Vēma at Rāmēśvaram, and established a powerful kingdom (v. 8). His queen was Vēmāmbikā, daughter of the Chōḍa king Bhīma (v. 9); and their offspring were Vēma, Virabhadra (or Vira), Doḍḍa, and Anna (v. 10). Vēma and Vira were very glorious (vv. 11, 12), and established their capital at Rājahmundry (v. 13). Vēma's reign is most brilliant (vv. 14-16): he has remitted taxes on the estates of gods and Brāhmanas, performed many gō-sahasra ceremonies in Dākshārāma, conquered the kings of the Sapta-māḍiya, overrun Kaliṅga, and set up columns of victory at Simhādri and Purushōttama (v. 17); he inspires terror in neighbouring kingdoms (v. 18). He has given a bell weighing 12,000 palikās to the temple of the god Mārkaṇḍēyēśvara (Śiva), who has established him in his sovereignty (vv. 19, 20). His brother Vira is also very glorious (v. 21). Vēma has married Hariharāmbā, a daughter of Kāṭaya, the son of the elder Kāṭaya's son Vēma; her mother was a daughter of Harihara, the lord of the Four Oceans (v. 22). Vira has married Anitalli, daughter of the elder Kāṭaya's son Vēma (v. 23). Then begin the details of the grant, by which the village of Allāḍa-Redḍi-Vēmavaram was founded by the fusion of two villages, Vedurupāka and Pinamahēndrāḍa (vv. 24-30), and granted to a number of Brāhmanas who are specified (vv. 31-114). The bounds of the estate are then specified in Telugu (ll. 168-228). After four commonitory verses (ll. 228-234), we learn that the composer was Sarasvatī-bhaṭṭa, of the Śrīvatsa gōtra (ll. 234-236).

Most of the above historical data have already been discussed in this journal; but some of them may be recalled here. As regards the internal relations of the Redḍi family, we find (see above, vol. IV, p. 319 ff.) that Vēma, son of Prōla, of Koṇḍaviḍu, was the father of Anna-Vōta, Doḍḍāmbikā, Anna-Vēma, and Vēmasāni. Anna-Vōta is mentioned in our record as having made a certain grant of land (l. 163). Doḍḍāmbikā married Kāṭaya II. Vēmasāni, who married Nallanūnka, and for whose spiritual benefit her brother Anna-Vēma granted the village of Naḍupūru in Śaka 1296 (see above, vol. III, p. 286 ff.), is probably the Vēmasānakka after whom the village of Doḍḍavaram, so frequently mentioned in our record (l. 168, etc.), received its name. Anna-Vōta had a son, Kumārāgiri, in whose reign the Rājahmundry branch of the family set itself up under Vēma, son of Kāṭaya, and a daughter, Mallāmbikā, who married Kāṭaya-Vēma, the son of Kāṭaya II and her aunt Doḍḍāmbikā. Kōmaṭi Vēma, who is said in v. 8 of our record to have been defeated by Allaya of Rājahmundry, is apparently Peda Kōmaṭi Vēma, the successor of Kumārāgiri and grandson of Vēma's elder brother Mācha (Śaka 1310-37; see above, vol. VIII, p. 13).

We may take other references seriatim. Alpakhāna seems to be Alp Khān, better known as Hōshang Ghōrī, who succeeded his father Dilāwar Khān in 1405 as Sultān of Mālwa, and reigned until 1434.¹ The "kings of the Sapta-māḍiya" have not yet been identified; see above, vol. V, pp. 55, 56, n. 1.² The temple of Mārkaṇḍēyēśvara is in Rājahmundry, and seems to have been specially patronised by the Redḍi family of that town (cf. Sewell, List of Antiquarian Remains in the Presidency of Madras, vol. I, p. 22). Harihara, the "lord of the Four Oceans," is probably Harihara I of Vijayanagar.

The details of the date are: Śaka 1356; the cyclic year Ānanda; the darśa-tithi, or lunar day on which the new moon was first visible, of Jyaisṭha; Monday; an eclipse of the sun. Mr. R. Sewell has kindly examined these data for me, and informs me that they work out to Monday, 7 June, A.D. 1434, when there was an important total eclipse of the sun, recorded in Schram's Table A of the Indian Calendar, p. 124.

The geographical references in our record are many. The first point calling for notice is the location of the village conveyed by it, Allāḍa-Redḍi-Vēmavaram, or more briefly Vēmavaram, which had been created by uniting Voduṛupāka and Pinamahēndrāḍa (v. 25). The name Vēmavaram is quite common; but of this particular village no trace survives on any record. Nevertheless we can locate it fairly closely, chiefly by reference to the Tulyabhagū (°bhāga in Telugu), on the southern bank of which it was situated (l. 163, etc.) and by the statement in v. 30 that it was situated between Sapta-Godāvara and Tulyabhagū the former of which is a tank at Drākshārāma. Now the Tulyabhāgā is one of the main channels leading off from the lower Gōdāvarī. According to H. Morris, A Descriptive and Historical Account of the Godavery District (1878), p. 142, it "seems to have been originally a natural hollow, of which advantage was taken to form the bed of an irrigating channel by cutting a head to it from the river, and throwing earthen banks across it at various places to raise the water to the necessary height for commanding the adjacent country. It led off from the intended main feeder about a mile below the head-sluice [of the great dam of the Gōdāvarī], and conveyed water to the Kāpavaram, Bikkavōlu, and Rāmachandrapuram taluks, terminating in the salt-water creek which flows in from the sea near Cocanada." The map appended to the Account shows that it leads off from the Gōdāvarī a short distance south of Daulēśvaram ("Dowlaisweram" of the old maps), and runs more or less eastwards until it comes a little to the east of Anaparti, from which it proceeds E.S.E. Hence we know that Vēmavaram must have lain in the Rāmachandrapuram taluka of the Gōdāvarī District; and here we can trace some of the villages mentioned in our record as adjoining it. Pasulapūṇi (l. 201) is Pasalapūṇi, 2 miles W.N.W. of the town of Rāmachandrapuram; Sōmēśvaram (l. 203) is some 4 miles N.W. from the same; Pēmdalapāka (ll. 224, 228), now Pandalapāka, is about 3 miles S.W. from Bikkavōlu. Hence we may infer with tolerable certainty that Vēmavaram lay a few miles N. or N.N.W. from Rāmachandrapuram town. It is possible, to say the least, that soon after its foundation it dissolved back into the two elements of which it was composed; for there still exists a village of Vedurupāka some 4½ miles N.N.W. from Rāmachandrapuram, and some 8 miles N.W. from the same town is the village of Mahēndravāḍa, which seems to be connected with the Pinamahēndrāḍa of our record. Of the other places recorded as adjoining Vēmavaram—Vēmasānakka-Doḍḍavaram (l. 168, etc.), Vēlchūru (l. 191 f.), Tallavaram (ll. 191, 196, 199), Tollimṭi (l. 177), Nolla (ll. 206, 209), and Ana-Prōlā-Redḍi-Komara-giripuram (ll. 211 f., 214)—I can find no trace.

¹ See S. Lane Poole, British Museum Coin Catalogues: Muhammadan States, 114, intr. liii.; Elliot, History of India, vol. IV, pp. 41, 60, 79, etc. An inscription of Samvat 1481, Śaka 1346, in Journ. As. Soc. Bengal, vol. 52, pt. 1, p. 70 ff., speaks of a Ghōrī prince Alammaka (so the text) or Alambhaka (so the editor) as reigning in Maṇḍapapura, i.e. Māṇḍu; perhaps he is the same person, but the reading there needs scrutiny.

² The etymology there suggested does not convince me; I incline to think that the phrase means "Seven Realms" (cf. Telugu māḍemu).

V. 8 mentions Rāmēśvaram as the site of a battle between Allaya and Kōmaṭi Vōma: this is perhaps Rāmēśvaram in the Gōdāvarī District. In v. 17 we are told that Vōma performed many gṇ-sahasra rites in Dākshārāma: this is the correct spelling for the name now pronounced Drākshārāma¹ ("Dracharam" in the old maps), a well-known place lying 4 miles S.S.E. from Rāmachandrapuram town (see Ind. Ant., vol. XIX, p. 424, and Sewell's List of the Antiquarian Remains in the Presidency of Madras, vol. I, p. 25). Simhādri (v. 17) is usually known as Simhāchalām; it is a hill in the District and Tahsil of Vizagapatam, where there is a famous temple dedicated to the lion-incarnation of Vishṇu. Purushōttama (ib.) is Purī in Orissa.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) Abounding fortune may Fortune's Lord constantly create for you—he who, bearing in sport the Boar-form and skilful in salvation of all worlds, as he affectionately uplifted the love-moist Earth to make her his peculiar mistress, became horripilant, his hair standing erect because of his delight in embracing her.

(V. 2.) May that light Elephant-faced, the cause of all birth, bring you welfare—(the face), the festoon of murmuring bees on the cheeks whereof appears with a splendour like that of a string of sapphires.

(V. 3.) I perceive the young moon-digit of the Digits' Lord [the Moon], the form of which is variegated by spots; his diadem moist with the nectar oozing from the hollow whereof, Śiva though drinking the poison became the Conqueror of Death.

(V. 4.) There was an Ancient of Days, renowned in greatness; from his mouth, arms, thighs, and feet in order arose the castes, beginning with the Brāhmanas. Among the races of his lotus-feet the Paṇṭa tribe became renowned in the world.

(V. 5.) In it there was an illustrious ornament of monarchs, honoured by the good, exalted, bountiful, king Doḍḍa, a doer of good works, pre-eminent in the Polvōla Gōtra; outdone by whose judicious largesses, the Kalpa-tree, keeping a vow of silence and wearing robes of bark, devoutly (and) reverently worships the company of the gods, in order to become equal (to him).

³ Delete the second la.

⁴ Metre: Trisṭubh Upajāti, pādas 1 and 4 being Indravajrā and 2-3 Upēndravajrā.

⁵ After the first daṇḍa is a star-like symbol, with another daṇḍa; after śri is a rosette.

⁶ This line is in large characters.

(V. 6.) The fortunate prince Anna-Vrōla, Kōṭaya, and Alla, lords of earth, were the sons born to him, who were in truthfulness, noble spirit, and victory equal of character to Dharma's son [Yudhishtira], Bhīma, and Arjuna.

(V. 7.) The youngest of them by birth but the senior in virtues, king Alla, though a very moon, did not become dōshākura [a moon, or a mine of faults]; though saumya [gracious, or a Budha], he became a bhū-nandana [a gladdener of earth, or a Bhauma].

(V. 8.) Conquering in battle Alpakhāna, whose hosts were disposed in manifold divisions, and making friendship with the Gajapati, the lord of the Karṇāṭa, who came to meet him, defeating again Kōmati Vēma's host of warriors at Rāmēśvaram, king Allāḍa ruled the country of Rājamahēndra.

(V. 9.) As Śachi was the wife of Śakra, Śivā [Pārvati] of Śambhu, Padmā of the Lotus-eyed [Vishṇu], so Vēmāmbikā, daughter of king Bhīma, moon of the Chōḍā race, was the honoured wife of this [Allāḍa].

(V. 10.) The fortunate king Vēma, the monarch Virabhadra, the sovereign Doḍḍa, and the king Anna, princes like Paṅktirātha's sons, were born of her to Allāḍa, who was a very Vishṇu.

(V. 11.) The monarch Vēma and king Vīra became far the most eminent of these, as the two famous sons of Paṅktirātha, Rāghava and Lakshmaṇa, excelled in virtues.

(V. 12.) These two, whose faces were as fresh lotuses, were renowned, excelling all kings: protectors of the good, pleasant as sun and moon, peer to Rāma and Saumitri, victorious in the forefront of battle, gallants to the mistresses of kings.

(V. 13.) For these two kings arose a capital city named Rājamahēndra, delightful with damsels, filled with many elephants and horses, having palaces bright with a radiance equal to that of the moon.

(V. 14.) Exalting holy laws, humbling foes, increasing the fortune of the realm, suppressing sin, gratifying the population, supporting the learned, making his glory travel through the regions of space, a refuge for all monarchs, the lord Vēma dwells in state as king in the city of Rājamahēndram.

(V. 15.) Bestowing great Brāhmanic settlements (measured by) many gō-charmas, prudent, worshipping Pārvati's Lord six times (a day), Allaya's (son) king Vēma is always performing the largesses of Hēmādri.²

(V. 16.) A kul-āchala,³ a most excellent bhōgi, a husband of Earth, unailing, an abode of the goddess of bounty, forming a foundation of the universe, with his arm Allaya's (son) king Vēma holds the earth;

(V. 17.) Who remitted tax-money, which is hard to surrender, in the demesnes of gods and Brāhman; who performed in the lands of Dāksharāma gō-sahasra rites of abundant wealth; who, conquering the valiant kings of Sapta-māḍiya, and marching over the land of Kalīṅga, in magnificent fashion set up at Simhādri (and) Purushōttama pillars of his valiant conquest.

(V. 18.) By the flames of the intense heat [or, majesty] of king Allāḍa's (son) king Vēma whole rocks are broken to powder, the hogs bellow, the tender sprouts wither, the fish-tribe hide in the water, the snakes enter their holes, the cobras lurk in covert, the cattle go with grass in their mouths, the lord of elephants enters the river.¹

³ This and the following epithets are double-edged in order to compare Vēma to Vishṇu. Kul-āchala means both "a central mountain" (in firmness) and "motionless in his home" (as Vishṇu is during the yōga-nidrā); bhōgi-vara is "an excellent enjoyer of pleasure" and "encompassed by the snake" (Śēsha); dhavītri-dāra and dana-ramā-nivāsa are titles applicable both to a king and to Vishṇu; and Achya is a common name for Vishṇu.

(V. 19.) Allaya's (son) Vēma gave to (the god) Mārkaṇḍēyēśvara a choice bell without peer, made of good bell-metal, containing twelve thousand palikās.

(V. 20.) "Vighṇēśa [Gaṇapati] is affected with mada [rutting ichor, or passion]; Skanda again is bahu-mukha [many-faced, or deceitful]; this Bhairava forsooth is unclothed, shameless": thus reflecting upon his sons' condition, Mārkaṇḍēya-Mahēśvara appoints as monarch of the earth the lord Vēma, who is faultless, a votary of his, lofty of mind, heroic, devoted to the worship of Śiva.

(V. 21.) King Vīra, the younger brother of this [Vēma], as Dhanañjaya [Arjuna] was the younger brother of Dharma's son [Yudhisṭhira], is a magnificent monarch, bountiful, enjoying (the world's delights), brilliant in majesty, a Bhīma in battle, a warrior unique in the world.

(V. 22.) Alla got king Vēma wedded to the daughter of a son of Kāṭaya's (son) king Vēmaya, the daughter of prince Kāṭa, the daughter's daughter of king Harīhara who ruled the four oceans,—the fair lady bearing the latter's name, Hariharāmbā, together with the Fortune of his kingdom.

(V. 23.) King Alla's (son) lord Vīra wedded a daughter of Kāṭaya's (son) king Vēma, renowned under the name of Anitalli, as the Lotus-eyed [Viṣṇu] wedded Kamalā.

(V. 24.) King Vēma deigned to grant to Brāhmanas an excellent fief, fully supplied with food, on the bank of the Tulyabhāgā.

(V. 25.) Making the two villages of Vedurupāka and Pinamahēndrāḍa into one, and calling it after his own name Allāḍa-Roḍḍi-Vēmavaram, king Vēma—

(V. 26.) In the fortunate Śaka (year) measured by "flavours" [six], "elements" [five] and "Viśvas" [thirteen], in the cyclic year Ānanda, on the lunar day when the new moon of Jyāishṭha was first seen, a Monday, during a holy eclipse of the sun, Allaya's (son) king Vēma joyfully bestowed on the excellent Brāhmanas this village on the bank of the Tulyabhāgā, abounding in crops, most brilliant;

(V. 27.) Having groves of cocoanut-palms, areca-trees, jack-trees, mangoes, and plantain, laden with fruit; full of all crops, such as white rice, sugar-cane, paddy, sesam, chick-pea, and kidney-bean;

(V. 28.) Together with the cultivators, with the (rights of) enjoyment, with the eight powers,² with pleasant fruit-trees, enduring for as long as the moon and sun, associated with abundant money, grain, and fees;

(V. 29.) Which like the ocean is maintained by great sages with voices like cuckoos, who recite in one part logic, in another part Tantra, in one place Vēdānta, in another grammar.

(V. 30.) May the Brāhmaṇa village (agrahāra) between the blest Sapta-Gōḍāvara and the Tulyabhāgā, the pious foundation of king Vēma, prosper with its splendid crops for as long as the moon, as the stars, as the sun.

(V. 31.) The Brāhmanas brilliant in virtues who hold shares (in it) are here enumerated; all those in whose case the number of their shares is not mentioned are holders of one share each.

¹ Under the figure of a forest-fire is described the effect of Vēma's pratāpa (heat, or majesty) upon neighbouring peoples. The "hogs" are perhaps the dynasty of Vijayanagar, who maintained the Chālukyas' device of a bear; the "tender sprouts" are the Pallavas; the "fish-tribe" are the Pāṇḍyas, whose device was a pair of fishes, or perhaps the Mataya dynasty (see above, vol. V, p. 107). The "lord of elephants" (gaṇanām patiḥ) is of course the Gaṇapati of Orissa. The other "topical allusions" are obscure to me. On the custom of taking grass into the mouth as a token of submission see R. Pischel, Ins Gras beißen (Sitzungsberichte d. kgl. preuss. Akad. d. Wissenschaften, 1908, XXIII, p. 445 ff.).

(V. 113.) The pair of Īsvara (Śiva) (deities) residing in the main village and in the village attached to it for supplies¹ shall have one share, according to the order of the fields.

(V. 114.) Likewise in these two villages the blessed Janārdana and Gopa, the two glorious Viṣṇu (deities), shall have one share; and Mailāra² shall have a quarter (of a share).

(V. 115.) The bounds of this village in all directions are written down in order in the vernacular tongue, for the proper information of all men.

(Lines 168-179.) Ōm!³ The meeting-points of the terminal bounds of the lands of Allāḍ-Redḍi-Vēmaṣānakkā and Vēmaṣānakkā-Doḍḍavaram:—starting at the southern bank of the Tulyabhāga, the path of the field of the Pūrva-maṇḍulu between the lands of the two villages goes towards the south. East of this path is the land of Vēmaṣānakkā-Doḍḍavaram; west of this path is the land of Allāḍ-Redḍi-Vēmaṣānakkā. As this path proceeds towards the south, there is then a tamarind-tree; a path going to the east of this tamarind-tree, north of a path near this path, south of the path of Vēmaṣānakkā-Doḍḍavaram—this path going towards the east, there is within the land of Vēmaṣānakkā-Doḍḍavaram a tank named Channu-pāḍe.⁴ From the neighbourhood of this tank, east of this path, west of the path of the land of Vēmaṣānakkā-Doḍḍavaram, is the land of Allāḍ-Redḍi-Vēmaṣānakkā. This path is the path of the field of Tollimṭi.⁵ This path going southwards, within the land of Allāḍ-Redḍi-Vēmaṣānakkā (there is) a waste land called Iṅuvavāri-pāḍe⁶; this waste land begins. This is the northern terminal bound of the land of Allāḍ-Redḍi-Vēmaṣānakkā.

(Lines 179-201.) From the southern side of this Iṅuvavāri-pāḍe, on that bank, is an embankment with brushwood.⁷ This embankment goes towards the east. In this neighbourhood, north of the embankment, south of the land of Vēmaṣānakkā-Doḍḍavaram, as one comes to the east of the . . . of this embankment, within the land of Vēmaṣānakkā-Doḍḍavaram, there is a dale called Nimma-guṇṭa-pāḍe.⁸ From the neighbourhood of this dale this embankment, making a curve, goes northward for the length of five *bāralu*⁹; then the embankment again goes eastward. When the embankment in this neighbourhood has gone eastward, there is then on this embankment, in the north-east part of the land of Vēmaṣānakkā, a *mrōḍugu*¹⁰ with withered branches. Thereupon the embankment, after coming towards the south, next goes towards the east for the length of two bāralu. Then there is in the land of Doḍḍavaram a waste ground called Pāmula-pāḍe¹¹ close by. The path of the field of the Pūrva-maṇḍulu, taking as its boundary the gōva on the west of this waste ground, and coming between (the lands) of Vēmaṣānakkā and Doḍḍavaram, goes towards the south. As it goes on, there begins the path of the fields of Vēlchūru and Tallavaram. This path, on coming between the lands of the two villages of Vēmaṣānakkā and Vēlchūru, goes towards the south. On the

⁴ Meaning: "Fair Waste"?

⁶ Meaning: "The Waste of the Neighbours."

⁷ Or brushwood. Mr. R. W. Frazer, to whom I am indebted for several suggestions in the translation of this Telugu section, reminds me that "poḍa is used for weeds, shrubs, etc., and generally, with reference to waste land, bunds, and embankments, to the long coarse croton plant, which is a terrible nuisance."

⁸ Meaning: "Lime-tree Pond Waste."

south it comes to the top of a bed of rushes ; then close by the path in the land of Vēmavaram there is a kapa-tree. The path goes towards the south-west ; then it goes towards the south. Close by this path, in the land of Tallavaram, there is a tamarind-tree ; going from the west of this tamarind-tree towards the south-west, there is in the land of Vēmavaram, close by the path, a tamarind-tree. Then it goes south along the south-east (side) of Vēmavaram. On coming from the south-east side to (a region) between the lands of the two villages of Tallavaram and Vēmavaram, it goes towards the west. All this is the eastern bound of Vēmavaram.

(Lines 201-207.) This path going towards the west, there begins the path of the field between Pasulapūṇi and Vēmavaram ; (this path) running along (?), passing between the two villages, (and) going towards the west, (there is) a meadow containing the terminal path of the land of Sōmēśvaram. (The path) having passed from the midst of the land of Sōmēśvaram to the midst of the land of Vēmavaram, (and) having gone for the length of four bāralu northwards, and having thereupon passed westward between the two villages, (there is) a meadow containing the path of the field of Nolla, on the south-west side of the land of Vēmavaram. This is the southern bound of Vēmavaram.

(Lines 207-213.) After this, going northwards, (there is) a meadow containing a clump of kaḍamulu.¹ The path going northward from the clump of kaḍamulu, (there is) a meadow containing the field of the village attached for furnishing supplies² to Vēmavaram. The field-path, passing westward between the boundaries of the land of the village attached for furnishing supplies and of Nolla, goes westward. Then there are two poplar-leaved fig-trees.³ After this, the path going westward, (there is) a meadow containing the path of the field of the village attached for furnishing supplies to Ana-Prōlā-Redḍi-Komaragiripuram, on the south-west side of the two villages. After this the path goes northward.

(Lines 214-220.) As it comes northward, there is a kanam.⁴ As it proceeds in the same way, there is within the land of Komaragiripuram, close by the path, a mango-tree and a poplar-leaved fig-tree. From this neighbourhood the path stopping, there is an embankment (covered) with withered brushwood ; it goes northward. Then (passing) in a curve eastward, it goes through the width of a meadow (needing for its sowing) five bushels. After this, as it comes northward, there is a field-path. This path, after going northward for two bāralu, (and) thereupon going eastward, the Tulyabhāga begins. Then there are a bush of mrōḍugu and three kaḍamulu.⁵ (This is) the terminal bound of the land on the north-east.

(Lines 220-228.) After this, taking for its limit the western bank of the Tulyabhāga, it goes southward, half belonging to the residents on the further side of the Tulyabhāga and half to these on the higher side. Then it goes southward, along a guṇḍāmu near the village attached for furnishing supplies. This guṇḍāmu on the Tulyabhāga belongs to Vēmavaram, the residents of the villages of Peṇḍalapāka say. After this it goes eastward along the Tulyabhāga. Taking as its limit the southern bank of the Tulyabhāga in the terminal bound of the land of Vēmavaram (and) going eastward, (and) coming between the two villages of Dodḍavaram and Vēmavaram, (there is) a meadow containing a field-path running along the Tulyabhāga. Between Vēmavaram and Peṇḍalapāka the Tulyabhāga is the bound.

NO. 24.—AKKALAPUNDI GRANT OF SINGAYA-NAYAKA: SAKA-SAMVAT 1290.

By K. RAMA SASTRI, B.A., BANGALORE.

The copper-plates which record the subjoined grant were forwarded to the Assistant Archaeological Superintendent for Epigraphy, Southern Circle, Madras, by the Collector of Godavari in the year 1913 and have been registered by him as No. 2 of Appendix A in the Epigraphical Report for 1912-13, p. 13. They are four in number and bear writing on both sides, the last being engraved on its inner side only. The plates measure 10½" by 5½", and on the proper right side of each is bored a hole ½" in diameter, through which is passed a plain ring, which had been cut before the plates were received in the Epigraphist's office. The first three of them are numbered with the Telugu numerals 1, 2, 3, on their second sides, just above the ring-hole. The diameter of the ring is nearly 4" and its thickness about ¾". The weight of the plates with ring is approximately 228 talas.

The inscription, written in the Telugu alphabet, is in a state of perfect preservation with the exception of a few syllables in the beginning of line 48. The language is Sanskrit (verses 1 to 72 numbered with the Telugu numerals throughout excepting the last two), in which we see much of the artificial imagery and word-painting of the later-day Sanskrit authors with little consideration for the depth of meaning and the correct use of words. Among orthographical and palæographical peculiarities may be noted first that the initial vowel ri is written in ll. 79 and 99 as ru, that initial au in l. 2 is written as jan and that the superadded au in the case of the consonants yan (ll. 22 and 92) and man (ll. 27, 40, 53) is represented by the signs for ē and au, both affixed to the letter. Consonants are doubled, in the majority of cases, after the secondary form of r, and after the anuvāda; the rough r called śakṛta-rōpha in Telugu has been used in the words Cheṅṅara, Kuraviṭa, Kōrukoṇḍa and Kāṅkṛavāḍa and has an almost vertical top-stroke attached to it. The letter tha is distinguished from dha by an additional dot made in the centre of the former (ll. 8, 10 and 65). The distinction, however, is not kept up throughout; for dh is written for th in ll. 23, 29, 32, 37, 42, etc., where it occurs as a subscript letter, and in ll. 45, 49, 50, 53, 63, 73, 76, 79, 96, where it occurs as the chief letter; and dhdh appears for thth (correctly tth), in ll. 19, 22, 92 and 98. The aspiration of bh is represented by the usual talakaṭṭu; and where the latter cannot occur, it is marked by a symbol like an inverted cup, inserted at the right bottom of the letter (ll. 3, 4, 5, 20, 21, etc.). This same form of aspiration is also adopted in the case of qha in ll. 22, 49, and pha in ll. 28, 34, 38. It might be noted that, when bha is lengthened out into bhā, its aspiration is not marked by the inverted cup, but is indicated by the angle which the ā sign makes with the left prong of the talakaṭṭu. In the case of the unaspirated bā we do not find this angle.² The conjunct consonant dth is always written as dhdh, though the letters d and dh themselves are distinguished, the first having an opening on the right side, which the second has not. To avoid a large number of foot-notes I have throughout adopted the correct form ddh. Chhohha is written for chchha in ll. 30 and 50. Double lingual ṇa is written as ṇna in l. 23. Peculiarities due to pronunciation may be noted in the words Nṛisinhya and Dēvayāmhvaya which occur in ll. 86 and 68 respectively.

After invocations addressed to the boar-incarnation of Vishṇu, Vināyaka and the moon, we are informed in vv. 5-7 that the fourth (i.e., Śūdra) caste, born from the feet of the Supreme Being along with the river Ganges, is purer on that very account than the first three twice-born castes, and that the members born in it are highly virtuous, pure-minded and greatly helpful to the ruling classes. This prosperous condition and the willing co-operation of the Śūdras reflect a state of society when caste disputes, as those of the present day, had not assumed such dimensions as to disintegrate the constituent parts of the Hindu community. In the cycle of ages came Kali-yuga, in which, according to v. 9, there were hopeful signs of progress, inasmuch as the different castes and stages (of men) did not deviate from the prescribed law, the Vēdas were widely read with their component parts, and religious sacrifices were not performed in vain. In the Trilinga country was a Śūdra ruler by name Kēśava-nāyaka, who was born of the Mañchikonda family (vv. 10 to 12). His son was Gaṇapati-nāyaka (v. 13), and his son Kūna-bhūpāla (v. 15). Kūnaya's eldest son was Mummaḍindra (v. 18), also called Kūnaya-Mummaḍi-nāyaka (v. 19) and Mummaḍi-nāyaka (v. 20), who was evidently a powerful chief. He ruled over the fertile (v. 24) districts of Cheṅgara, Kuṛavāṭa, Kōṇa and Vāṇāra included between the two well-known branches of the river Gōdāvara (Gōdāvari) (v. 22). Mummaḍi-nāyaka married a niece of Kapaya-nāyaka, the celebrated 'Sultān of the Āndhra country' (v. 25), and ruled at Kōrukonda (v. 27), which is now a flourishing village ten miles north of Rajahmundry. His two younger brothers, Śīṅgaya-nāyaka and Gaṇnaya-nāyaka, (v. 29), as subordinates of their elder brother Mummaḍindra, ruled at Kōṭipuri and Tāḍipāka respectively (v. 31). The former of the two brothers, also called king Śīṅga and Kūnaya-Śīṅga, is the donor of the present grant and is highly eulogised in vv. 32 to 39. His capital Kōṭipuri, also called Mummaḍi-viḍu, evidently after his elder brother Mummaḍi-nāyaka, was situated on the bank of the river Pampā and contained within it the temple of Rāmanāthēśvara (v. 33). Vv. 40-51 describe a family of physicians—of whom three generations are given. Parahitāchārya, the donee of the present grant, was a great favourite of king Kūnaya-Śīṅga, who, it is stated, lavishly bestowed presents on him (v. 52). In the Śaka year 1290 (expressed by numerical words), in the month Śrāvana, on the occasion of an auspicious solar eclipse, Śīṅgaya-nāyaka granted to the virtuous Parahitāchārya, in the presence of god Rīṇamukti-nātha, the village of Akkalapūṇḍi, changing its name into Mummaḍi-Śīṅgavaram. Parahitāchārya, retaining half of the village for himself, bestowed the other half upon ten Brāhmaṇas of the Yajur-vēda (vv. 53 and 54). Then follows a description of the boundary line of the village of Akkalapūṇḍi, in which, as usual, thickets of shrubs, ant-hills, ditches, trees and ponds are mentioned (vv. 62-70). The composer of the record was Kāma-dēva (v. 71). At the end of the inscription are added the signatures, in their own hand, of Śīṅgā-nāyaḍu and Mummaḍi-nāyaḍu, followed by the conventional figure of a lion, which represents perhaps the crest adopted by this Nāyaka family.

The period to which these copper-plates belong is one in which little is known about the history of the Telugu country. The fact that there existed, at this time, an independent family of chiefs quite close to Rajahmundry, with their power extending over the whole of the Gōdāvari delta, is of extreme importance. At Kōrukonda, the capital of these chiefs, has been discovered a long pillar-inscription, whose contents have been noted in the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1911-12. From this, as also from the subjoined record, we learn that Mummaḍi-nāyaka was practically the first chief of the family who rose to importance, perhaps by virtue of his close connection with Kāpaya-nāyaka, the Sultān of the Āndhra country. Mr. H. Krishna Sastri has shown that this Kāpaya-nāyaka is identical with Kāpaya, the son of Prōlaya, referred to in a copper-plate grant recently published by Mr. J. Ramayya Pantulu in the Journal of the Telugu Academy.¹ In this latter it is stated of Kāpaya-nāyaka that he 'rescued the Āndhra country from the ravages of the Muhammadans, immediately after the death of the Kākatiya king Pratāparudra.'

Mummaḍi was a staunch Śrī-Vaiṣṇava, as we have to infer from the contents of the Kōru-koṇḍa pillar-inscription. This fact is also established by a set of copper-plates² discovered some years ago at Śrīraṅgam, in which Parāśara-Bhaṭṭa, one of the Śrī-Vaiṣṇava teachers, is stated to have extended his influence into the Telugu country, to have made Mummaḍi-nāyaka his pupil, to have settled down at Kōrukoṇḍa and to have, by his highly religious life, influenced the people to believe that even after his death, he would appear on the hill of that village as the god Nṛsiṃha. The brother of Mummaḍi-nāyaka, who is the donor of our present grant, was evidently a patron of learning and fine arts; for in v. 39 he is stated to have been enjoying life in company of women accomplished in singing, dancing and playing on the lute. On Parahitāchārya—who was a master of the Yajur-vēda and Āyur-vēda (medical science) and taught these to his students,³ Śingaya conferred numerous gifts. This aspect of patronising learning was quite characteristic of the times, and much of the existing valuable Telugu literature owes its origin to such encouragement offered by the aristocratic families ruling over small estates. It is suggested that this Śingaya-nāyaka may be the same as Sarvajña Śinga for whom some fine religious poems were composed by the celebrated Śrī-Vaiṣṇava reformer Vēdānta-dēśika.

Of the places mentioned in the inscription Kōna is still the name of the fertile country enclosed between the two chief branches of the Gōdāvarī. Kōṭipuri is Kōṭipalli, a place of pilgrimage on the bank of the river Vṛiddha-Gautamī. Akkalapūṇḍi, surnamed Mummaḍi-Śingavaram, is perhaps represented by the modern Śingavaram in the Rajahmundry taluk. Tāḍipāka, in which was settled another brother of Mummaḍi-nāyaka, has perhaps to be looked for in the northern part of Mummaḍi's dominions. Perhaps it is the present Tāḍipāka, included in the Pōlavaram Zamindari. I am unable to identify the two villages Kāṅkaravāḍa and Bōdalāva, incidentally mentioned in the description of the boundary line of Akkalapūṇḍi. The river Pampā, which passed by the side of Kōṭipuri, must have been a stream of only local importance, flowing into the Vṛiddha-Gautamī.

TRANSLATION.

(Line 1.) May there be no obstacles !

(Verse 1.) May the White Boar grant (us) perpetual prosperity, who in the dark home of the nether world gently shook in secret with his tusk the lip of the (godless) Earth, being unnerved by excitement at the coming pleasure of carrying (her).

(V. 2.) I praise that lustre which, though elephant-faced (dviradānana), has still only one tusk on its face (a-dvirad-ānana)¹ (and) is highly praised by the six-headed (Subrahmanya), the five-headed (Śiva), the four-faced (Brahmā) and other (gods).

(V. 3.) Resplendent is that bright digit of the cool-rayed (moon), which the celestial nymphs as tender as the sprouts (of a young plant) eagerly grasp at the close of (their) repeated amorous sports, and delightfully wrap it round (their) ears (and) wrists.

(V. 4.) The (setting) sun (in his evening glory) appears as if (he is) attempting to make a beautiful (forehead-mark of red) saffron (kāsmīra), (consisting) of (his) deep love (or redness) on the lotus-face of the lady (viz.) the region of the west; and this rising moon is besmearing, as ~~it~~ were, the creeper-like body of the noble damsel, the region of the east, with sandal in the form of (white) moonlight.²

(V. 5.) The three castes, (viz.) the Brāhmanas and the next (Kshatriyas and Vaiśyas), were produced from the face, the arms and the thighs of the Lord (Īśvara); and for their support was born the fourth caste from His (i.e., Īśvara's) feet.³

(V. 6.) That this caste is more pure than those (other three) is self-evident; for (verily) this caste was born along with the (river) Bhāgīrathī, (i.e. the Ganges [which springs from Vishṇu's foot.—F. W. T.]), the purifier of the three worlds.

(V. 7.) The members of this caste are eagerly attentive to their duties, not wicked, pure-minded, and are devoid of passion and other such blemishes; (they) ably bear all the burden of (protecting) the earth by helping those born in the kingly caste.

(V. 8.) The cycle of the Kṛita and other ages is always rolling, like the circumference of a wheel; the protectors of the earth are so likewise.

(V. 9.) In the well-known Śvōta-varāha kalpa, in the seventh Manvantara, in Bharata-varsha and in this Bharata-khaṇḍa in (this) Kali (age), the different castes and stages (of men) do not deviate from the prescribed law (dharma), the Vēdas shine (i.e. are honoured), with their component parts and the hundred (i.e. numerous) religious sacrifices are not without their fruit.⁴

(V. 10.) In Bharata-khaṇḍa there are thousand (i.e. innumerable) countries which are famous for the many and rich articles (which they contain). The crest jewel of these is certainly the country called Trilīṅga,⁵ in which virtue is confined.

(V. 11.) The lord of the Trilīṅga country (was) the illustrious Kēśava-nāyaka, who by his dignity eclipsed, as it were, Dilīpa and other kings (of old).

(V. 12.) The earth flourished while this king who adorned the noble Mañchikōṇḍa family, inflicted due punishment (on offenders), crushed the infatuated pride of the wicked and shaved (the heads of, i.e. disgraced) heroic enemy-kings.

¹ Vināyaka, the god with the elephant-face, is known to have only one tusk and is hence called Ēka-danta.

² This is evidently a description of the natural scenery as one would see it on the evening of a full-moon day in any month. It is difficult to understand why the poet should have introduced it here.

³ The origin of the four recognised castes from the head, shoulders, thighs and feet of the Supreme Being is described in the well-known Paruṣhasūkta of the Rīg-Vēda (x. 90. 12: brāhmaṇō 'sya mūkham āsīd bāhū rājanyāḥ kṛitāḥ 1 ūrū tād asya yād vaiśyāḥ padbhyaṁ śūdrō ājāyata ||

⁵ The origin of the name Trilīṅga is explained in the Pratāparudriya. Vide Ind. Ant., Vol. VI, p. 338 and p. 130, n. The terms Telugu, Telīghāṇya and Tiliṅghāṇa must be traced to Trilīṅga.

(V. 13.) The son of that king Kēśava and a mine of (good) qualities (viz.) Gaṇapati-nāyaka took upon his shoulders (the burden of) the earth, after his father had gone to heaven by old age.

(V. 14.) Wealth, Land and Fame were (all) three very dear to king Gaṇapati. Dearer than the (first) two must have been Fame, for he gave up these two on her account.¹

(V. 15.) From that king (Gaṇapati) was born a son, the illustrious Kūṇa-bhūpāla, (even) as Pradyumna (was born) from the lord of Lakshmi (i.e. Viṣṇu) and the bearer of the śakti (i.e. Kumāra) from Śaṅkara (i.e. Śiva).

(V. 16.) The king Gaṇapati, seeing that (his) son (was) fit for kingly dignity, left his throne on (this) earth to take his seat in Heaven.²

(V. 17.) The prosperous Kūṇaya-nāyaka, (who was) a Rōhaṇa³ mountain containing brilliant gems (viz.) good qualities, the prowess of whose arms was well-known, who enjoyed the greatness of monarchy, who made gifts without show, whose wisdom was firm and far-reaching, whose behaviour was generous and whose feelings were saturated with mercy, was a moon to the milk-ocean (of) his race.

(V. 18.) Victorious is his son king Mummaḍindra, whose great prowess surpasses the sun (in glory), who is skilled in all arts, dear to the heart of poets, a mine of pleasing qualities, a fire to the bamboos (vamśa, viz.) families of powerful enemies and capable in protecting (his) subjects.

(V. 19.) The sword of Kūṇaya-Mummaḍi-nāyaka besmeared with the blood of enemy-kings, whom it splits, shines like the sprout of the creeper (viz.) his valour.

(V. 20.) The earth shines on being united (in marriage) with Mummaḍi-nāyaka, who (always) acts according to the wishes of his father, who is a pearl in the bamboo⁴ (viz.) the family of famous kings and who is resplendent in (his) plain, sympathetic and noble conduct.⁵

(V. 21.) (The goddess of) Wealth who (dwells) with love in the breast of Achyuta (Viṣṇu), the (goddess) Earth, who has firmly established herself on the lord of serpents, and (the goddess of) Learning, who sports in all the (four) faces of Brahmā, shine (together) in the company of the matchless and glorious Kūṇaya-Mummaḍindra. The great wonder (however) is that in the company of these three (ladies), the (already) pure (goddess of) his (own) fame, has become still more so.⁶

(V. 22.) Mummaḍindra protects the districts Cheṅgara, Kuṇavāṭa, Kōṇa and Vāṇāra included in the region between the two well-known (branches of the) Gōḍāvara (river), and renowned for (their) richness.

(V. 23.) Occupying with his military equipments the inaccessible strongholds on land, sea, hill and forest (in these) countries, and uprooting hordes of (his) enemies, king Mummaḍi protects the whole earth.

³ [On Rōhaṇa see above, p. 205, note 5.—H. K. S.]

⁴ It is a belief obtaining with Sanskrit poets that old bamboos and the heads of elephants contain valuable pearls.

⁵ [In the case of the pearl : one, which is bright, splendid, shining, round and radiant.—V. S.]

⁶ Here is a pointed reference to the scandalous quarrels and misunderstandings among co-wives in Hindu families where polygamy is resorted to. The poet wants to say that the fourth wife of Śingaya-nāyaka, (viz.) Fame, did not suffer (though, as a co-wife, she ought to have done so) in the company of the three others.

(V. 24.) Who is not highly pleased with the territories of Mummaḍindira, whose gardens are flourishing with long stretches of ripe plantains, limes, jack and mango trees bordering on all sides, enclosing in the interior everywhere groups of beautiful areca-palms, betel-creepers and ginger plants, with avenues of tall cocoanut palms and the sweet-flowered vakula, kuravaka, aśoka, and punnāga trees ?

(V. 25.) Kāpaya-nāyaka, the famous Suratrāṇa (i.e. Sultān) of the Āndhra country gave (in marriage) his sister's daughter to king Mummaḍindira.

(V. 26.) Mummaḍindira ever rules the earth, looking after (the interests of) groups of the twice-born (Brāhmaṇas), who, like the highly brilliant pearls, please the whole world and shed continuous lustre by their upright conduct (or roundness), good qualities (or strong thread) and purity, decorating by their residence the (many) (agrahāra) villages given by the king, provided with all comforts and shining as if they were valuable necklaces of the (goddess) earth.

(V. 27.) King Mummaḍi resides joyfully in the big, beautiful and advanced city named Kōṛukoṇḍa, in which shine fair ladies who stand on a par with Rati, in which dwell the utmost number of wealthy men, which is the abode of all prosperity, which is attractive on account of (its men of) learning and which is beautiful with its bazars.

(V. 28.) What to say of the fortune of this city ! For here dwells the Supremo Being (Vishṇu) with (the goddess) Śrī (Lakshmi), giving up (his) heavenly abode.

(V. 29.) One younger brother (of Mummaḍi-nāyaka) is Śīṅgaya-nāyaka, who ranks high on account of all good qualities (and) great fortune ; and another younger brother is Gannaya-nāyaka who shines vorily like the principal gem in the necklace (or group) of kings.

(V. 30.) These two prosperous brothers named king Śīṅga and king Gauna are comparable only with that Mummaḍindira.

(V. 31.) Having appointed these brothers respectively at Kōṭi-purī in which are crores of prosperous and beautiful ladies, and at Tāḍipāka which is the very fruit of the meritorious acts (of its residents), (Mummaḍindira) rules the earth along with them.

(V. 32.) King Śīṅga follows in the footsteps of (his) elder brother king Mummaḍi, just as Hari (followed) his elder brother Śakra (Indra), and Saumitri (i.e. Lakshmaṇa) (followed) his elder brother Rāma.

(V. 33.) King Śīṅga's capital is known as the famous city (of) Mummaḍividu. (Thus) associated with the name of Mummaḍi-nāyaka, it, (is) the play-ground for the (goddess of) wealth, the sporting-house for (the goddess of) learning, and the ornament of the earth, near which flows the prosperous (river) Pampā and close to which is (the temple of) the glorious (god) Rāmanāthāśvara.

(V. 34.) That spacious city shines like the capital of heaven reflected in the holy (and) placid waters of the (river) Pampā, the country on either side of which is hemmed in with thick forests.

(V. 35.) King Śīṅga residing in that famous city protects the entire earth, being possessed of all (kinds of) wealth.

(V. 36.) Victorious is the king Śīṅga, who is a Gaṇḍa-gōpāla in discomfiting his powerful enemies and to whose lady-fame (this mundane) egg of Brahmā is (only) a ball.¹

(V. 37.) King Śiṅga, displaying his innate good nature, sense of duty, (deep) love and pride, towards (his) subjects, good men, women and enemies (respectively), assumes (the four recognised forms of) the rôle of heroes,¹ such as dhīrōdāṭṭa, (dhīrasānta, dhīralalita and dhīrōddhata).

(V. 38.) The illustrious king Śiṅga fully enjoys (his) fortune by distributing (his) wealth, by (seeking) success for his arm, by causing fear in (his) enemies, by giving a material form to (his) fame, by crushing conceit, by making his kinsmen uninterruptedly rich, by bestowing gifts with dignity, by showing unparalleled kindness (towards his subjects) and by acquiring strength compatible with his royalty.

(V. 39.) Kūnaya-śiṅga, the forehead-ornament of kings, always delights in sporting with women who are proficient in playing on the vinā, who are illustrious for their charming and attractive dances, who follow the rules (of conduct regulating) the noble songsters of culture, who are respected for their amiability, who are prosperous with never-failing wealth and who possess matchless beauty.

(V. 40.) Victorious is the holy and popular doctor Parahita, who is virtue incarnate, whose fame is known everywhere, the abode of all good qualities, the limit of all prosperity, the worshipper of Śiva and the foremost of men noted for (their) conduct.

(V. 41.) Parahita, the full-moon to the milk-ocean (of the family, viz.) Ātrōya gōtra, in whose lotus-like mind Śiva makes his abode and the mirror (in which are reflected) the sports (of the goddess) Prosperity (Śrī), rendered assistance in many ways to persons who sought (his) protection.

(V. 42.) This doctor is (called) Parahita. (So is) that Śiva who is kind to others (para-hita). Again, his (i.e. Parahita's) wife, like (the wife) of (that) Śiva, was Umā not only in name, but also in (her) good qualities.

(V. 43.) His son was the illustrious Rāmanātha, a devout worshipper of Siva, of pleasing virtues and noble character, the receptacle of mercy, the foremost among physicians and the best of those that have conquered their passions.

(V. 44.) The great physician Rāmanātha knew how to treat all diseases pertaining to demons, gods and men. Regarding his cures (i.e. medical skill), he has to be compared only with Atri, the lord of sages.

(V. 45.) Just as Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Siva (were begotten) for sport on Anasūyā by the sage Atri, so were born of the illustrious Rāmanātha, from (his) wife named Ayitāmbikā, even three equally glorious sons, who are exalted through their well-known greatness, who are (ever bent) upon doing good to the people, and who bestow upon wise men (their) desired objects.

(V. 46 and 47.) The eldest son of this wise Rāmanātha is Parahita, the second is named Dēvaya, and the third Kālanātha. The two younger brothers (Dēvaya and Kālanātha) serve constantly (their) elder brother (Parahita) with a cheerful mind, attending to his wants, in the capacity of sons, friends, brothers, servants and the like.

(V. 48.) (Himself) an ornament among the students of the Yajur-vēda and the Āyur-vēda (i.e. the medical science), Parahita taught these to his students and thus accomplished the object (of his life).

(V. 49.) The best of virtues having consulted together, as it were, abide in Parahitāchārya, whose conduct is capable of chastising sins, whose actions are praiseworthy, whose mind is the abode of peace, whose speech is pleasing and noble, whose worship is offered at the feet of the moon-crowned (Śiva) and whose wealth is at the disposal of his dependents.

(V. 50.) Who can equal the son of Rāmaya-vaidyānātha, the wise, illustrious and highly famous Dēvayārya who is proficient in Āyur-vēda? The physician (of the gods, i.e. Dhanvantari), born in the ocean with nectar in his hands,¹ cannot equal him; for there is nectar (not only) in the lotus-like hand (of this Dēvayārya but also in his) speech, eyes (and) heart.

(V. 51.) The illustrious Kālanātha, the chief of physicians, was created by Brahmā with a desire, as it were, of bringing together in one place all (good qualities) like learning, purity, modesty, uprightness, truth, virtue, worship of Śiva, pious life and compassion towards (all) beings.

(Vv. 52-54.) The glorious king Kūnaya-Śīnga, justly rewarding with many valuable gifts his dependent and life-physician,² Parahitāchārya, (his) friend in (all) actions, who captivates the heart by (his) sound learning, is the foremost among virtuous men, and respectable on account of (his) good qualities, was not still satisfied (with the presents that he had given). (Therefore) in the Śaka year counted by the sky (0), the planets (9), the eyes (2) and the moon (1),³ in the month Śrāvaṇa, on the occasion of an auspicious solar eclipse the illustrious Śīngaya-nāyaka granted to the virtuous Parahitāchārya, in the presence of the glorious (god) Ru(Ṛ)ṇamuktinātha, the excellent village famed by name Akkalapūṇḍi. (And) Parahitāchārya, having divided that village called Mummaḍi-Śīngavara into twenty shares, gave one half of it to the Brāhmaṇas.

(Vv. 55-60.) [Contains the names of the Brāhmaṇa recipients with their gōtras and śakhās. See the annexed Appendix.]

(V. 61.) These Brāhmaṇas were made the recipients of equal shares by Parahitārya in the half village which was divided into ten parts.

(Vv. 62-70.) The boundary line of Akkalapūṇḍi on the west is recognised as the (river) Gautamī (i.e. Gōdāvarī), right up to the middle of the stream. The boundary line due north-west reaches the thicket of śākōṭa (shrubs) on the bank of the Gautamī; the same, going in a north-easterly direction, reaches the ant-hill with the ankōḷa tree, then reaching the fig tree passes on to the kimśuka tree; thence proceeding, the same boundary line reaches next the ant-hill with the śākōṭa (shrubs) and then touches the two tamarind trees and the pipal tree united with the plaksha. Then turning northwards, the boundary line touches (its) middle point with the kimśuka tree to the west of the main trench of Kāṅkaravāḍa and then passes close by a pool with thick shrubs in it. From there it proceeds eastwards to the sandy tract in the north-east corner, and then reaches the high peak of the hill along the cows' path which proceeds from the foot of the same hill, touching Bōdalāva (on the way). Then the same (boundary line), proceeding southwards from the top of the hill and reaching the plaksha tree, joins the pool with the tamarind tree; and eventually this boundary line, winding through thickets and ant-hills crowded with chincha and kimśuka trees and reaching the middle of a tank, joins the south-east corner. Now, turning towards the west and joining the śākōṭa and other trees, it passes through ant-hills and ankōḷa trees and reaches the kharja trees on the south-west corner and then joins the river Gautamī in the middle of its stream.

(V. 71.) May this (copper-plate) charter (recording the grant of) the village called Mummaḍi-Śīngavara, composed by the poet Kāmadōva, the best of the Kauṇḍīnyas, run on as long as the moon and stars (endure).

³ i.e. 1290.

(V. 72.) 'This causeway of charity is common to (all) kings. (Therefore O! kings) it is always to be protected by you.' (Thus) does Rāmachandra again and again request all the future rulers of the earth.

(Ll. 102-103.) (This is) the writing of Śingā-nāyaḍu; (and this) the writing of Mammaḍi-nāyaḍu.

No. 25.—TALEGAON COPPER-PLATES OF KRISHNA-RAJA I; SAKA 690.

BY STEN KONOW.

The first notice of this inscription was given by Mr. D. R. Bhandarkar,¹ who states that the plates were sent to him for decipherment by Sirdar K. C. Mehendale, Secretary of the Bhārat-itihās-samśōdhak-maṇḍal, and that they have been found at Talēgāon Dhamdhērē, a village of the Sirūr tāluka in the Poona District, situated at 18° 40' N. and 74° 9' E., twenty miles north-east of Poona city.

There are altogether three plates, 13½" long and 6½—7½" broad. The first and the third plate have no writing on their outer sides, the second one carries writing on both sides. The first plate contains eight, the obverse and the reverse of the second, and the obverse of the third each ten lines of writing. At the bottom of the reverses of the first two plates there are moreover some illegible scribbles in a later handwriting. At the end of the inscription are two double circles, each surrounding a floral design. There are circular ring holes on the left sides of the plates, but we have no information about the existence of a ring or a seal. The writing has in some places become rather effaced. This is especially the case in the beginning and at the end of the inscription and at the bottom of the obverse of the second plate. Fortunately, however, everything which is of importance can be made out with certainty.

The alphabet belongs to the southern group and is of the same kind as in other southern plates of the same date. The shape of individual letters varies in a few places. Thus, the kṛi in -krita-, l. 12, is different from the kri in -kritaḥ, l. 1; the ga in Gōvinda-, l. 22, is misshapen, and the ā-mātrā in jā is usually almost unrecognizable. On the whole, however, the letters are well cut. The figure 1 occurs at the end of the first stanza after the initial blessing, l. 9.

With regard to orthography it should be noted that ri and ṛi are not correctly distinguished. Thus we find ṛi for ri in -āḍṛi-, l. 6, and ri for ṛi in bhṛityaiḥ, l. 10; -krishna-, l. 13, and krimiḥ, l. 35. Va is used throughout also to denote ba, and this writing has not been corrected in my transcript. After r consonants are doubled in the usual way. Thus, -durgga-, l. 7; -kirtti-, l. 3; varṇajvalā, l. 19; -darppa-, l. 15; -paratur=mmahātma-, l. 17; -sarvvarishu-, l. 2, etc. The writing is not, however, quite consistent, and we also find tanur=viśvambharā, l. 20; sarvān=, l. 23; sarva-, l. 31; and aspirates are never doubled after r; compare -dirgha-, l. 8; -ārtha-, l. 28; bhāvair=bhṛīṣaṁ, l. 20; -nirbhara-, l. 15. The letter ta is regularly doubled before ra; thus, gōttra-, l. 4; -sattra-, l. 6; vittrastā, l. 8; -pāttra-, l. 18; ttrayaḥ, l. 35. The treatment of nasals before consonants is not consistent. Usually the class nasal is employed, but we also find the anusvāra used instead; thus, Prabhutumga-, l. 18, but Subhatumga-, l. 14; Gōvinda-, l. 22, but =Endrarājaḥ, l. 6; -stambhēna-, l. 18, but -stambham=, l. 8. Instead of mḥ we find ṅh and mgh; thus, -siṅgha-, l. 3, but -siṅghasya, l. 8. There are several other instances of carelessness. Thus, a double consonant has been simplified in =abhūtanājaḥ for =abhūtatanājaḥ, l. 6; -ajvalā for -ājvalā, l. 19; narukāna for narakān=na, l. 35; niśēṣh- for niḥśēṣh-, l. 13; ētai sahitaḥ for ētaiḥ sahitaḥ, l. 31. Final consonants have been omitted in -grāmā, ll. 28, 29; ēva, l. 30; -nirviśēṣha-, l. 32; paradattā, l. 34. The dropping of a final visarga is especially of frequent occurrence, not only before śr, as in kṛitajña śrī-, l. 4; -prajāv[ā]dha śrī-, l. 12, but also before pra in -tilaka Pra-, l. 18; -puṇya pra-, l. 22, and before kṛi in -pati Kṛishna-, l. 12. There are also other cases of miswriting. Thus we find rnn instead of rṇṇ in Kārmāṭakam, l. 9; tt instead of nt in jñāyattā, ll. 8 f.; nt for tt in -untarē, l. 25; ts for ss in yat=sahasā, l. 10; compare also -vāranātstal- for -vāranās=tal-, l. 8; -ādīmtsam- for -ādīn sam-, l. 23. The rules of Sandhi are occasionally neglected in the grant portion. Thus, vrahmanēbhyuḥ Vāsishtha-, l. 26; -pūjitāya asēṣha-, l. 28; =uttarataḥ Ala-, l. 29; dakṣhiṇataḥ ēva chatu-rāghāṭavīśuddhaḥ Bhamarōparā-Araluṣa-Sindigrāma | Taḍavālē ētai, ll. 30 f. On the other hand we find Sandhi between the two halves of a verse in ll. 7 and 17, and, against the metre, between the two first padas, in l. 33. A semi-Prakrit form occurs in varishati, l. 17. We may finally note that the signs of half and full stops are rather irregularly employed.

The grant registered in the plates was issued by the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kṛishnarāja I, and it is the first inscription of this king which has hitherto come to light. His genealogy is given in the same way and in the same words as in other plates so far as Dantidurga. We are first introduced to Gōvindarāja I, and his son Kakkarāja I, whose son Indrarāja II was the father of Dantidurga. He is, in the usual way, stated to have defeated the Kārṇāṭaka power, which was skilled in conquering the lord of Kāñchi, the Kērala king, the Chōla, the Pāṇḍya, Śrīharsha [of Kanauj] and Vajraṭa; to have vanquished Vallabha, i.e. the Western Chalukya Kirtivarman II, and then to have assumed the title of a paramount sovereign rājādhirāja paramēśvara, his predecessors being simply styled rājan. Dr. Fleet¹ is perhaps right in assigning to Dantidurga the biruda Rājasimha, which occurs in l. 8, and which is perhaps similarly used about Dantidurga's great-grandfather Gōvindarāja I. Dr. Fleet has also² mentioned that Dantidurga's epithet Vallabharāja, which occurs in l. 12, is of interest "because, through its Prakrit forms, it explains the name," the Balharās, "by which the contemporaneous Arab travellers and geographers of the ninth and tenth centuries A.D. used to speak of those kings." Dantidurga's successor was his paternal uncle Kṛishnarāja I, the son of Kakkarāja, and the present grant was issued by him. According to the Barōda plates of the Rāshtrakūṭa king

rājyam svayam gōtrahitāya cakrō.

Dr. Fleet² was inclined to infer from this statement³ that Kṛishṇarāja forcibly replaced his nephew Dantidurga. The wording of v. 9 in Kṛishṇarāja's own grant, however, would lead us to believe that the relative whom he had to fight was somebody else, who claimed the throne after Dantidurga's death.³ Kṛishṇarāja gives himself the birudas Śubhatuṅga, Akālavārsha and Prithivīvalabha. The only stanza devoted to his praises which presents any difficulty is v. 16. We are here told that he for a long time enjoyed the Earth as if it were his one mistress, and the earth is said to be Kāñchi-guṇ-ālankṛitā. The literal meaning of this epithet is 'embellished with a girdle string,' and it is of course meant to be used in this sense about the king's mistress. It can, however, also mean 'embellished with the excellence of Kāñchi,' and this is certainly the meaning of the compound as applied to the earth. Now we have no information to the effect that Kṛishṇarāja conquered Kāñchi (Conjeeveram), and it is, on the basis of the available information, difficult to understand what is exactly meant with the compound. It is, however, possible to make a suggestion. In the Barōda plates of Karkarāja which I have just quoted, we read about Kṛishṇarāja,

"That king (Kṛishṇarāja) by whom was caused to be made a temple⁴ of wonderful structure situated in the hills at Ēlāpura, on seeing which the wonderstruck lords of the gods driving in their aerial cars constantly reflect (saying), 'This abode of Śiva is self-existent, in an artificial (building) such a beauty was never seen;' and even the artist who made it was automatically struck with wonder in consequence of the failure of his energy as regards (the construction of) another work of the same kind, saying, 'how can this have been made by me?' and by whom (Kṛishṇarāja) Śambhu (Śiva), standing there, was further embellished with all sorts of riches, rubies, gold, and so on, though he is decorated with wonderful ornaments, the stream of the Gaṅgā, the moon and the kālakūṭa."

As pointed out by Sir R. G. Bhandarkar,⁵ this description no doubt refers to the famous Kailāsa temple at Ellora. Now it is a common belief that this temple is an imitation of the Kailāsanātha temple at Conjeeveram, and several common features in the two structures have been pointed out,⁶ although it is hardly possible to talk of a general imitation of the Conjeeveram temple. Our inscription, however, seems to show that Kṛishṇarāja meant to create a structure which could emulate the splendour of the Kailāsanātha temple; and, if my interpretation of v. 16 of the present grant is correct, it gives an authentic corroboration of the belief that a connexion exists between the two structures and it becomes of importance for the history of the Ellora temple.

V. 14 informs us that Kṛishṇarāja had a son Prabhutuṅga Gōvindarāja. He is of course the same person as the Yuvarāja Gōvindarāja Prabhūtavarsha Vikramāvalōka of the Alās plates.¹ The designation Prabhutuṅga of this prince is not known from other sources.

We learn from l. 22 that the grant was issued at the request (viññāpanā) of Gōvindarāja, while l. 26 mentions Vāsishṭhaśrikumāra and Jaivanti Pāpaiya as having made the viññāpanā. It is tempting to infer that Vāsishṭhaśrikumāra was another designation of Gōvinda. That would imply that this prince had adopted the gōtra designation of the Vāsishṭhas. We have not, however, any information that any Rāstrakūṭa prince claimed to belong to the Vāsishṭha gōtra. We know that it was Kṛishṇarāja who completed the overthrow of the Chalukyas, and it would be conceivable that he made an attempt at imitating those princes, who claimed to belong to the Mānavya gōtra, and that he tried to make his son Gōvinda assume the designation Vāsishṭha-śrikumāra. It is, however, safer to assume that Vāsishṭhaśrikumāra is a different person from Gōvindarāja, to whom he and Jaivanti Pāpaiya made their request which the prince then made his own.

At all events there is no indication in the grant that Gōvinda had become installed as Yuvarāja. In the Alās plates of Śaka 692, on the other hand, he is designated as such. His installation must accordingly have taken place some time between March 768 A.D., the date of the Talēgāon plates, and June 770 A.D., when the Alās grant was issued.

The Talēgāon plates are dated Śaka Samvat 690 (expired), in the Plavaṅga-varsha, on the new moon day of the month Vaiśākha, on the occasion of an eclipse of the sun. The corresponding Christian date is Wednesday, the 23rd March 768 A.D. Kṛishṇarāja states that he was then engaged on an expedition against the Gaṅgas and that his camp had been pitched at Maṇṇanagara (l. 26). This place is no doubt identical with Maṇṇai or Māṇyapura, the capital of the Western Gaṅgas, which has been identified by Mr. Rice² with Maṇṇai in the Nelamaṅgala tāluka of the Bangalore District, 13° 15' N. and 77° 18' E. We learn from this statement that Kṛishṇarāja, like his son Dhruva, went to fight the Gaṅgas. The Gaṅga king who ruled in A.D. 768 was according to Dr. Fleet³ the Mahārāja Prithivikoṅga Śrīpurusha.

The grant itself was issued to the Brāhmaṇas living in the Karahāṭa ten-thousand, and two shares were especially reserved for a certain Bhaṭṭa-Vāsudēva. Karahāṭa is the present Karhād in the Sātārā District. It is here said to be a ten-thousand district. It is elsewhere⁴ said to consist of four thousand villages and towns. The object of the grant was the village Kumārigrāma, together with Bhamarōparā, Araluva, Sindigrāma and Taḍavalē, all in the Pūnaka-vishaya lying to the west of Khambhagrāma, Vōrimagrāma, and Dāḍimagrāma, to the north of the Khadiravēṇa hill, to the east of Alandiyagrāma and Thiuragrāma and to the south of the river Mūla. As has been pointed out by Mr. Bhandarkar, who has identified these places on the Survey of India Atlas sheet No. 39, the chief importance of the inscriptions for the geography of Western India rests with the fact that it establishes the existence of a Poona District under that name as early as the eighth century, for there can be no doubt that Pūnaka is the same name as the modern Poona, i.e. Pūnā. The modern form shows that Pūnaka is a Prakrit form derived from an older Punnaka or Puṇṇaka, because the dental n of Pūnā cannot represent an originally single n. The etymology of the name is accordingly uncertain. It can just as well be puṇyaka, as usually supposed by Paṇḍita, as pūrnaka.

Of the villages included in the grant Kumārigrāma is the present Karehgāon; Bhamarōparā is Bhowrapur; Aralava Uruli; Sindigrāma Seendowneh, and Tadavalē Turudee. Of the surrounding villages Kharabhagrāma is Khamgāon; Vōrimagrāma Boree, and Dādīmagrāma Daleomb; Alandiya is Ālandī, or more commonly Chōrā-chi Ālandī, a station on the Madras and Southern Marāṭhā Railway, 15 miles south-east of Poona, and Thiuragrāma is Theur. The river Māila is the present Muḷā, or more properly that river after its confluence with the Muṭhā at Poona, whence it winds east till it reaches the Bhīma. Mr. Bhandarkar states that it passes to the north of the villages contained in the grant. The Khadiravēṇa hills, finally, have not retained their old name. I am unable to add anything to this information, which is due to Mr. Bhandarkar, as no large scale map is at my disposal.

The writer of the inscription was, so far as I can make out, Indra, the same person who wrote the Sāmāngad grant of Dantidurga.

TRANSLATION.

(V. 1) May he protect you from whose navel the lotus grows that Vēdhas (Brahman) has made his abode, and Hara (Śiva) through the lovely digit of whose moon the sky is embellished.

(V. 2) There was a king Gōvindarāja [I], who with his raised scimitar destroyed the darkness (in the shape of) his foes, facing them in the nights of battles, his fame reaching the ends of the quarters, brilliant like the moon (who dispels the darkness, after his disk has risen, shining against it at night), his lustre reaching to the ends of the quarters, Rājasimha (king-lion) among kings.

(V. 3) His son, whose great fame was renowned in the world; who possessed the valour and strength of Hari, the remover of the sufferings of the distressed; a king resembling the lord of heaven (Indra); full of gratefulness, became a jewel of his race, the illustrious Kakkarāja.

(V. 4) He had a son, whose broad shoulders were bright through being scratched by the stroke of the tusks of elephants from whose open temples ichor trickled down; a king who on earth destroyed his enemies; who was as it were a golden mountain (Mēru) in the (lineage of the) excellent Rāshṭrakūṭas (or, whose summit was the excellent kingdom), Indrarāja (II).

(V. 5) He who had accumulated tapas, had a son who enjoyed the earth girt with the four oceans; who was like to Indra, the Rajan, the glorious Dantidurga;

(V. 6) In the battle against whom his foes (as if they were) elephants became terrified of him, the lion amongst kings (Rājasimha), eradicated the (sense of) shame before him (as elephants would their) posts, ran away and are not known anywhere;

(V. 7) He who forcibly, with a few soldiers, conquered the endless forces of Karṇāṭaka, which were invincible to others, and which were skilled in effecting defeats on the lord of Kāñchī, the king of Kērala, the Chōla, the Pāṇḍya, Śriharsha and Vajraṭa;

(V. 8) He who, without knitting his brow, without seizing sharp weapons, without (letting anybody) know, without issuing orders, without effort suddenly conquered Vallabha with his assaulting force, and (thus) obtained the position of a king of kings, a supreme lord.

(V. 9) After he, the Vallabharāja, had gone to heaven, Kṛishṇarāja [I], the son of Kakkarāja, who did not oppress his subjects, became the lord of the earth.

(V. 10) The career of that glorious Kṛishṇarāja, who through the valour of his own arms expelled the whole enemy world, was resplendent (akṛishṇa) like that of Kṛishṇa.

cha and ra, va and dha, ma and sa is also very slight. Professor Kielhorn, while editing the Assam Plates of Vallabha-dēva, felt such a difficulty of decipherment due to the great similarity of signs for some letters and remarked¹ that "where letters like these happen to occur in proper names . . . it is impossible to vouch for the absolute correctness of the transcribed text." The same remark may hold good with regard to the reading of the proper name Kalipurva, l. 16 of our inscription, which looks like Kaliyurdha. Of initial vowels we have met with the signs for i (in iti, ll. 4 and 11, in iha, l. 15, and in ira, l. 16), u (in upakārē, l. 20) and ē (in ēra, ll. 14 and 17). It may be noted that the initial i is denoted by two ringlets, placed side by side with a short horizontal line above. Attention may be drawn to the peculiar forms of the following conjunct letters amongst others :—ksha e.g. in sākshād, l. 8; stha e.g. in sthānam, l. 3; ktya e.g. in śaktyā, l. 13; nya e.g. in svānya, l. 2; shtha e.g. in nishthā, l. 7; chchhā e.g. in -chchhāvalā, l. 4; shna e.g. in Vishṇum, l. 9; shṭa e.g. in -ānṛishṭa, l. 24; ācha e.g. in -lakshyañ=cha, l. 9; and jña, nika, ñghya, spha, jya, ks, jhl, ṭṭa, ñja, each occurring only once respectively in jñāna, l. 17; -varāṅkurānām, ll. 12-13; -alaṅghyām, l. 8; sphuṭam, l. 17; -jyōtsnā, l. 8; śamyak=sādhyā, l. 11; ōjjhātum, l. 12; Bhaṭṭa, l. 12; and -puñjē, l. 23. The forms of the individual consonants kha (e.g. in -khila, l. 2), gha (e.g. in -aghō, l. 12), ṭa (e.g. in Saṭatī, l. 4), tha (e.g. -tathāira, l. 1), pha (used only once in -phalair, l. 17), and ha (e.g. in Hiranya, l. 2) are worthy of notice. The sign for visarga and that for anusvāra, of the variety which is represented by a circle and a virāma-stroke below it after the letter to which it belongs, have almost everywhere been marked with a mātrā above them.

As regards orthography, the letter ba is throughout expressed by the sign for va. Some of the other peculiarities of orthography which call for special notice are the following :—(1) the letters ka, ga (except in śair-guṇāḥ, l. 9), ta, pa, ma, and va are doubled after r, whereas ya has been retained single in such position, and dha becomes ddha and bha once only v(b)bha, viz. in -garr(b)bha, l. 2; (2) sa has once been substituted for the visarga after sa, viz. in ratī=satpē, l. 14 (but visarga has been retained in tasyāḥ suto, l. 13); (3) nowhere (except in one place, viz. tantrē spratigham, l. 17) has the sign for avagraha been used; (4) the anusvāra is also indicated by a small circle placed above the line; (5) final t and n are used with the virāma-stroke placed below them, the letters themselves being of a smaller size in such cases, e.g. in -ābhut, l. 13; karishyan, l. 13; but final m at the end of the second and the fourth pādas of a verse is throughout denoted by the sign for anusvāra which has a circle with virāma-stroke below it; (6) the superscript r is not employed in the conjunct ṛṇṇa (cf. e.g. varṇ=ṛā, l. 1), and this seems to be a special peculiarity in the script of the eleventh and the twelfth centuries. Only in a very few cases have the rules of sandhi been neglected, e.g. -nāmnaḥ tulā, l. 19; -śāsanam cha, l. 20.

The language is Sanskrit, and, with the exception of the introductory Om namō bhagavatē Vāsudēvāya, the whole inscription is in verse. There are altogether twenty-nine verses. The only unusual form which is incorrect according to Pāṇini's grammar is the word mumōda, l. 16, which ought to have been used in the ātmanēpadīya form in lūkika Sanskrit; but this form is permissible in Vedic Sanskrit. So our poet may be excused by the dictum² of the Mahābhāṣya, viz. chhandōrat karayāḥ kurvanti.

The object of the inscription is to record the erection of a temple wherein a Brāhmaṇa named Prabhāsa set up an image of Amara-nātha. He is also credited with having dedicated an image of Trivikrama and excavated a tank for the spiritual benefit of his father and mother. This inscription, like the one in the Bhubanēśvara temple of Orissa eulogizing Bhaṭṭa-Bhavadēva,³ furnishes a prasaṅgi or eulogistic account of Prabhāsa and his family. Here also we find an inscription treating, not of kings and ministers, but of a Brāhmaṇa who was born in an orthodox family which was glorified by the birth of great scholars, accustomed to perform religious rites according to the injunctions of the śāstras. As a piece of material for the social history of Bengal in mediæval times, this inscription is very important. For the convenience of ready reference, an abstract of the contents of the whole inscription is given here.

After the words "Om ! Adoration to Bhagavān Vāsudēva" the author invokes (verse 1) the protection of Chaturbhuja (Vishṇu). Verses 2 and 3 disclose the fact that the Brāhmaṇas who had their descent from Aṅgiras and who belonged to the same gotra with Bharadvāja had their home in a place called Tarkāri situated within the limits of Śravastī ; and that they observed all the sacrificial (raitāna) and domestic (gārhya) ceremonials in accordance with the rules of the Vēdas and the Smṛitī, in which they were all well-versed. A village of the name of Vā(Bā)lagrāma is stated in verse 4 to have been the ornament of the land of Varēndrī¹ in the country of Puṇḍra, and to have been an offshoot of Tarkāri (verse 2), but parted therefrom by Sakaṭī (probably the name of a river or of a place). In this village of Bālagrāma there lived many Brāhmaṇa families, all proud of their "learning, lineage and practice of austerities" (v. 5). Some of the Brāhmaṇas who were born of the Paṇḍit families living in the eastern part of this village wanted to live apart and so removed to a neighbouring place called Śiyamva(ba) (v. 6). Verse 7 states that two or three of the local Brāhmaṇa families were not yet extinct, but continued their sacred learning, were competent enough to remove the doubts of people about the meaning of Śruti and Smṛiti and remained fixed in the time-honoured rules and precepts of their families. Next we have in vv. 8-18 a sketch of Prahāsa's descent. In Śiyamba was born a Brāhmaṇa, Paśu-pati by name, who was "skilful in the performance of the six duties" (v. 8). His son was Sāhila (v. 9), who is stated (v. 10) to have founded an image of Vishṇu and excavated a tank in the name of his father and mother respectively. His son was Manōratna (v. 11). Manōratna's son Sucharita begat on Nitulā (v. 12), his devoted wife, sprung from a high family, a son named Tapō-nidhi (v. 13), with whom began that glorious record of achievements which was continued by his successors. The most significant of his scholarly distinctions mentioned in v. 14 is that he attained perfection in the doctrines of Kumārila-Bhaṭṭa. He begot a son Kārttikēya (v. 15), whose scholarship in the Mīmāṃsā philosophy is very highly spoken of in v. 16, where he is also described as having been "famous as the remover of doubts about the meaning of the Smṛitīs." The qualities of his heart are mentioned in v. 17. He married a lady named Kaliparvvā or Kaliyavvā, who came of a very respectable family. She was the great-granddaughter of a person named Vishṇu, granddaughter of Aja-mīśra, and daughter of Aṅgada (v. 18). Though having many virtuous sons, this lady felt most happy and blessed in getting for a son Prahāsa, whose future greatness was indicated by the conjunction of auspicious planets at the time of his birth (v. 19). It is in honour of this Brāhmaṇa that the prastuti was composed. The next two verses (20-21) eulogise him, chiefly for his learning and sense of unfailing justice. His knowledge in the tarka-śāstras, tantras, and dharma-śāstras was of a very high order, and he possessed such virtues as truthfulness, freedom from avarice, etc. For these reasons he was very highly esteemed by the people and kings of his time. Verse 22 records the most significant fact that Prahāsa, even though persistently pressed, refused to accept 900 gold coins in cash and a gift of landed property (śāsana) yielding an income of 1,000 coins, from a very powerful king of Kāmarūpa, named Jayapāla-dēva. Then an account is given in verses 23-26 of the pious works which Prahāsa performed and which occasioned the writing of this prastuti. In order to be free from the debts which he owes to his parents (v. 23), Prahāsa, after having repaired two temples in the village, dedicated an image of Trivikrama and excavated a tank for the religious merit of his father and mother (v. 24). Then at the place where the stone inscription was set up he erected "a white temple of great height", surmounted by a most picturesque crest, and with all the customary divisions into compartments, in which he established according to rites the image of Amara-nātha (v. 25). He is praised as having built an alms-house also, and having laid out in Śiyamba a garden for the deity, and having set apart, at a place named Śirisha-puñja, a tract of land measuring seven drōṇas for the provision of the daily pūjā, etc. of the god (v. 26). After having completed his 50th year Prahāsa appointed his sons to succeed to all household affairs and himself retired to the edge of the river Ganges (v. 27). The poet then eulogises his own composition on the score of spontaneity in verses which with great literary acuteness hit the mark of genuine as opposed to artificial poetry (v. 28). Lastly, in v. 29, the engraver Sōmēśvara, a Māgadhan artist, is mentioned in high terms as having bestowed great attention in incising the letters on the stone.

The inscription is not dated, nor does it contain the poet's name.

In connection with our inscription three questions may here be discussed at some length:—(1) What is the locality of the Śrāvastī mentioned in verse 2? (2) Was there any necessity at all for the half-mythical king Ādi-śūra of Bengal to import learned Brāhmaṇas from Kanauj or any other part of the Madhyadēśa? (3) With whom is Jaya-pāla, the king of Kāmarūpa mentioned in verse 22, to be identified?

It is stated in verse 2 that the family of Brāhmaṇas to which Prahāsa traces his descent had its residence at a place called Tarkāri, which lay within the limits of Śrāvastī. Again, from verse 4 we find that the village Bāla-grāma, described as being prasūta (derived) from this Tarkāri of Śrāvastī, was also situated in the land of Varēndrī in Puṇḍra (North Bengal). The poet, perhaps, means to say that this newly established village, as the name Bāla-grāma also suggests, was colonised by people coming from Tarkāri of Śrāvastī, which seems to have been a neighbouring place. The locality intervening between these two places, viz. Śrāvastī-Tarkāri and Varēndrī-Bālagrāma, is named Sakaṭī, which sounds like the name of a river. From the meaning appropriately to be assigned to verse 4 one feels inclined to presume the existence of a town of the name of Śrāvastī in North Bengal (Gauḍa). In support of this presumption passages from some of the Purāṇas, mentioning that there was such a town of the name of Śrāvastī in the country of Gauḍa, may be pointed out. The Matsya-Purāṇa has the following line in verse 30, Chapter XII:—

nirmitā yēna Śrāvastī Gauḍa-dēśē dvijōttamāḥ.

The Kūrma-Purāṇa also has a line to the same effect, in Chapter XX (Bibl. Ind., p. 221).

Nirmitā yēna Śāvastī¹ Gauḍa-dēśē mahā-purī.

This Śrāvastī is said to have been built by a king, named Śrāvastī, the son of Yavanāśva of the Solar race. Its foundation reaches, therefore, to an age far anterior to Rāma and Lava. But in the last book of the Rāmāyaṇa,² we find mentioned the name of another Śrāvastī, founded by Rāma, as the capital of his son Lava. The Vāyu-Purāṇa also states that Lava's capital was the city Śrāvastī in Uttara-Kōśala. So from Pauranic literature and the last book of the Rāmāyaṇa, which is a later addition, we may infer the existence of two towns of the name of

Śrāvasti. The late Sir A. Cunningham thought that these were only apparent discrepancies, and he tried to solve the difficulty in the following words¹:—"These apparent discrepancies are satisfactorily explained when we learn that Gauḍa is only a subdivision of Uttara-Kōsala and that the ruins of Śrāvasti have actually been discovered in the district of Gauḍa, which is the Gonda of the maps." Evidently he thinks that the Śrāvasti of the Matsya-Purāṇa and the Kūrma-Purāṇa was situated in Uttara-Kōsala, and tries to identify the Gauḍa mentioned in both these Purāṇas with the place named Gonda in Kosala. But what seems to be really the case is that the Śrāvasti of Uttara-Kōsala which is mentioned in the Rāmāyaṇa (last book) and the Vāyu-Purāṇa is quite a different city from that of the same name which is described in the Matsya-Purāṇa and the Kūrma-Purāṇa as situated in the Gauḍa-dēśa, which must be North Bengal. Our inscription also lends corroboration to this theory, inasmuch as we know of no country of the name of Sakapī as intervening between the countries Kōsala and Puṇḍra, so distant from each other. Moreover, had the Śrāvasti of Kōsala been very old, it would have been mentioned in the first five genuine books of the Rāmāyaṇa, which must have been composed before the time of king Prasānajat of Kōsala, who was Buddha's contemporary, and who is known to have reigned at Śrāvasti. There is no denying the fact, too, that the ruins of the city of Śrāvasti, so celebrated in the annals of Buddhism, were discovered in Kōsala. What we mean to say is that there were two separate Śrāvastis—some of the Purāṇa writers making one of them the capital of Lava, some taking the other as founded by king Śrīvasti, an ancestor of Lava. Therefore, Sir A. Cunningham does not seem to have been right in identifying Gonda of Kōsala, merely on the strength of identity of name, with the Gauḍa mentioned in the Matsya and the Kūrma Purāṇas. There is Gonda, and not Gauḍa, in Kōsala, even according to his own opinion. So we think that the Śrāvasti mentioned in verse 2 of our inscription was situated also in Puṇḍra and must be identified with the city of the same name mentioned in the Matsya and the Kūrma Purāṇas.

In the various genealogical histories (Kula-puṇjikās) of the Brāhmaṇas and Kāyasthas of Bengal a tradition is found according to which king Ādi-śūra of Bengal imported from Kanauj five Brāhmaṇas belonging to five gōtras (of which one is the Bharadvāja gōtra), with whom also came five Kāyasthas. The cause assigned to this importation of Brāhmaṇas was that orthodox Hindu customs had fallen into disuse for want of Brāhmaṇas versed in the Vedic lore. The time of the rule of this half-mythical king is fixed differently by different writers of family-histories; but all such authorities are agreed in limiting it within the centuries 700 to 1100 A.D. No epigraphic record has as yet been discovered to prove the existence of a king of the name Ādi-śūra ruling at any time during these centuries, although we cannot overlook the fact that there was one Śūra dynasty from which the descent of queen Vilāsa-dēvī, mother of Ballāla-sēna, is traced. The information about the existence of a Śūra family from which Vilāsa-dēvī is said to have descended has been gathered from an unpublished copper-plate grant of king Vijaya-sēna in the 37th year of his reign, issued from his victorious camp at Vikrama-pura. Even if any future discovery should prove the existence of a king named Ādi-śūra, the question still remains open whether that king did really feel the death of orthodox Brāhmaṇas in Bengal, and had, therefore, to import some from Kanauj or any other part of Āryāvarta. Our inscription will serve as evidence to throw doubts on the story of the importation of Brāhmaṇas by king Ādi-śūra. In this prastuti of the 11th century there is mention of seven generations from Prahāsa upwards, so the seventh ancestor Paśu-pati might have belonged to the latter end of the 9th century. We have also seen from verses 2-7 that the ancestors of this family who were famous for their learning, austerities and lineage had been living in the village of Bāla-grāma in Varēndri (North Bengal) for a long time past, even anterior to Paśu-pati's time.

Again, when the Brāhmaṇas of the eastern part of that village removed to the neighbouring place, Śiyamba, they found that some of the old orthodox families of highly learned Brāhmaṇas of the locality had still been residing there. The forefathers of these Brāhmaṇas of the Bharadvāja gōtra, as we have seen in verses 2-4, came to colonise Bala-grāma from Tarkāri of Śrāvastī which, according to our opinion, was also situated in Varāndrī. So we see that Bengal, especially North Bengal, was from time immemorial a home of learned Brāhmaṇas, practising the Vedic customs and highly versed in Vedic lore, as also in Mīmāṃsā philosophy, in tarka, tantras and other dharma-sūtras. The praśasti of Bhaṭṭa-Bhavadēva also does not mention any event which can corroborate the importation of Brāhmaṇas, at least of the Sāvarna gōtra, into Bengal by king Ādi-śūra. There, also, we find seven generations of Bhaṭṭa-Bhavadēva of the Sāvarna gōtra mentioned, but no reference to any story of Brāhmaṇas from Kanañj having been imported by any king of the name of Ādi-śūra. My learned countryman, Bābu Monmohan Chakravarti, has thus written in an article about Bhaṭṭa Bhavadēva :— "In fact the existence of the Sāvarnas and the Vandyaghaṭīyas in this inscription of the eleventh century throws doubts on the stories found in the accounts of the match-makers that the Rādhīya Brāhmaṇas were imported from Kanañj in the eleventh century." I, however, demur to Monmohan Bābu's taking the inscription as belonging to the 11th century, inasmuch as I like to follow Professor Kielhorn, who has assigned this praśasti, on palaeographical grounds, to about 1200 A.D.² We ought to mention another fact, that there are also instances of Brāhmaṇas of these gōtras coming to Bengal from the Madhyadēśa, e.g. we know from the Belava copper-plate grant of Bhōjavarma-dēva that the donee was the great-grandson of Pitāmbara-dēva-śarman, who was an inhabitant of the village Siddhala in North Rādhā, and who came from the Madhyadēśa.³ But such importation from the Madhyadēśa has always been going on, not only into Bengal, but into other parts of India too. We may accordingly conceive that these later immigrants of the Sāvarna gōtra might have mixed up with the local residents of the same gōtra in Bengal. Many passages from the epigraphic records of the mediæval ages may be cited to show the existence of orthodox Brāhmaṇas in Bengal during all the centuries beginning from the 7th to the 11th. A certain section of the scholars of Bengal still hold the tradition of king Ādi-śūra and his importation of Brāhmaṇas as authentic, and Mr. Vincent Smith, who in the 2nd edition of his "Early History of India" (p. 366) doubted the existence of Ādi-śūra, has since changed his opinion and has unfortunately believed in the existence of such a king as ruling "Gaur and the neighbourhood, approximately in A.D. 700, or a little earlier."⁴ From some of the pre-Pāla records of Bengal hitherto discovered we can bring evidence to show the existence of Brāhmaṇas possessed of Vedic culture, e.g. from the copper-plate grant A, amongst the four discovered in the Faridpur District, we learn that the donee⁵ Chandra-svāmin belonged to the Bharadvāja gōtra, was a Vājasaneyin and studied the six Āṅgas; and in grant C of the same group we find Brāhmaṇas of the same gōtra mentioned therein.⁶ We also hope to show from the Tipperah copper-plate of Lōka-nātha (to be later on published in the Epigraphia Indica) and from some other old records of the 5th century A.D., now in our possession, that there were orthodox Brāhmaṇas in Bengal even in the pre-Pāla days. In support of our theory that Bengal was always a home of good Brāhmaṇas we may here refer to a most significant epithet (Brahmakulōdbharā) applied to the land of Varāndrī in Sandhyākara-nandin's Rāma-charita.⁷ This epithet as applied to the land of Varāndrī means "the birth place of Brāhmaṇa families". So, whether before or during the Pāla period, we never find any scarcity of Brāhmaṇas versed in the Vēdas and performing Vedio customs, and we do not think it possible for Ādi-śūtra, supposing he really existed, to have felt the necessity of importing Brāhmaṇas from Kanaṇj or any other place.

The third question we intend to discuss here is—who was Jaya-pāla, king of Kāmarūpa (v. 22)? The Bhāgalpur plate of king Nārāyaṇa-pāla of Bengal¹ discloses the fact that Dēva-pāla's younger brother (not his cousin, as supposed by some scholars) was named Jaya-pāla and that he led an expedition against the king of Prāgyōtisha (Kāmarūpa). We also know that the Jaya-pāla mentioned in one of the stone inscriptions discovered in Sārnāth has been identified with Dēva-pāla's brother.² But this Jaya-pāla is not known to have ever been king of Kāmarūpa. Again, our inscription is at least a century later than Dēva-pāla's time. So the Jaya-pāla of our inscription cannot be identified with Dēva-pāla's brother. In the Introduction to the Rāma-charita,³ Mahāmahōpādhyāya Hara Prasād Śāstri, M.A., C.I.E., has referred to a Jaya-pāla whom also he takes to be Dēva-pāla's cousin (?) and about whom he writes:—"Though Buddhist, he performed his father's funeral ceremony according to Hindu rites, and Umā-pati, a very learned Brāhmaṇa of Kanjivilvi, got the mahādāna in this ceremony." Mr. R. D. Banerji, M.A., has followed the Śāstri and has said the same thing in his newly published paper⁴ on "The Pālas of Bengal." The source of their information is the following verse, which occurs in a commentary on the Chhandōga-parīśiṣṭa, called the Chhandōga-parīśiṣṭa-prakāśa (Eggeling, Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts in the India Office, Vol. I, pp. 92-93):—

Tasmād bhūṣita-sābdhi-bhūmi-valayaḥ śiṣhyōpaśiṣhya-vrajair
vidvan-maulir abhūd Umāpatir iti Prābhākara-grāmaṇiḥ |
kṣhmāpālaj Jayapālataḥ sā hi mahā-śrāddham prabhūtaṁ mahā-
dānaṁ ch-ārthigaṇārhaṇ-ārdra-hṛdayaḥ pratyagrahit puṇyavān ||

In this verse we find no reference to Jaya-pāla's being mentioned as Dēva-pāla's cousin (?) or his performing his father (?) Vāk-pāla's funeral ceremony according to Hindu rites. There is nothing in this verse to show that Jaya-pāla was a Buddhist at all or that, being Buddhist, he was 'Hindu by inclination.' All that we get from this verse is that Jaya-pāla was a king (kṣhmā-pāla) who offered a mahādāna to Umā-pati, who accepted it. This Jaya-pāla mentioned here as a king cannot be Dēva-pāla's brother or cousin (?), who is never known to have been the king of any place. Who is then the Jaya-pāla of the verse quoted above? The answer to this question cannot be definitely given, as we have no data to fix the time of this king from any account in the book Chhandōga-parīśiṣṭa-prakāśa. Our inscription, however, supplies us with the name of a king, Jaya-pāla, who ruled Kāmarūpa, and who is described (in v. 22) as having offered a large gift, while making a tulāpuruṣa-mahādāna, to Prahāsa, a learned Brāhmaṇa of Varēndrī, who, however, (unlike Umā-pati referred to in the verse quoted above) refused to accept it. We may tentatively, but plausibly, connect our Jaya-pāla with the king (kṣhmā-pāla) of the same name in the Chhandōga-parīśiṣṭa-prakāśa, but we cannot at present offer any more evidence so as to be absolutely certain of this identification. In which dynasty are we to place the Jaya-pāla of Kāmarūpa mentioned in this inscription? We know of a dynasty of rulers of Kāmarūpa having their names ending in pāla. They were, as far as they are described in their epigraphic records, descendants of Naraka and Bhaga-datta and were not Buddhist, as the Pāla kings of Bengal were. From the copper-plate grants of king Ratna-pāla⁵ and from the Gauhati copper-plate grant of king Indra-pāla⁶ a list of these Pāla kings of Assam can be obtained in the following order :—(1) Brahma-pāla, (2) Ratna-pāla, (3) Purandara-pāla, and (4) Indra-pāla. Beyond Brahma-pāla the ancestry is carried through an undefined interval to Naraka. Dr. Hoernle on palaeographical grounds thinks that the Gauhati copper-plate grant may be referred to about the middle of the 11th century; but from an examination of the script in the plates published along with his paper¹ we think that the characters belong to the 10th century. However, as our inscription is one of the 11th century, we cannot possibly expect to get Jaya-pāla in the list of Assam kings mentioned above. It may be presumed that the Jaya-pāla of our inscription was also a king of this line in the 11th century, his place being somewhere after Indra-pāla. Towards the latter part of the 11th century, the Chālukya king Vikramāditya VI or Vikramāṅka, the hero of Bilhana's historical poem, the Vikramāṅka-dēva-charita, set out on a series of warlike expeditions with the permission of his father, and he is described as having carried his arms as far as Gauḍa and Kāmarūpa.² In a footnote (p. 31 of the Introduction to this historical poem) Dr. Bühler doubted the assertion that Vikrama defeated the kings of Gauḍa and Kāmarūpa. He, however, states that it might have been a simple raid into those territories with Vikrama's cavalry. My esteemed friend Mr. Ramā Prasād Chanda, B.A., has tried to show³ that this expedition of Vikrama to Gauḍa and Kāmarūpa, though not literally true, was not a fiction. We refer to this only to suggest that Jaya-pāla or some one of his successors, or, less likely, of his predecessors, might have been the king of Kāmarūpa against whom Vikrama led his expedition.

TRANSLATION.

Om ! adoration to bhagavat Vāsudēva !

(Verse 1.) May that Chaturbhūja (the four-armed Vishṇu), the *kalpa-tree*⁵ to all seekers of the four (human) ends, who is regarded as the source of the universe and as the author of the four yugas (ages) and the four *bhūtas*⁶ (beings), who has ordained the four castes and the four āśramas (stages of life), and whose prowess the words of the four Vēdas uttered by the four-faced god (Brahmā) proclaim, protect you.

(V. 2.) Of those who had their birth in the family of Aṅgiras,⁷ sprung from the body of Him (Vishṇu) in His Hiranya-garbha form, and who could excel in declaring a common lineage with Bharadvāja, the home in later births, dwelt in by families held in high esteem by Āryas, was a place by the name of Tarkārī, within the limits of Śrāvastī.

(V. 3.) Where the columns of smoke, rising up from the homa of Brāhmaṇas practising oblations, frequently repeated in the sacrificial and domestic rites which had grown out of (their) acquaintance with the Vēdas and the smṛitis, glittered (dark) in the sky, white with their fame, like massed lines of moss playfully floating on an ocean of milk.

(V. 4.) The village known as Bāla-grāma,⁸ in the country of Puṇḍra, the ornament of Varēndrī, was derived from that (place), being separated (from it) by Sakatī.

⁷ One of the ten Prajāpatīs born from Brahmā. Cf. Manu, I, 35. His family has three distinct branches—Kēvalāhṅgīrasa, Gautamāhṅgīrasa, and Bhāradvājāhṅgīrasa.

⁸ The word lat-prasūta literally means "grown out of it." Bāla-grāma, it seems, as a new (bāla) village (grāma), a colony of Tarkārī, Sakatī (a river or place ?) intervening between them.

(V. 5.) In that (village), as in the ocean, which is the sole repository of innumerable jewels, of manifold virtues, since each of those Brāhmaṇas was constantly full of conceit of superiority as being the resting-place of learning, (noble) descent, and austerities, no particular one (amongst them) ever came to be specially regarded by the local people.

(V. 6.) The place called Śiyambaka, (situated) close to it, became (the home) of the eminent Brāhmaṇas devoted to their own duties, with tranquil minds, sprung from the family of the Paṇḍitas belonging to the eastern part of that (village, Bāla-grāma), only because they desired for sequestered residence.

(V. 7.) There lived of yore in this (place Śiyambaka) Brāhmaṇas, possessed of innumerable virtues, who had generally attained perfection in austerities, discipline and in their own scriptures. Two or three (of them), who were upholding the (prescribed) rules for the maintenance of their gōtra (line) and were competent to dispel the doubts of the people in matters concerning the meaning of Śruti and Smṛiti, have not even yet suffered extinction.

(V. 8.) In that (place) there arose a person (named) Paśu-pati, revered by all men, who was, like Lord Paśu-pati (Śiva) himself, *bhūti-bhṛit*¹ as well as kāma-jit.² This man, adept in performing the six³ duties, carried aloft by his own noble deeds the moon-shine of his fame (to a height) which could not be transcended by the rays of the sun.

(V. 9.) There was then born, throwing lustre upon the family, his son, of the name of Sāhila, who achieved by his own merits a position not even attainable by the other worthies⁴ of the family.

(V. 10.) To (the memory of) his father he made here (the image of) Viṣṇu, with the name Sāhilāditya and a tank of the name of Vaichunda to (the memory of) his mother, with a grant of land (to maintain them).

(V. 11.) Just as, by reason of identity of nature, *vinaya*⁵ (discipline) is produced by the conquest of all the senses, so also was a son of excellent qualities, named Manōratha, begotten by him, who was (himself a man) of superior attainments, and who had (thus) his manōratha (desires) fulfilled.

(V. 12.) By him was begotten a son, an abode of virtues, most expert (in performing) pious deeds, who was known amongst men by the name of Sucharita, a name which corresponded to the fact. Properly tended by his faithful wife, Nitulā, he passed his time in happiness, his household affairs well-regulated.

(V. 13.) This virtuous Nitulā, of pure extraction, gave birth to a son (named) Tapōnidhi, (who was) sinless (lit. forsaken by sins), the root (lit. primary cause) of the glory of his family (to be enhanced) by future accretions of the good qualities of his descendants.

² "Subduing all passions" and "defeating Kāma (the god of Love)" respectively.

³ Cf. Manu, I, 88. A Brāhmaṇa is also called a śaṭkarman—cf. Amara (II, 7, 4), Asau śaṭkarmā yāgādibhir yutaḥ.

⁴ The word prabarka is of rare use. It is counted along with the words meaning "the best"—cf. Halāyudha, Abhidhāna-ratnamālā; IV, 5.

(V. 14.) Who else could it possibly be, were it not Tapōnidhi,¹ that attained perfection amongst all tenets, in those of (Kumārila-)Bhaṭṭa,² was himself the maker of the elixir of good maxims, and was (like) the root to the sprouts of excellent practices.

(V. 15.) Like unto Bhavānī,³ the consort of Bhava (Śiva), was Svargā, pre-eminent in austerities, the consort of that Tapōnidhi. From her sprung a son Kārttikēya (by name), who was to use his energies in performing manifold acts (propitiatory) to the gods.

(V. 16.) He, the foremost of śrōtrīyas, by whom the ocean of the Mīmāṃsā (philosophy) was narrowed into "the impression of a cow's hoof," came to be famous amongst men as the only remover of the doubts about the meaning of the Smṛitis.

(V. 17.) Love for truth, fame diffused over the three worlds, sinless course in house-keeping, absence of pride even in (the possession of) superior qualities, faithful reposing in the Śruti, and steady devotion towards Hari—who, indeed, on this earth, is able to describe separately the various qualities he possessed?

(V. 18.) He obtained for his wife a lady named Kaliparvā, who sanctified both lines (viz. both of her parents and her husband), (who was) the daughter of Aṅgada, the son of Aja-mīśra, the foremost of poets and sprung from the Kuṭumba-palli family.

(V. 19.) Like an indigent person coming by a treasure, she, the great-granddaughter of Viṣṇu, though (blessed) with (other) worthy sons, was long overjoyed in having, through him (Kārttikēya), Prahāsa for a son, (a son) capable of performing all the ceremonies concerning the next world. His marks (of body), the auspicious effects of which were occasioned by the ascendancy of the planets (at the time of his birth), indicated clearly from the beginning that he was to have a lofty position in future, (to be) a man of faith (in the scriptures) and (to be) of generous disposition.

(V. 20.) His unsurpassed knowledge in logic and in the Tantras and also in the Dharma-sāstras, his truthfulness, freedom from avarice and other (virtues) were no matter of (mere) eulogy for him, because of their actual presence;—(all) this was known from the popular regard and the bending of the rows of heads of prominent kings (in obeisance) and other such (causes). Or else, how could the statements of the good be false, (for would they not have thus) become the subjects of derision among contemporary people?

(V. 21.) Though settling the dubious points (of law) by means of thousands of arguments, he had had his balance⁴ of justice, with its upper-part⁵ never unsupported (i.e. always ready to weigh justice).

² The celebrated representative of the Mīmāṃsā doctrine, the author of the Tantra-vārttika, the Ślōka-vārttika and other Mīmāṃsā-kārikās. Cf. verse 23 of the prastāvi of Bhaṭṭa-Bhavadēva. (Above, Vol. VI, p. 206.)

³ Bhavānī (Pārvatī) may also be regarded as tapōdhikā, inasmuch as she performed very severe austerities for obtaining, as her husband, Bhava (Śiva), who was himself a tapō-nidhi. Their issue was also named Kārttikēya (the god), who by his missile (śakti) did a good service to the gods (dēva-kārya) by vanquishing their enemy, the demon Tāraka.

(V. 22.) Though excessively solicited, he did not, by any means, accept nine hundred gold coins and a śaisana (a grant of land) yielding an income of a thousand (coins) from Jaya-pāla-dēva, the king of Kāmarūpa, of unimaginable glory, while (the latter was) making a *tulā-purusha*¹ gift.

(V. 23.) There is indeed for parents after their death no need of the (funeral) service done by their own sons, if they could duly quit their life in the Ganges (lit. the river of the gods). But, wishing to absolve himself from his own debts (to them), he performed for them what ceremonies, concerning the next world, were (enjoined).

(V. 24.) Making repairs of two temples (which were) in ruins in this village, he founded in (memory of) his father an image of Trivikrama, and (excavated) this² tank in (memory of) his mother.

(V. 25.) He, always fixed in righteous ways, erected an alms-house, and, having dedicated with all proper rites a superb image of Amara-nātha in this white temple of great height (surmounted) by a picturesque crest and with all (customary division into) compartments, sought protection only with the god Vāsudēva.

(V. 26.) He laid out a beautiful garden in Śīyamba for this deity and (dedicated) a piece of land measuring seven drūpas in Śīrisha-puñja for the celebration of pūjā (daily worship), etc.

(V. 27.) Then, having passed the fiftieth year, he, with all his desires realised, placed his sons in charge of household affairs, and, beholding the world as a dream and having given up all attachments, resorted to the edge of the Ganges.

(V. 28.) It is only when the poet is himself sought out by the embellishments of his art (poetry) that he shines abidingly; but the excellences of a poem sought³ by the poet himself (lit. by his own mouth) perish all at once.

(V. 29.) Just as a lover (paints) with rapt attention his own mistress by means of colour-decorations,⁴ so also did Sōmēśvara, the Māgadha artist, incise (with rapt attention) this praśasti by means of a division of letters.

No. 27.—COPPER-PLATE INSCRIPTION OF GOVINDACHANDRA-DEVA; SAMVAT 1186.

By PANDIT HIRANANDA SASTRI, M.A., M.O.L., LUCKNOW.

The plate which bears this record is single and measures $16\frac{1}{4}'' \times 13\frac{1}{4}''$. A slightly raised rim goes all round it and there is a circular hole in the middle of the top end, which measures $\frac{1}{2}''$ in diameter and is apparently meant for passing a ring of the seal now not forthcoming. Except at the proper right upper corner, which is slightly broken and has taken off a part of the initial letter—probably the symbol for om—the plate together with the record incised on it

³ I.e. an artificial poem.

⁴ There is pun in the words varṇa-dhakti and alikkat. Varṇa is both 'pigment for painting' and 'letters'; dhakti, 'variegated decoration' and 'division.' The root likh means both 'to paint' and 'to inscribe.'

is very well preserved. It was in possession of the Rājā of Itanuja, a Taluqdar of the Lucknow district in the United Provinces, and was brought to my notice by my friend Pandit Ganesh Bihari Misra of Lucknow, who got it for loan exhibition in the Provincial Museum, where it has now been deposited along with other documents of the kind.

The inscription which this plate bears, I believe, has not been yet published. It is written in the Sanskrit language and the Dēvanāgarī alphabet. The grant which it records is similar to other grants issued by Gōvindachandra-Dēva of the Gāhādwal dynasty which were published in this journal long ago. In all it has 24 lines of writing. Of these the first 11 give the genealogy of the donor and the usual introduction. This portion of the grant is the same as in other grants which have already been published and translated, and it will be superfluous to reproduce it here. It is the second part, which begins with the end of the 11th line, that concerns us, and I shall notice it below, giving a transcript of it, omitting, of course, the imprecatory stanzas that are too well known to need to be published or translated.

The peculiarities in writing which one will notice in this inscription are not many. Nor are they very extraordinary. The same is the case with grammatical inaccuracies to be met with in it. The sibilants and the symbols for b and v are, as is the case in other inscriptions of this king, used indiscriminately in several places. Amra is written in line 14 as -āmvra-, a form which gave rise to the Hindi noun āmb or ām, meaning 'mango.' Mistakes like -Vāṇā-rasyāyām for Vārāṇasyām, which we see in line 15, are common to the class of priests who live on the charity of others and let grammar take care of itself.

The object of the inscription is to record that Gōvindachandra-Dēva, the ruler of Kanauj, after bathing in the Ganges at Benares and performing various religious rites and ceremonies, on Friday, the 2nd tīthi of the bright half of Mārgga(śirsha) of the year 1186 granted the village of Kapāsi in the Maṅgalajaṭhi pattalā to Nānā Śarman, the son of Ṭhakkura Sri-chandra and grandson of Jayanta, a Brāhmaṇa of the Sāṇḍilya gōtra, whose three pravaras were Śāṇḍilya, Asita and Daivala.

Along with the taxes bhāga, bhōga, kara and pravaṇikara it specifies (line 19) a turushka-danda. This term has been explained in different ways. Dr. Konow¹ thinks that it was a tax imposed on Muhammadans and says that Musalmān settlers remained in the country about the Jamna from the days of Mahmūd and down to the end of the 12th century A.D. In other words he takes it to be a Jizya which was levied by a Hindū ruler, like a Moslem bigot, from the "infidels." Hindūs as a rule seldom showed a prosecuting spirit such as was evinced by Aurangzeb or other zealots of the Moslem faith, who imposed Jizya on the Hindūs; and it is not very likely that Muhammadan settlers penetrated the villages like the one which forms the object of this grant, so as to justify the mention of this tax in this epigraph. I am of opinion that turushka-danda was probably the tax levied for the purpose of checking the imminent danger to the ancient civilization and religion threatened by the Turushkas, or the Turks who poured down like an irresistible torrent from the North-Western Frontier. The amount collected through this tax was perhaps utilized for paying the invaders off, whenever necessary, or for meeting military expenditure incurred in fighting Muhammadans. That Gōvindachandra should levy such a tax is significant; for in the Sarnāth *prasasti*² he is eulogized as "a heavenly champion deputed by Śiva to protect Benares from the wicked Turushka warriors." But it would show how imminent the peril was felt at the time to be.

I am unable to locate the places mentioned in the document. The name of Kapāsi village is known to us from three votive inscriptions of Sāñchi.³ As there were more than one Kapāsi village¹ (kārpāsi-grāma), the identification of the Maṅgalajāthi pattalā alone would help us in locating it with certainty. I am not aware if that is named elsewhere.

The inscription was written by Thakkura Viśvarūpa, who is evidently identical with the writer of one of the Kamauli plate grants,² viz., one dated in Samvat 1184 of the same king.

³ Here follow eight of the customary imprecatory verses.

No. 28.—INSCRIPTIONS AT NARENDRA.

BY LIONEL D. BARNETT.

Narēndra is a village in the Dhārwar tāluka of the Dhārwar District, Bombay. It is situated near the highroad from Dhārwar to Belgaum, at about four and a half miles north-west-by-north from Dhārwar, and is shown in the Indian Atlas quarter sheet 41, S.E. (1904), in lat. 15° 30', long. 75° 2'. Dr. Fleet gives me the opinion, with which I agree, that the general purport of the records shows clearly that the original name of this place, down to at least the twelfth century, was Kundūr, and the town was the chief town of the Kundūr five-hundred district: with this complete change of name from Kundūr to Narēndra he compares the well-known case of the ancient Purigere, Puligere, which is the modern Lakshmeshwar, and the case of Kummudavāḍa, which is the modern Kalbhāvi.¹

There are four inscriptions at Narēndra. Two of them are so much damaged that the contents of them are undecipherable: it can only be said that they belong to the twelfth century or closely thereabouts.² I edit the other two from ink-impressions placed at my disposal by Dr. Fleet.

A.—OF THE TIME OF VIKRAMADITYA VI AND THE KADAMBA JAYAKESIN II: A.D. 1125.

This record is on a stone tablet standing on the right of a temple of Mallikārjuna in the field Survey No. 3 of Kumbāpūr or Kumbhāpūr, a hamlet of Narēndra, between Narēndra and the highroad, not shown in the Indian Atlas sheet.

At the top of the stone there are sculptures: in the centre, inside a shrine, a linga on an abhisheka-stand, with a priest standing to it and apparently pouring a libation over it; on the right, a cow and calf, with a scimitar above them and a tall lamp-stand behind them; on the left, the bull Nandi, kneeling towards the linga, with a similar lamp-stand behind him; on the upper right, the sun; and on the upper left, the moon. The area covered by the inscription measures from 2 ft. 6 in. to 2 ft. 8½ in. in width by 6 ft. 10 in. in height. The record is unfortunately not very well preserved, and does not lend itself to any satisfactory reproduction: in several places the surface of the stone is sadly weather-worn, making decipherment uncertain and in some cases impossible. The difficulties raised thereby, however, affect only the reconstruction in full of the verses: the historical, geographical, and practical part of the record can all be made out satisfactorily.

The characters are Kanarese, of the period to which the record refers itself: their average height is about ¾ in. —The language is Old Kanarese verse and prose, with the exception of the introductory Sanskrit stanza. The vocabulary contains several points of interest: 'we may notice dhavalīravan, l. 10; chāga-jaga-jhampāṇ jhampāḷ-āchāryyan, l. 18, tyāga-jaga-jhampī jhampāḷ-āchāryya, l. 99, and tyāga-jaga-jhampāṇ=arddh-āṅgi, l. 104, on which see Dr. Fleet's remarks in his paper on the Bhāṇḍūp plate, above, vol. XII, p. 251; jimkarisal, l. 22; arttu, l. 24, which appears to belong to Kittel's ār, 3, of which only the infinitives āra and āre and the verbal noun āru hitherto have been noted; elare, l. 32, which seems to be the simple verb from which is formed the derivative elarchu; bhuvana-bhumbhukan, l. 36, a phrase found elsewhere, which still awaits explanation; dhagildum, l. 52, which must be connected with dhagil and dhaga; kaneyam, l. 61, "younger brother"; Dvāpāra, l. 69, for Dvāpara; bil-vadde, l. 70, on which see note; and Himyaṇḥaḥa, to suit the metre, instead of the usual Himāḥaḥa, l. 90.—The orthography presents few points worthy of notice. The ancient letter ḷ is preserved only in negalḍam (l. 47), and elsewhere becomes r before consonants (negardd-, ll. 15, 16, 34, 64; negardda, l. 58; negardlan, ll. 60, 66; negartteyam, l. 19; negartte, ll. 36, 65, 87; nōrppaḍedu, l. 43; nōrppaḍam, l. 54; poḡartteyam, l. 72; garḍde, l. 113), and ḷ between vowels. The Sanskrit l between vowels becomes ḷ usually, but not invariably. Final m often becomes v before vowels, as in l. 14; and intervocalic m in the case-ending -mam also may change to v. The upadhmāṇiya occurs in rajaḥ-, l. 57, yaṣaḥ-, l. 64, and antaḥpur-, l. 83. A consonant is doubled before r in sur-āḍḍriḡe, l. 54, dhāttriyoḷ, l. 65, and vajjra, l. 100. Initial p is changed to h in Halasige, l. 85 (verse); but curiously enough we find in the prose portion, l. 110, the ancient spelling Palasige.

The object of the inscription is to record a grant of land made by the Kādamba Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Jayakēśin II and his senior queen Maḷala-dēvi, the daughter of Jayakēśin's suzerain the Chālukya king Vikramāditya VI, for the maintenance of a temple of Śiva founded by a certain Danḍanāyaka Siṅgarasa (also styled Siṅgaṇa or Siṃha) in Kundūr, the modern Narēndra. The inscription, after the prelude (verse 1) and a blessing upon the "Lord of the Western Ocean," i.e. the Kādamba ruler of Goa (verse 2), sketches the history of the Kādambas, beginning with their mythical origin from the sweat of Śiva (verse 3). The first of them that it names is Chattaya-dēva (Shashṭhadēva), who took Kavaḍi-dvīpa and many other provinces, made (it is said) a bridge of ships to Ceylon, and imposed tribute on barbarians (verses 4-6); he sailed with great pomp from Gōve to Surāshṭra (verse 7), and received in marriage a daughter of Mummuri of Thāneya with a rich dowry (verses 11-12).¹ His son was Jayakēśin [II], who was also glorious and liberal (verses 13-14). Jayakēśin fought against and overcame seven potentates (verse 15), and gave his daughter in marriage to a neighbouring king named Permāḍi (verses 16-17); he subdued Kirttirāja of Banavase,² and transferred his glory (?) to Permāḍi (verse 18); and he repelled an assault by the Chōḷa king (verse 19). He had a valiant son, *Guvala-dēva*³ (verse 21), whose younger brother Vijayāditya in course of time became king (verse 22). The latter was succeeded on the throne by his son Jayakēśin [II] (verses 23-25), to whom Vikramāditya [VI] gave his daughter Maḷala-dēvi in marriage (verses 26-33). Then begins the donor's pedigree: Lakshmana, or Lakshmarāja, was a high minister and Danḍanāyaka in the service of Vikramāditya [VI], who gave him a commission in the household of his daughter Maḷala-dēvi (verses 36-7). Lakshmana had four sons, *Bhavyarāja*⁴ (who took to wife Gaṅgā-dēvi), Sōma, Lakshmana, and Siṅgarasa (Siṅgaṇa or Siṃha). Siṅgarasa married Maḷala-dēvi (of course not the queen of that name), and begat Boppa-dēva (verses 38-56). He built a temple to Śiva, styled Lakshmaṇēśvara (apparently in honour of his father), on the southern side of Kundūr, in the Halasige nāḷ of the Kuntaḷa kingdom (verses 58-62); and in the reign of Vikramāditya [VI], in Saka 1047, Jayakēśin and Maḷala-dēvi, ruling over the nine-hundred of the Koṅkaṇ, the twelve-thousand of Palasige (Halasige), the five-hundred of Payve, and the lakh and a quarter of Kavaḍi-dvīpa, granted for the maintenance of this temple certain specified estates in Kundūr and the neighbourhood (lines 93 to end).

² This appears to be Kirttivarman II, son of Tailapa I, the Kādamba ruler of Hangal; he was governing Banavāsi about A.D. 1070.

⁴ This name corresponds to the Kanarese Bāvayya.

The details of the date of this record (l. 108) are : Śaka 1047 ; the cyclic year Viśvāvasu ; the thirteenth day of the dark fortnight of Bhādrapada ; Śukra-vāra (Friday) ; a "great tithi," being a Yugādi. Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks :—"This Viśvāvasu samvatsara was the Śaka year 1047 expired, A.D. 1125-26. For this year the given tithi, Bhādrapada kṛishṇa 13, answers quite regularly to Friday, 28 August, A.D. 1125,¹ on which day it ended at about 17 h. 55 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain)=5.55 P.M. The mention of the tithi as 'a great tithi, a Yugādi,' refers to the fact that, for some reason or other which is not apparent, the tithi Bhādrapada kṛishṇa 13 is always known as Kaliyug-ādi, 'the beginning of the Kali Age,' though the tithi on which each of the Ages and the Manvantaras and the Kalpa itself really began is Chaitra śukla 1 : for anything done in celebration of the Kali-yugādi tithi the tithi has to be taken with the day on which it is current during the time known as aparāhṇa, 'the (early) afternoon,' which is the time from about 18 to 24 ghāṭis after mean sunrise,² that is, from about 1.12 to 3.36 P.M. : and this was the case on the present occasion."

Of the places mentioned several may be identified. The nād of Palasige or Halasige had for its capital the town of that name, which is now known as Halsi, and is situate in lat. 15° 32', long. 74° 36', in the Khānāpūr tāluka of the Belgaum District. Payve, or Hayve, has not yet been located. The Kavaḍi-dvīpa lakh-and-a-quarter, mentioned elsewhere as Kāpardika-dvīpa (Journ. Bomb. Br. R. As. Soc., Vol. IX, p. 272), may be taken as denoting the possessions which the Śilāhāras had had in the southern parts of the Konkan : the name was derived from that of Kapardin I, the original ancestor of the Śilāhāras of Thāṇa and those parts. Kundūr, now Narēndra, we have already mentioned. Kumbhāragere, "the Potters' Tank" (l. 112), is perhaps to be sought in or near the hamlet Kumbāpūr or Kumbhāpūr, where the record stands, three-quarters of a mile to the south-west of Narēndra. Dāravāḍa (l. 113) is the modern Dhārwar ; it is noteworthy that this name is here written very clearly with the unaspirated d,³ whereas in modern usage it always has the aspirated dh. Navilūr (l. 114) appears on the Bombay Survey as "Navlūr" and on the Indian Atlas sheet 41 (1852) as "Nowloor" ; it lies some two miles south-east of Dhārwar, and seven miles in the same direction from Narēndra. Kauvalagēri (l. 115) is given on the Bombay Survey as "Kowlgeri," on the Indian Atlas (ut supra) as "Kowlgeeree" ; it is between six and seven miles east-by-south from Narēndra. The other local places still await identification. Ānoya-sundil (l. 114 ; and B, l. 51) means "the Elephant's Trunk" : whether this name denotes a village, or something else such as a tank or a large sculptured stone, is not apparent. Gōvo (l. 11) is of course the modern Goa. Surāshṭra (ibid.) is Kāthiāwar. And Jayantīpura (l. 95) is another name of Banawāsi in North Kānara. Thāṇēm or Thāṇa, more usually known as Sthānaka in that period, seems to be mentioned as Thāṇeya in verse 11.⁴

For a full account of the Kādambas of Goa, with a genealogical table and references to various unpublished records, see Dr. Fleet's Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts, in the Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency, vol. 1, part 2, pp. 564-72. An inscription at Guḍikatṭi, Nos. 147 and 164 in Professor Kielhorn's List of the Inscriptions of Southern India, vol. VII above, appendix, presents dates in A.D. 1007 for Shashṭhadēva I and A.D. 1052 for Jayakēśin I : but the record has not been published, and the first date is perhaps a questionable one. For the Gūvala who is mentioned in line 30 (verse 21) of our present inscription A, we have a date in A.D. 1098 from an inscription at Kādarōḷi in the Sampgaum tāluka of the Belgaum District, which mentions him as a Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara, a feudatory of Vikramāditya VI, who was ruling the Palasige twelve-thousand province at his capital of Gōve (Goa) : this record, too, has not yet been published.¹ An inscription at Lakshmēshwar, Kielhorn's List, No. 235, appears to give a date in A.D. 1147 for Jayakēśin II ; but this record, also, has not been published. ¹ Metre, Utpalamālā.² This final anusvāra seems unnecessary.³ Metre, Champakamālā.⁴ Metre, Utpalamālā.⁵ See below, lines 91, 93, and 108.⁶ Here follows on the stone the symbol of the śaṅkha.⁷ About two akṣaras are here illegible.⁸ Read uttama-.⁹ Metre, Mattēbhavikṛīḍita.¹⁰ Metre, Mahāśragdharā.¹¹ Metre, Champakamālā.

(Verse 9)—Verily Chatta, whose badges of office (were worn) on the brows of kings, gave richly to the companies of Brāhmans, as this world knows, brilliant *tulā-purushas*¹ in countless quantities, (and) many towns of fame.

(Verse 10)—As many crores of sacrifices as there are, so many did he with joy of soul fully perform; as many brilliant crores of largesse as are (possible), so many did Chattaya-dēva bestow on Brāhmans.

(Verse 11)—When the exalted valour of Chattayadēva in his sport upon the ocean reached him, Mummuri of the famous Thāneya,² hearing of it, came into his presence, saw him, led him to his palace, and displayed intense affection; and he bestowed on him his daughter with much pomp, and gave to his son-in-law five lakhs of gold.

(Verse 12)—As though saying: "to what other man that will repay me again with corresponding kindness, rather than this Lord of the Ocean,³ can I do it?" king Mummuri duly bestowed a garland on king Chattaya amidst the approval of the world, bearing . . . as a brilliant example of liberality and a jhampal-āchārya; thus who are so happy on the earth?

(Verse 13)—The son of Chattayadēva, who was thus illustrious, bathed the goddesses of the regions of space with gushes of water (?) as they played together in a band at their water-sports in the swelling ocean of the nectar of his own immense fame; (and he bathed) the elephants of the regions of space in a stream of waters of abundant dāna.⁴

(Verse 14)—Causing many sacrifices to be performed, bestowing many estates together with many tulā-purushas all on Brāhmans, joyfully did Jayakēsin [I] display his glory.

(Verse 15)—Saying proudly: "I have now great strength of arm and strength of foot-soldiers," king Jayakēsin, marching to the attack on the hill
. . . and putting to flight seven who had advanced⁵ to make war, raised in the capitals of those hostile kings the golden scabbard announcing that the foe must turn his back.

(Verse 16)—When the monarch Permāḍidēva, on the borders of his land, came with joy, he went to meet him then, gave him his own beloved daughter with pouring of water, lavishly bestowed on him abundant ornaments, many . . . damsels, a treasury, and wedding-gifts without count, and became illustrious as a tree of desire unique on earth.

After this :—

(Verse 17)—Ho! King Permāḍi . . . coming with joy to the wedding . . . as many lords of provinces came to know him (and) were struck with surprise, at once gladly made a diadem: saying this, raising with excitement . . . strong in the arm . . . the Sovereign of the Konkan.

(Verse 18)—Having made Kirtirāja of Banavase obedient to his will, the Lord of the Ocean himself . . . [transferred?] duly his glory to Permāḍi.

Besides this :—

(Verse 19)—King Jayakēsin, the Lord of the Sea, speedily checked the Chōḷa, who approached recklessly, as the ocean streams over its bounds . . . after due appreciation (?), say, into whose mind does this unique terror penetrate without causing agitation within those bounds of the world?

¹ A tulā-purusha is a gift of gold, etc., equal in weight to the weight of the donor.

⁵ This translation is tentative: the verb jimkarisu is not found in the dictionary.

(Verse 20)—Shewing without delay that he is lord of his province . . . he will display in common . . . thus after preparation he has taken it in hand; bid in truth to come : with these words coming and beholding the common sight . . . greatness . . . say . . . of the Emperor of the Konkan.

(Verse 21)—To this lord of earth Jayakēsin [I] was 'born Gūvaladēva, a hero of mighty prowess, as is born a lion; and he with the fang of his sword . . . checking that elephant the great lord . . . made the pearl-string on the top of his temples into an ornament for the goddesses of the regions of space.

(Verse 22)—When, as the *mada-vattī*¹ . . . was contracted, with mighty boldness the lines of infantry in the armies of his friends advanced, (and) the troops of the empire of righteousness displayed themselves in beauty, on the summit of the bright eastern mountain that is the Kādamba race . . . rejoicing appeared his younger brother, king Vijayādityadēva.

(Verse 23)—Of this Vijayāditya there was an illustrious son, a seat of universal fortune, praised by the peoples of the ocean-girdled earth, king Jayakēsin [II].

(Verse 24)—This lord of earth Jayakēsin in his glory vorily impressed upon the world the stamp of the brilliant immense prowess of his arm, (shewing) that he was the Jayakēsin ("Lion of Victory") himself.

(Verse 25)—The glory, radiant in extreme brilliance, of the subduing dart of the sovereign . . . was a mirror to the faces of the goddesses of the regions of space; his might comforted multitudes of suppliants standing at the head of the world [scil. Brāhmanas]; his strength of arm was extolled by warriors : in view of this, what can furnish (further) praise to king Jayakēsin's eminence?

(Verse 26)—On hearing duly, as far as he could hear, of the brilliant form of Jayakēsin who was thus illustrious, of the glory of him who was beloved of the world, of the . . . of him who was a *bhumbhuka*² of the universe, of the prowess of him who was a lion to the great valorous elephants his foes, the Emperor of Kuntala, born of Hari's body, out of esteem for his marvellous fame—

(Verse 27)—(said) : "To me formerly Jayakēsin with gladness of spirit . . . so I will duly render this world fruitful to Jayakēsin by praising him for ever."³

(Verse 28)—With these words, displaying his majesty, extending himself to his (full) height as if he were actually the Golden Mountain [Mōru] that had come into his presence, having washed in a jewelled pavilion the lotus-feet (of Jayakēsin) with true delight, while the prepared bright stream of water from the pitchers glistened, the Lord of Earth bestowed his daughter upon that crest-jewel of princes.

Thereupon :—

(Verse 29)—Hoaps of gold that might be called—oh, what a marvel!—peaks of the Golden Mountain, (and) great . . . such that it might be said that a number of royal Mount Rōhas [Rōhanas] was here at hand, (and) a number of crores of fine elephants and horses surpassing Śakra's fiery elephant (and) the greatness of Uchchais-śravas, did the Lord of Kuntala appropriately bestow on his son-in-law.

² The meaning of this word is not clear : it seems to signify "ornament."

³ This translation is not quite satisfactory. Perhaps a better sense could be made if we alter pogald to pogal, whereby we can render the words : "I will duly reward Jayakēsin so that the world shall ever praise."

(Verse 30)—In the same manner as flourished Fortune and Hari, Śiva and the Mountain's Daughter, so flourished Jayakēsin and Mañjaladēvi in affection, seats of immense happiness, amidst the praises of the earth.

(Verse 31)—The beauty of this Mañjaladēvi on earth surpasses (that of) Rambhā and Tilōttamā, much more so (that of) mortal woman; it is charming, look you, verily a hundred times.

(Verse 32)—“ This is a sea of the nectar of loveliness that has been beheld; this grace is the play of the Moon's brows; a regular expansion of beauty . . . verily, look you, a wealth of jasmine; this is Sarasvatī's natal place ”: in these words people [extol] the abundance of the greatness of Mañjaladēvi's beauty that has arisen in the world.

(Verse 33)—“ The greatness of her grace excels twice (that of) the mistress of the Mind-born [Kāma], when one reflects; the greatness of her virtue is twelve times more than (that of) Sitā; the greatness of her beauty is a radiant tree of desire that . . . the world for glory ”: thus did the world in one band praise Mañjaladēvi, whose face was a full-moon.

(Verse 34)—The much-praised famous Emperor Vikrama, [having given] a jewel of woman, sharing enjoyment . . . pleased with the Kādamba monarch mighty of prowess, flourished with splendour in association (with him); radiant with true glory fostering the Kādamba kingdom, [he reigned over his] people in contentment.

(Verse 35)—Now constantly (he was) careful of the genius of his kingdom, as though bidding it match the prosperity of the kingdom of this Mañjaladēvi and of Jayakēsin renowned for peerless merit.

(Verse 36)—“ . . . what other battle-lords are there, who are descended in due order (of lineage), proved in polity, reliable, obedient to truth, when one considers? ”—with these words, with his daughter the Lord of the Earth gladly gave a commission to Lakshmarāja, saying “ without speakin^g ^{hunc} otherwise,¹ in the strong-chamber of thy mighty arm . . . ”

(Verse 37)—When the lord, the Rāma of the Chālukyas, gave the commission, while the earth extolled Mañjaladēvi . . . with delight coming in company . . . as the devout . . . the daughter of the Mountain-Lord and the Monarch of Earth [Śiva] appearing to sight . . . in the kingdom of heaven.²

(Verse 38)—Favoured in speech, favoured in the greatness of his native intelligence, favoured also in that his men burned up³ in Bharata a withering army of foes, favoured in . . . purity, in every respect favoured of the emperor in very sooth—happy was Lakshmana the Daṇḍanāyaka.

(Verse 39)—[The son of] this illustrious general Lakshmana, when one reflects, in his turn now surpassed in [profundity] of character the ocean, in lofty estate the divine mountain, in the quality of firmness the earth; he was in his turn truly a noble person; how appeared in turn the singular . . . of Bhavyarāja, who was a benefactor to the good!

(Verse 40)—There also flourished on earth this illustrious Bhavyarāja's high-spirited wife, a unique purifying influence in the triple world, abundant in streams of stainless knowledge, Gaṅgādēvi.

³ For the change of grammatical subject cf. Kittel's Grammar, p. 420.

(Verse 41)—A mate of Sarasvatī in the development of her learning, a Ganges in her purity, a daughter of brilliant culture in her use of ornament : thus like the Ganges . . .

(Verse 42)—The high estate of those who walk by night, the earth on the tip of the tusk of a vicious boar (belonging) to a savage hordsman, or Sāvitrī who lost her perfect firmness in delight at the fresh pollen arising from stately lotuses—are these equal in noble conduct to the illustrious Gaṅgādēvi on this earth ?¹

(Verse 44)—Having attained learning in the traditions of grammatical science, mastered the meaning of the study of the great science of logic, become eminent in the series of the science of literary composition, skilful in the heights of Śakra's science,³ . . . a very Bhārgava in the world, and having his tongue purified by the honoured wealth of Sarasvatī, the Daṇḍanāyaka Sōma flourished on the earth.

(Verse 45)—An object of honour to the three worlds—Bhavyarāja's younger brother—say, what an archer!—Lakshmaṇa's elder brother—a possessor of most exalted purity—is he not more holy even than Gaṅgā's son [Bhishma] ?—peer to his own name, valorous, Siṃha's elder brother : this series of titles was realised in the lord Sōma in this part of the earth.

(Verse 46)—Arising in glorious play in the vast Milk-Ocean of the most famous Kuntā Gōtra,—a possessor of fullness of hands [or : moon-beams], of stainless beauty, of delight for the eyes of the world, of well-ordered conduct, of sages' praise—has not Sōma ever filled the world with the abundant moonlight of his fame ?

(Verse 47)—Of this Daṇḍanāyaka Sōma, who was thus illustrious as a subject of dignity, a younger brother, the fortunate Daṇḍanāyaka Siṃha, a bee to Śiva's lotus-feet renowned in the three worlds, skilled in all the sciences extolled by the people of the world, active in purest righteousness, following the course of Manu, attained to distinction.

(Verse 48)—Was he not indeed illustrious on the ocean-encircled earth, a Patañjali in grammatical science, a Shāḍānana⁴ in the six systems of logic, an Omniscient One in the multitude of teachings of literary composition praised by the whole world, a distinguished Chāṇakya in the whole series of exalted polity, a platform for the play of the dance of the brilliant goddess of Speech ?

(Verse 49)—When the whole world praised him as he rode upon the lordly horse of the exceedingly difficult literary sentiments,⁵ as though he were a Rāvanta,⁶ truly the Daṇḍanāyaka Siṃha was a skilful man, an ornament of generals.

⁵ This also means : "a horse of very difficult temper."

⁶ Rāvanta was son of Sūrya and Saṁjñā; the legend is given in the Mārkaṇḍeya-purāṇa, lxxviii. 21 ff. and cviii. 7 ff. Cf. JAS Beng., new ser., 1909, vol. V, p. 391.

(Verse 50)—When Siṅga's fame met him, the Mātaṅga with dishevelled locks from terror *alvum lazabat*¹; in view of this, can carping speech ascend the illustrious Siṃharāja's elephant?

(Verse 51)—Of old the Trident-bearer [Śiva] in sooth flourished in the course of the Kṛita Age; in the Trētā Age flourished Rāma, exalted in exploits of the bow; in the Dvāpara Age flourished Phalguna [Arjuna]. Harken! in the Age of Kali there has flourished in archery Siṅga, the famous Danḍanāyaka of the Emperor of Kuntala's camp.

(Verse 52)—In polity, prowess, strength, courtesy, skill, resolution of counsel, noble conduct, majesty, literary art, famed ancestry, strength of arm, loyalty to his lord, (and) ability a seat of good qualities—the earth affectionately extols with joy the fortunate Danḍanāyaka Siṃha.

(Verse 53)—Of the general Śiṃha, who is thus a subject of eulogy, the high-spirited wife in her turn is a goddess of victory to her husband's exalted arm, a peerless Lady of Speech to the lotus of his face, a goddess of Fortune praised by the righteous on his breast vast in comeliness: thus is not Mañjaladēvi blest on earth?

(Verse 54)—A creeping-plant of the pārijāta-tree to her household, a celestial cow to her kindred, a brilliant rain of gold on the earth, a daughter of Earth [Sitā] in devotion to her husband, a bright new jewel-lamp in a delightful palace, a crescent-moon from the ocean of the spirit² of charity,—how brilliant is the greatness of Mañjaladēvi, who was a basis for the words of those who speak thus!

(Verse 55)—Their son is a jewel-ornament quivering on the pot-like round breasts of stainless Speech, a thunderbolt to the mountains of haughty foes, supreme in the world: in these words what men do not praise Boppadēva?

(Verse 56)—The form of Boppadēva is called a moon's orb to the lotuses of men's eyes; his glory, a string of pearls worn over by the goddesses of the regions of space; his might, a full rich rain of gold to the earth; his valour, a lion to the troop of elephants that are his foes, who are vessels of combat.

(Verse 57)—As thus, in company with wife, sons, and many kinsmen and friends, he was securely increasing ever to higher and higher degrees the abounding fortune of the kingdom for Vikramāṅka's daughter Mañjaladēvi and that most exalted hero the great Jayakēsin :—

³ Or: "a master of the art."

⁴ This apparently refers to the legend narrated in the Dēvi-bhāgavata, iii. 10-11.

⁵ Paśāyita; it may also be rendered "blest" or "favoured."

(Verse 58)—Like the beauty of a tress of hair on the (Goddess) Earth who is clasped by the zone of the oceans, the province of Kuntala¹ appears attractive to the mind; in this province, like a glittering forehead-ornament, there shines, so that desire of soul arises, the county of Halasige, a darling of counties, most exalted, richly stocked with treasures.

(Verse 59)—Kundūr, which appears as an ornament to this charming province, mankind with one tongue verily extol duly in praises : it is styled in the bounds of earth an Amarāvati of such glory, a mighty Alakā-pura, a very Bhōgavati² forming the essence of the world.

(Line 87)—On the southern side of this Kundūr :—

(Verse 60)—“ Indeed this, when one considers, is an Arghyatīrtha ; indeed it is the holy place Benares ; indeed it is the excellent holy place Prayāge ; indeed it is, of a surety, many other holy places ” : with these words the general Singana established for the world's welfare a second Kailāsa, (which) is called the blessed (temple of the) fortune-marked Lakshmēśvara.

(Verse 61)—“ Say, has the famous Mountain of Fortune³ come and settled down (here) ? has the delightful Himālaya mountain been born (here) ? has another Mount Mēru in truth arisen, as a home for godhead ? ”—such a house of Śiva constructed by Singana, a terraced site of palaces of religion, beauteous with the name of Lakshma, displayed itself in magnificence to the world.

(Verse 62)—A multitude of all graces stands here ; the whole series of exalted auspicious objects⁴ is here ; here together in one spot of the earth stands assuredly all the brilliant righteousness of the three worlds : thus appears the conspicuous divine holy place, the (temple of) Lakshmanēśvara renowned through the three worlds.

(Lines 93-95)—Hail ! While the victorious reign of the asylum of the whole world, the favourite of Fortune and the Earth, paramount Emperor, supreme Lord, supreme Master, decoration of Satyāśraya's race, ornament of the Chālukyas, king Tribhuvanamalla, is advancing in a course of increasing success (to endure) as long as the moon, sun, and stars, while he is reigning in the standing camp of Jayantipura in the enjoyment of pleasant conversations :—

(Lines 95-102)—Hail ! The Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara possessed of the five mahā-sūbhas, the lord of Banavāsi best of cities, high august sun dawning on the summit of that royal mount of exalted fortune the race of Triḷochana-Kadamba sprung from Hara and the Earth that is praised by the whole world ; he who subdues all provinces of earth by native majesty exceeding in fervour the sun's rays ; he who has the crest of a mighty lion, who has the great banner (with the emblem) of an ape, who is attended by the thunder of permatṭi drums and (other) musical instruments ; he who is sprung from a race consecrated in the consecratory rites of eighteen horse-sacrifices set up in eighty-four cities ; he whose great puissance of strength has been established on the massive summits of the royal mountains of the Himālaya ;⁵ who excels the world in liberality, a *jhampal-āchārya*⁶ ; a Rāma in intrepidity, a touchstone

³ Śrī-parvata, the residence of Śiva (Bhāg.-purāṇa x. 79, v. 13). It is Śrīśailam, in Kurnool District.

⁴ Maṅgalas : several alternate lists of these are given in the Kāmikāgama, lv. 85 ff.

⁵ This implies that he penetrated to the Himālaya and there set up his ensign. Of course this is a mere hyperbole, which is used conventionally in South-Indian panegyrics. The author of the Kalingattup-paraṇi actually asserts that his hero set up the tiger-banner of the Chōlas on Mount Mēru, ādagak-kiriyaṇ puli vaṭṭavan (xi. 7), a feat worthy of Baron Munchausen ; an early Pāṇḍyan record in the British Museum (Ind. Ch. 4, ll. 8-9) describes the Pāṇḍyan dynasty as having planted its device, the two fishes, on the Himālaya, śikhar-indra-mastaka-tilā-viṅgasta-matsya-dvayē. for the gold of warriors, an adamant rampart for those who come for refuge, a unique tree of desire to the world, white as the passage of the sun (into Makura), Nārāyaṇa incarnate, a sun of fame, one whose badge of office (is worn) on the brows of rulers of provinces, a grindstone of foemen, a crest-jewel of warrior-kings, a crest-jewel of the Kādambas; he who is adorned with these and all other titles, to wit, the Mahamaṇḍalēśvara Jayakēśidēva; and likewise—

(Lines 102-106)—Hail! She who is constantly brilliant with the moonshine of the moon of abounding stainless glory shewing the grace of the white auspicious ornaments of the Goddess of Earth; who rides on fiery elephants; the dear daughter of the Chālukyan Emperor who is lord of the whole world enclosed in the circle of the shores of the four oceans a creeping plant of desire to eulogists; a touchstone for the gold of warriors; she whose body is marked by many auspicious features of happy augury for the welfare of the kingdom, who occupies half the body of him who excels the world in liberality; mistress of soft sweet speech and the series of ingenious arts, the treasure-store of the essence of grace, the dweller upon Jayakēśidēva's broad breast, to wit, the Senior Queen Maṭṭalamahādēvi :—

(Lines 106-107)—while they were ruling the nine-hundred of the Koṅkaṇ and the twelve-thousand of Palasige and the five-hundred of Payve and the lakh and a quarter of Kavaḍi-dvipa so as to suppress the wicked and to protect the cultured,—

(Lines 107-111)—granted to (the temple of) the god Lakshmaṇēśvara constructed by Singarasa the high minister, Daṇḍanāyaka, and high chamberlain of the blest Maṭṭalamahādēvi, on Friday, the thirteenth day of the dark fortnight of Bhūdrapada of the cyclic year Viśvāvasu, the 1047th Śaka year, on a great tithi that is a Yugādi, for the worship, food-offerings, means of personal enjoyment, perpetual lamps, largesse, and processional cloths¹ for the god, for gifts of food and clothing to learned men, ascetics, and students, for gifts of food to Brāhmins, and for restoration of broken, burst, and outworn (parts of the buildings), on taḷa-rṛitti tenure in Kundūr, the first town (and) royal residence of the five-hundred forming part of the twelve thousand of Palasige,

(Lines 111-112)—a town, the boundaries whereof are : on the east, the high-road going to Kennele; on the south, the Kumbāragere tank; on the west, the road of Savaṇana-palli; on the north, the lands of the sacred building on the hill;

(Lines 112-113)—(also) a garden (comprising) one mattar in the estate of Chinamma Gāvunḍa in the land within the tank on the east of the town; (also) on the south-western side, a grainfield-*vere*² below the Baisageṇa tank;

(Lines 113-115)—and likewise 70 mattar in the eastern fields of Dāravāḍa, a town forming part of the five-hundred, on the west of Āneya-sunḍil (and) north of the boundary of Navilūr, and likewise the local seignior of Kauvalagēri, a town forming part of the Kundūr five-hundred, outside (the above town of Kundūr, all of which) they bestowed with clear definition both of the four sides of access and of the things included in the tribhōga.³

B.—OF THE TIME OF VIKRAMADITYA VI AND THE KADAMBA JAYAKESIN II : A.D. 1126.

This record is on a stone tablet built into the ceiling, in the course of some repairs or restoration, of a temple in the field Survey No. 9, which is known as the temple of Śaṅkaralinga, and seems to be what remains of the temple of the god Śaṅkara of Arakeṇa who is mentioned in the record. In fitting the stone for the purpose for which it was wanted, the top of it, bearing, no doubt, some sculptures as usual and certainly at least some three or four opening lines containing probably an invocatory verse in addition to the beginning of the string of titles and epithets of Jayakēśin II, was cut away and lost. The first extant word, maṇḍalan, is the word at the end of the epithet mārttaṇḍa-kar-ālitīra, etc., which stands in lines 97-8 of the inscription A.

³ See I. A., vol. XIX, p. 271.

The extant inscription covers an area measuring about 2 ft. 8 in. in width by 3 ft. 6 in. in height. Its state of preservation is on the whole somewhat better than that of the inscription A; but it is in places very much worn, and occasionally quite illegible: however, here again the historical, geographical, and practical matter can all be made out satisfactorily.—The character is Kanarese, of a type similar to that of the record A. The letters are rather irregularly formed in some places: they average in height about the same as in the record A.—The language is Kanarese, prose and verse, with the usual Sanskrit comminatory verses at the end (ll. 57-59): it is of the same type as that of the previous inscription. There is some lexical interest in the words paṣāyitike (l. 20), sāgula (ll. 31 f.), sāvāsī (l. 45), pa'thale (ll. 54 f.), and puḷihata (l. 55); on tyāga-jaga-jhaṁpa jhaṁpa-l-ichāryya (l. 2) and tyāga-jaga-jhaṁpana (l. 8) see above, p. 298.—As to orthography and phonetic development, we may note that initial p is usually preserved, but is changed to the modern h in Hānumgall- (l. 9), Haive (l. 11), hēr- (l. 20, a verse passage!), hattu (ll. 26, 52) and hatt- (l. 30), hannomdu (l. 27), heddāriyūn (l. 32), haḍuvahu (l. 32, by the side of paḍ° in the same line and elsewhere), hadimāru (l. 38). The upadhmanīya symbol appears in antaḥpur- (l. 14) and bhārinah-p° (l. 58). The archaic ḷ is kept in negalḍam (l. 18) and pogalḍ- (l. 19); elsewhere it is changed to ḷ, except in the case of vērkkum (l. 24) and torttu (l. 30), where it is written as r. There is some confusion between ś and s. As regards flexion, the modern dative plural ending -arige appears in pratipālīsīdavarige (l. 55) and brāhmaṇarige (l. 56); elsewhere we find -argge.

The object of the inscription is to register a series of grants to the sanctuary of the god Śaṅkara of Arakere, situate in or near the town of Kundūr. The opening part of the text is lost. What remains begins in the middle of the list of titles borne by the Kādamba Jayakēśin II of Goa (ll. 1-5), and then proceeds to give the titles of the latter's senior queen Mañjaladēvi (ll. 5-9), recording that the present grants were made while she was in Kundūr, governing the nine-hundred of the Koṅkaṇ, the thirty of Uṇukal and Sabbi, the thirty of Koṭakuḷi, the five-hundred of Hānumgal, the thirty of Utsugrāma and Kādaravalli, the thirty of Poḷalgunde, the seventy of Vēḷugrāma, the five-hundred of Haive, and the laḥ and a quarter of Kavaḍi-dvīpa (ll. 9-12). Next appears on the scene Lakṣharasa (also called Lakṣmaṇa and Lakṣma), a Danḍanāyaka, who seems to be one of the Lakṣmaṇas mentioned in inscription A; probably he was the petitioner for the charter. His titles are enumerated in ll. 12-15, and his merits and exploits lauded in four verses in ll. 15-21. After the date (ll. 21-22) are recorded divers grants of land by king Jayakēśin (ll. 21-30), by Prayāge Bhaṭṭayya (ll. 30-34), by Mañjaladēvi, the wife of Siṅgarasa, mentioned in inscription A (ll. 34-38), and again by Jayakēśin (ll. 39-40). It is next recorded that Jayakēśin made over the establishment to Prayāge Bhaṭṭayya, who is extolled in two verses, and the latter made some arrangement with the five-hundred Śaṁins of Nāḷkupatti (ll. 40-47). Then follows another grant by queen Mañjaladēvi (ll. 49-53), after which are mentioned as trustees of the endowment five officers of the palace, in addition to Jayakēśin (ll. 53-55). The inscription proper ends with comminatory paragraphs of the usual type, in Kanarese and Sanskrit (ll. 55-59), after which another hand has added a supplement regarding the distribution of the sacred food.

One of Jayakēśin's donations is made for the sake of the religious merit (puṇya) of his younger brother Uḍayarmadēva (l. 28), a worthy who is otherwise unknown to history. In respect of its formation the name Uḍayarma may be compared to that of Javanīyarma (vol. VI above, pp. 215 and 217, with Kittel's note on the latter), and Ereyārmma (Ep. Carn. xii. Mi. 102).

This inscription has five dates: the last of them, falling in A.D. 1126, is that of the occasion in connection with which the whole record was put together and engraved on the stone; the others, beginning in A.D. 1123, are the dates of previous acts brought together and recited in this record, not of separate records framed and engraved successively at the times mentioned in them. They are all fully legible in the ink-impressions, except in respect of the name of the saṃkrānti in the second of them. Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks about them:—

“First date: line 21. The given details are: the Śaka year 1045; the cyclic year Śobhakṛit; the second tithi of the dark fortnight of Āshāḍha; Maṅgalavāra (Tuesday); the Dakṣiṇāyana or summer solstice, when the sun enters the sign Karka (Cancer) and begins his course towards the south. There is often a doubt as to whether the name Śobhakṛit means the saṃvatsara which is also known as Śobhana, or whether it denotes Śubhakṛit, which comes next before Śobhana. And, as this date is in any case an irregular one, we must examine it for the two years:—

“1. The Śubhakṛit saṃvatsara was Śaka 1045 current, A.D. 1122-23. In this year the day of the given tithi Āshāḍha kṛishṇa 2 was Friday, 23 June, A.D. 1122, on which day the tithi ended at about 15 h. 35 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain). The sun entered Karka at 4 h. 39 m. on Monday, 26 June. Thus, neither do the tithi and the saṃkrānti come together, nor in either case was there a Tuesday as specified in the record.

“2. The Śubhakṛit (Śobhana) saṃvatsara was Śaka 1045 expired, A.D. 1123-24. And in this year the sun entered Karka at 10 h. 51 m. on Tuesday, 26 June, A.D. 1123. But this was not at all the day of the given tithi. In this year the month Āshāḍha was intercalary; and the position is as follows. The tithi kṛishṇa 2 of the first Āshāḍha ended at mean sunrise, or perhaps at 4 minutes after mean sunrise (both for Ujjain), on Wednesday, 13 June, thirteen days before the saṃkrānti. And the same tithi of the second Āshāḍha ended at about 11 h. 46 m. on Thursday, 12 July, sixteen days after the saṃkrānti. The tithi which was current at the time of the saṃkrānti was the second tithi of the bright fortnight of the second Āshāḍha, which began at about 1 h. 42 m. on the day mentioned above, 26 June. In these circumstances, I think that we may take this as the real tithi, and find an actual mistake in the record, in its giving bahula instead of śukla or suddha, attributable to the record having been framed two and a half years after the event. But, as the result does not answer exactly to all the details which are actually given, the date must be classed, as usual, as an irregular one.

“Second date: line 25. The given details are: the cyclic year Viśvāvasu (the Śaka year is not stated); the new-moon of Āśvayuja (the weekday is not stated); a saṃkrānti, or passage of the sun into a sign of the zodiac, which must be the Tulā-saṃkrānti, when the sun enters Tulā (Libra) and comes to the autumn equinox, which always takes in Āśvina, though the exact name applied to it in this record is not decipherable.¹ This date, also, is irregular. As we have seen under the date of the inscription A above, the Viśvāvasu saṃvatsara was Śaka 1047 expired, A.D. 1125-26. In this year the sun entered Tulā at 22 h. 17 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain) on Saturday, 26 September, A.D. 1125. In consequence of the lateness of the time, 1 h. 43 m. before mean sunrise, any celebration of the saṃkrānti would be made, no doubt, during the early part of the next day, Sunday. But the new-moon tithi of Āśvina only began at about 22 h. 39 m. on the Sunday, and cannot by any means be carried back to any time recognizable as proper for celebrating the equinox; much less to the time when the samkrānti actually occurred. The only possible excuse for citing the new-moon tithi is to be found in the fact that the fourteenth tithi was what is known as an expunged tithi, since it began at about 1 h. 8 m. on the Sunday and ended at about 22 h. 39 m. on the same day. But, even so, the fourteenth tithi existed, though it did not give its number to a day; and either the thirteenth or the fourteenth tithi must have been used, and should have been cited, in connection with the celebration of the samkrānti.

“Third date: line 39. The only detail given here is the Uttarāyana-samkrānti or winter solstice, when the sun enters the sign Makara (Capricornus) and begins his course towards the north. But the date evidently belongs to the Viśvāvasu samvatsara, which is mentioned in the remaining two dates as well as in the preceding one. And so its equivalent will be 24 December, A.D. 1125, when the sun entered Makara at 16 h. 35 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain).

“Fourth date: line 40. The details given here are: the cyclic year Viśvāvasu: the full-moon of Māgha: an eclipse of the moon: the Śaka year and the weekday are not stated. This, of course, is the same Viśvāvasu samvatsara, Śaka 1047 expired, A.D. 1125-26. And the given tithi, the full-moon of Māgha, answers to 10 January, A.D. 1126, on which day there was an eclipse of the moon, visible in India.¹ The eclipse, which was nearly a half one, began at Dhārwar at 22 h. 55 m. after mean sunrise on the Sunday: that is, at 4.55 A.M. during the night between the Sunday and the Monday. The moment of full-moon, with which the tithi ended and the greatest phase of the eclipse occurred, was at 6 minutes (local time) after mean sunrise, i.e. at 6.6 A.M. on the Monday: but the local true sunrise was at closely about 6.25 A.M., some twenty minutes after the moment of full-moon;² and so the tithi and the eclipse belong to the Sunday.

“Fifth date: line 49. The details here are precisely those of the fourth date: namely, the cyclic year Viśvāvasu (the Śaka year not being stated); the full-moon of Māgha (the weekday not being stated); an eclipse of the moon. As we have seen, the equivalent is 10 January, A.D. 1126.”

A considerable number of places are mentioned. Apart from Kundūr itself (passim), the Koṅkan (l. 9), Hānūngal, now Hāngal (ll. 9, 10), Vēlūgrame, the modern Belgaum (l. 10), and Dāravāḍa, now Dhārwar (l. 51),³ there are several that may be identified. Unūkal (l. 9) is Unkal, on the high road from Dhārwar to Hubli, about thirteen miles south-east from Narēndra. Sabbi, which is associated with it as giving a joint name to a group of thirty villages, seems to have been a contiguous village which has become absorbed into Unkal. Kādaravāḷi (l. 10) is Kādarōḷi in the Sampgaum tāluka of the Belgaum District, in long. 74° 47', lat. 15° 42', twenty miles towards the north-west from Narēndra; from this place itself we have an inscription of A.D. 1075:⁴ in another record the name is given as Kādalavāḷi, with l instead of r in the third syllable.⁵ Utsugrame, which is associated with it in the same way as Sabbi with Unkal, seems to have been a contiguous village afterwards absorbed into Kādarōḷi. Arakere (passim) must be in or very near Narēndra. On Palasige, now Halsi (l. 46), and Navilūr (l. 52) see on inscription A, p. 300. Tadakōḍu (l. 26) is given as “Tadkod” in the Bombay Survey, sheet 276, and as “Turkod” on the Indian Atlas; it lies about eight miles to the north-west of Narēndra. Mareyavāda (l. 22) is "Marevād" in the Bombay Survey map and "Mureeawad" on the Indian Atlas map; it is about five miles towards east-by-north from Narēndra.

² Sewell's book, quoted in the preceding note, gives in table G the means of working out this detail.

TRANSLATION.

(Lines 1-5) . . . of the Mahāmaṇḍalēśvara Jayakēśidēva [II], who is adorned by the (following) series of titles: " . . . [he who subduces all] provinces [of earth by native majesty exceeding in fervour the sun's rays]²; who has the crest of a mighty lion, who has the great banner (with the emblem) of an ape, who is attended by the thunder of permaṭṭi drums and (other) musical instruments, who is sprung from a race consecrated in the consecratory rites of eighteen horse-sacrifices set up in eighty-four cities, whose great puissance of strength has been established on the massive summits of the royal mountains of the Himālaya, who excels the world in liberality, a ghampat-āchārya, a Rāma in intrepidity, a touchstone for the gold of warriors, an adamant rampart for those who come for refuge, a unique tree of desire to the world, white as the passage of the sun (into Mākara), a Nārāyaṇa incarnate, a sun of fame, one whose badge of office (is worn) on the brows of rulers of provinces, a grindstone of foemen, a crest-jewel of warrior-kings, a crest-jewel of the Kādambas,"

(Lines 5-9)—the (consort) beloved to soul and eyes—hail!—she who displays lines of full-blown blossoms (consisting in) the rays of her toe-nails, to which cling a thousand eager bees (which are) the masses of the quivering and tossing curls of the damsels of hostile kings; she who rides on fiery elephants; the dear daughter of the Chālukyan Emperor who is lord of the whole world enclosed in the circle of the shores of the four oceans; a creeping plant of desire to eulogists; a touchstone for the gold of warriors; she whose body is marked by many auspicious features of happy augury for the welfare of the kingdom; who occupies half the body of him who excels the world in liberality; who holds graceful conversation by framing soft sweet speech; the treasure-store of grace: to wit, the Senior Queen Mañjalamahādēvi,

(Lines 9-12)—being in Kundūr, while ruling the nine-hundred of the Koṅkaṇ, the thirty of Unukal and Sabbi, the thirty of Kontakuli, the five-hundred of Hānuṅgal, the thirty of Utsugrāme (and) Kāḍaravalli, the thirty of Poḷalgunde, the seventy of Vajugrāme, the five-hundred of Haive, (and) the lakh and a quarter of Kavaḍi-dvipa, so as to suppress the wicked and to protect the eminent, in a reign advancing in a course of increasing success (to endure) as long as the moon, sun, and stars, with the enjoyment of pleasant conversations:—

(Lines 12-15)—Hail! He who bears all titles such as: "lord of great feudatories, who possesses the five mahā-śabdas, great august Danḍanāyaka, bestower of boons on sages, purifying his Gōtra, a son to the wives of other men, a wishing-jewel to kinsmen, a crest-jewel of intelligence": the high minister, governor of the women's quarters, master of the robes, high chamberlain of Mañjalamahādēvi, the Danḍanāyaka Lakṣharasa:—

(Verse 1)—A favourite with his lord as he walked with tottering step (in babyhood); a favourite with his lord as he said in childhood with stammering speech, "there is no deception"; a favourite with his lord when he wrought destruction to another monarch in the fullness of youth: in view of this, the favourite Danḍanāyaka Lakṣhapa was in truth constantly in every case a favourite.

(Verse 2)—“Too awful to be faced, even when regarded from afar, he crossed over the Sahya (Mountains), drank up the ocean whose waters are naturally not to be traversed, eradicated the wicked, and settled the country;¹ now the glorious Koṅkaṇ has become free from dangers”: at this praise from the Emperor the ambitious Lakshmaṇa became illustrious.

(Verse 3)—Is it the uncultured whom thou dost praise in the society of him who was a guardian of his own lord's camp, guardian of both the flanks of the Sahya (Mountains), guardian of the bracelets of the Lady Victory?

NO. 29.—KALAS INSCRIPTION OF THE RASHTRAKUTA GOVINDA IV : SAKA 851

By LIONEL D. BARNETT.

Kalas—the “Kullus” of the old maps—is a village in the Baṅkāpūr tāluka of Dhārwar District, Bombay Presidency; it is shown in the Indian Atlas quarter-sheet 41, S. E. (1904), in lat. 15° 6', long. 75° 28', and is situated thirteen miles towards north-east from Shiggaum, the head-quarters of the tāluka, and about four and a half miles west-south-west from Lakshmēshwar, which is mentioned in our record under its ancient name of Puligere or Purikara. The earlier name of Kalas, as this inscription shows, was Kāḍiyūr, or more fully Eṇeyana-Kāḍiyūr, that is, “Eṇeya's Kāḍiyūr”, because some one named Eṇeya enclosed it and settled there; and verse 19 mentions the place as an agrahāra. The record shows that the place was in the Puligere or Purigere three-hundred district, the chief town of which was Purigere-Lakshmēshwar.

The present inscription, which is here edited for the first time¹ from ink impressions kindly lent to me by Dr. Fleet,² is on a stone tablet in the village, which was found by the agent employed by Dr. Fleet leaning against a wall of the house of a person named Kōnerāya. The stone is rectangular in shape, surmounted by a projecting cornice, over which is a rounded top. The cornice contains ll. 1, 2 of the inscription; the rest of the record follows on the rectangle below it, covering an area of about 3ft. 6" in width and 5ft. $\frac{1}{2}$ " in height. On the rounded top above the cornice are sculptures: in the centre a linga on an abhishēka-stand and a seated figure on the proper right of the latter, in a shrine; outside the shrine, a bull on the proper right, and a cow with sucking calf on the left, the whole being surmounted by the sun and moon. Unfortunately the stone has suffered severely in places from exposure, and hence there are a few passages in the record which are totally illegible and a few that can only be restored conjecturally, and the record does not lend itself to illustration. Happily however nothing essential is missing.

The character is Kanarese, of the type usual in the first half of the tenth century. Most of the letters are about $\frac{1}{2}$ " in height; but some of them are only about $\frac{1}{3}$ ". They are fairly well formed. The special characters for m and y mentioned above, vol. XII, p. 335, occur in three cases certainly: the former in amaḷ-, l. 56, the latter in elliyum, l. 12, and gabhrateyol, l. 58. The upadhāntiya seems to be expressed by the letter like ḷ in the word which I have read as nīḥparigrahāmum (i.e. for nishparigrahāmum) in l. 44 (cf. above, vol. XII, p. 271).

² To the same friend I am indebted for the loan of a preliminary draft of the greater part of the first half of the record, which has greatly facilitated my work.

The language—with the exception of the opening stanza and the two admonitory verses at the end, on ll. 74-76, which are in Sanskrit—is Old Kanarese, verse and prose, and presents some features of interest. Firstly, we are able to trace in it a rule of orthography which hitherto, owing to the caprice or ignorance of the scribes of other records, has eluded observation: the letter l before a consonant, when preceded by a vowel either long by nature or lengthened by position, is written as r; but when followed by a consonant and preceded by a short vowel not lengthened by position, is unchanged. Thus we have pogartteḡ = (—) in ll. 2 and 31; bērp̄paran in l. 5; arkarīṁdam in l. 8 (where arkk° would be more usual); nōrp̄para in l. 28; nōrp̄puvargge in l. 53; negartte (—) in ll. 57 and 66; nōrp̄pōḡ, l. 61; and on the other hand we find negalḡdam in l. 3, negalḡdu in l. 26, negalḡd in l. 33, and negalḡdar in l. 63, all of which have the second syllable short, sīthila. The l is changed to ḷ in ēḷgeyan (l. 7), pogalḷal (ll. 8, 11, 66), mālḷdam (? l. 17), podalḷdu (l. 27), maḷeya (l. 31), pogalḷ (? l. 37). Usually intervocalic l becomes ḷ; we even find kalpa° (l. 23). Initial v instead of the usual b appears in vayasi (l. 28), evan̄ṇisutt (l. 58). Usually, but not always, consonants are doubled after r; and a final sonne at the end of a verse is several times omitted (e.g. in vv. 3 and 4), though the dilapidated state of the stone precludes certainty in every instance. The following words are of some lexical interest: uddāni (l. 7: Kittel gives uddāne), bāppu (l. 8; cf. above, vol. XII, p. 270); ghaḷige (ll. 13, 40, 71; meaning apparently “hall of assembly”),¹ marttina (l. 15: for the usual mattina, connected with maru); riṇḍu (l. 29), atibhumbhukam (l. 38), beḡamgisi (l. 38).

The inscription refers itself to the reign of Gojjigadēva or Gojjiga-vallabha, i.e. the Rāshtrakūṭa king Gōvinda IV, who was a younger son of Indrarāja III, and was on the throne between 918 and 933 A.D.² Verses 2-8 extol him in the usual style of inflated panegyric, but tell us nothing material, except that he bore the titles of Nripatunḡa (v. 3), Vira-Nārāyaṇa (v. 4) and Raṭṭa-Kandarpa (v. 5), and the record makes in ll. 19-20 an allusion to his title Suvarṇavarsha. Then follows a eulogy of Rēvadāsa-dikshita and Visōttara-dikshita, two distinguished and bountiful Brāhman danḡanāyakas or generals (vv. 9-13), the latter of whom apparently constructed a tank (v. 13). The record then states in prose (ll. 18-24) that Gojjigadēva bestowed on them the town of Ereyana-Kāḍiyūr in sarva-namasya tenure (see above, vol. XIII, p. 35, note 1). Breaking out again into verse, it proceeds to extol the province of Puligeḡe or Purikara, its capital of the same name, and the adjoining town of Ereyana-Kāḍiyūr, with a Śaiva sanctuary in the latter (vv. 14-25), and then dwells on the beauty and delights of Kāḍiyūr in an elaborate passage of artificial prose (ll. 41-47). Next comes a metrical eulogy of the two-hundred Brāhman householders of Kāḍiyūr (vv. 26-37), who are then recorded to have met in assembly and made certain grants for the maintenance of the local cult (ll. 66-72). After two verses of exhortation, the poet announces his name to be Kavirājarāja (l. 74).

The details of the date (l. 22) are: Śaka 851; the cyclic year Vikṛita; the full-moon of Māgha; Ādityavāra (Sunday); the Āślēshā nakṣatra; an eclipse of the moon. Dr. Fleet gives me the following remarks:—“By the astronomical system of the cycle the Vikṛita samvatsara was current at the Mēsha-samkrānti in March, A.D. 929; and so according to the luni-solar system (not yet everywhere separated into the northern and southern varieties) it gave its name to the Śaka year 851 expired, A.D. 929-30.³ For this year the given tithi, the full-moon of Māgha, answers quite regularly to Sunday, 17 January, A.D. 930, on which day it ended at closely about 11 h. 58 m. after mean sunrise (for Ujjain). The moon was in Āślēshā at sunrise, and for about 20 hours after that. And there was a total eclipse of the moon, visible in India."¹

² On the history of this king see Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts (Bombay Gazetteer, vol. 1, pt. 1), pp. 388n., 387, 416 f., and Ep. Ind. above, vol. VII, p. 26 ff.

In the way of geographical information the record mentions first the Kuntala province in the land of Bharata (l. 24-5), and places in that province the Purikara country, which it defines as a two-six-hundred district (l. 25): by this it means a combination of two districts, the Puligere or Puligere three-hundred and the Belvola three-hundred; see Dr. Fleet's remarks in vol. XIII above, p. 178. Mentioning this district again as the Puligere nāḍ, it places in it a "great city" Puligere (l. 26): this is the modern Lakshmēshwar, in lat. 15° 7', long. 75° 31': see the same remarks. And it then tells us that on the west of that city there was a town or village which it styles in several passages Kāḍiyūr and more fully Ereyana-Kāḍiyūr, that is, "Ereya's Kāḍiyūr." Verse 19 (l. 31) tells us that this place, known first as simply Kāḍiyūr, became customarily styled Ereyana-Kāḍiyūr because someone named Ereyana enclosed it, that is, apparently built walls round it, and made his abode there: who this Ereyana was, remains to be ascertained. This Kāḍiyūr or Ereyana-Kāḍiyūr, which was of course in the Puligere three-hundred district, is evidently Kaḷas itself, through some entire change of name like that which has happened in the case of Puligere-Lakshmēshwar. Verse 19 styles the place an agrahāra. At Kāḍiyūr there was a tank named Koṇḍaligere (l. 34), at which there was a temple of Śiva which had been founded by someone named Kalidēvasvāmin (l. 36). The only other place-name is that of Brahmēśvarapura (l. 69), which seems to have been a quarter of Kāḍiyūr.

Gōvinda IV and Arikēsarin.

Gōvinda IV and the ruler of Puligere were destined to come soon after the date of our inscription into a connection that was not contemplated in the roseate visions of Kavirājarāja, the author of our record. About this time Puligere was under the rule of Arikēsarin II (vernacularly Ariga), a scion of the Chalukya race, who was a patron of the Kanarese poet Pampa, the author of the Āḍipurāṇa (composed in A.D. 941) and the Bhārata or Vikramārjuna-vijaya. In the latter poem Pampa glorifies his patron by identifying him with the epic hero Arjuna;² and in the ninth āśvāsa, in a prose section following v. 52,³ we find the following interesting passage:—

Chalukya race, unflinchingly laid him behind and protected him—the valour of the crest-jewel of feudatories, who drove into retreat and conquered the great feudatories who came at the command of the universal emperor Gojjiga—the strength of arm of Arikēsarin, who, bringing to ruin the emperor who confronted him in hostility, fittingly conveyed the universal empire to Baddegadēva, who came trusting to him—the vigour of the scatterer of troops of foemen's elephants, who on his rut-blinded fiery elephant met and put to flight the champions of Bappuva, the younger brother of Kakkala, who came and bowed down, while the stately squadrons of furious elephants accompanying him made the earth shake—the unsurpassed might of the terrifier of hostile soldiers, who frightened other realms ?”

With this may be compared another passage in the fourteenth āśvāsa of the same poem, in the prose after v. 37 :—

Gojjigan=emba sakala-chakravartti maleye tanage śaraṇ-āgatan=āda Vijayādityanam kāda ballāṭtanadoḥ śaraṇ-āgata-jalanidhiyum.

“An ocean to suppliants in the might with which he protected his suppliant Vijayāditya when Gojjiga the universal emperor contended (against the latter).”²

The purport of these panegyrics is to tell us that Arikēsarin II was a powerful feudatory of Gojjiga, or Govinda IV ; that Gojjiga quarrelled with another of his feudatories, a Chalukya named Vijayāditya, and the latter, finding himself unable to hold his ground alone, fled to Arikēsarin ; that Gojjiga then despatched or personally led an army against Arikēsarin, which was defeated ; that in consequence Gojjiga lost his throne (the text suggests that he actually perished), and Arikēsarin caused the crown of the Rāshtrakūṭas to be given to Baddegadēva, otherwise known as Amoghavarsha III, a younger brother of Indrarāja III ; and that on another occasion Arikēsarin was attacked by an army under Bappuva, a younger brother of Kakkala, but defeated him and reduced him to submission. This Kakkala perhaps was the last of the Rāshtrakūṭa kings of Mālkheḍ, otherwise known as Kakka II (who was of the next generation after Govinda IV), or perhaps was some slightly earlier scion of the same line, of whom, along with his brother Bappuva, no other mention has as yet been found.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1)—Victorious is the revealed Boar-form of Vishṇu, stirring up the ocean, holding the Earth resting upon the tip of his lofty right tusk !

(Verse 2)—Appropriating to himself such glory that it is said : “ what monarchs fittingly conducting themselves in the domain of the world (have been) such in former times, what heroes have thus displayed valour in overcoming adversaries, what men of great distinction that were a theme of praise (have been) such, when one considers ?,” Gojjigadēva has become illustrious, an ornament of rulers of the earth, supreme among the Rāshtrakūṭas.

(Verse 3)—In the pride of his arm confronting hostile monarchs who display enmity, in company with (his) fierce lord of elephants driving recklessly into the mouth of Death, and on the other hand taking under his care and guarding a multitude of rulers when they come to him for protection, fittingly has Gojjiga with pleasure assumed for himself the measure (of rank implied) in the name Nripatuṅga [“exalted among kings”].

(Verse 4)—Duly guarding those that seek his protection, with fury slaying opponents, with generosity ever satisfying the needy, with a constant display of strength, vigour, and power he has obtained in high measure a goodly fame (white as) the Silver Mountain, Hara’s laugh,¹ the celestial Ganges, and the moon—a blest Vira-Nārāyaṇa [“a Vishṇu among heroes”].

(Verse 5)—The King of Mountains [Himālaya] in his appearance has shown a unique degree of firmness, the earth a unique fulness of patience, the ocean a uniquely high degree of profound depth : Gojjigadēva, as noble sages on the occasions of his splendid largesses praise (him) with peculiar love for him, has happily made his own a number of kingly virtues, a Raṭṭa-Kandarpa-dēva [“Love-god of the Raṭṭas”].

(Verse 6)—I see or know no other kings who in wealth of elephants, in superhuman splendour, in practice of bounty, in enterprise, in valour, have surpassed Gojjiga-vallabha.

(Verse 7)—As he is said to be a Phalguna [Arjuna], a Creator [Brahman], and a Karṇa according as (men respectively) confront him in wrath, seek his protection, and entreat his favour, are there any kings approaching king Gojjiga ?

(Verse 8)—As he is styled a Lord of Death [Yama] and a Brahman (respectively) for slaying and for preserving, according, as he is stern or gracious, who on the face of this earth are able to praise (fittingly) the wrath and the grace of Gojjiga ?

(Line 12)—Hail ! Living on his lotus-foot :—

(Verse 9)—I see or know not anywhere men who are clever enough to enumerate (properly) the merits of Rēvadāsa and Visōttara Dīkshita, famed over the earth in the lineage of the Lotus-born [Brahman] ?

(Verse 10)—Flag, shell, yak-tail fan, white umbrella, assembly-hall, a multitude of curiously made parasols, a great cow-elephant, a palace, a cunningly worked staff, fine garments, a brilliant robe, a lordly bull-elephant, a moving chariot, the great musical instruments of the exalted office of General : all these has the Brāhman known as Visōttara, beloved in his power, obtained in splendour.

(Verse 11)—Having won the grace of monarchs, the Generals Rēvadāsa and Visōttara Dīkshita waxed in greatness . . . being extraordinary in rank and career.

(Verse 12)—Whom have other mortals known (like these) ? The Brāhman race has become ennobled by the Sōmayājins Rēvadāsa and Visōttara, eminent in virtues, who perform sacrifices with gifts of excellent mirrors, new robes of extraordinary bright colours, and stipends to the company of sages, the multitude of Brāhmins.

(Verse 13)—Having acquired the favour of the sovereign, performed a great sacrifice, and satisfied a multitude of cultured men with savoury food, (and) being [distinguished] as a man of supreme culture in his race, Visōttara-bhaṭṭa . . . an ocean of virtues, a potent brilliant priceless ruby-frontlet of the Brāhmaṇa race, made a tank.

(Line 18)—The above-mentioned Sōmayājins Rēvadāsa and Visōttara :—

(Lines 18-22)—Hail ! He who is devoted to the performance of every holy rite ; a Vira-Nārāyaṇa ; who has the monarchs of the broad earth coming to the refuge contained in the adamant chamber of his arm ; a mass of the fresh rays of politic consideration (?) ; raining showers of brilliant gold,¹ an abounding stream of the nectar of discourse ; maintained by numerous great designs employed in the varieties of policy, by wit, by prudence, by discernment, and by intelligence ; a lotus on earth ; a hero of heroes ; a sun of heroes ; who is exalted with a banner (bearing the device) of the Lord of Birds [Garuḍa] ; whose matangas ride on fiery elephants ; a master of arts among the Rāṭṭas ; a Ganges-bearer [Śiva] in wrath and grace ; (to wit) the blest Gojjiga-vallabha, (Lines 22-24)—on Sunday, the full-moon day of Māgha, of the cyclic year Vikṛita which was the 851st Śaka year, under the constellation Āślēshū, on the occasion of an eclipse of the moon, after offering his own weight (in gold) as largesse, on that date, after bestowing gifts of land, gifts of wishing-trees, gifts of food (and) gifts of medicines, did thereupon perform arghya to the Generals the Sōmayājins Rēvadāsa and Visōttara, [and grant them] Eṛeyana-Kāḍiyūr, saying that it was to be universally respected . . .

(Verse 14)—An ornament to the realm of Bharata is the land of Kuntaḷa ; an embellishment of that province is the Purikara two-six-hundred district,² a new diamond mirror.

(Verse 15)—Within this country of Puligere appears a heap of Fortune, an illustrious great city active³ in displaying the residence of deities, the splendid (town of) Puligere.

(Line 26)—On the western side of this town Purikara :—

(Verse 16)—There appears in radiance, displaying itself to the eyes of longing beholders, Eṛeyana-Kāḍiyūr, which, possessing a multitude of new parks extending along in its outer domain (and) splendid great tanks, is made beautiful by eager bees murmuring, by trumpet-flowers whereof blooming masses gracefully spread themselves, (and) by breathing zephyrs of the South.

(Verse 17)—As, when the flocks of parrots, congregating in the mango-trees which branch out in dense growth and cast dark shades, strike with their beaks the clusters of fruit perfect in fragrance and full of juices, (these juices) ooze out in a drizzle and bathe the plant-tips (below), the bushes of creeping-plants in Eṛeyana-Kāḍiyūr and the betel-plants there are brilliantly resplendent.

(Verse 18)—The swans that soak themselves as they plunge in dives into the . . . stream . . . The gleaming water-drops on (their) wings appear like heavy rain in the grove of Kāḍiyūr, (Verse 19)—Because Eṛeya, possessed of goodness too great to be described (properly), . . . by enclosing (the place) made (his) habitation (there), Kāḍiyūr has come to be always known generally by the name of "Eṛeyana-Kāḍiyūr". Who understand how to extol (fittingly) the Brāhmaṇa estate [agrahāra], which is so famous as to be called the choicest spot of the world ?

³ I take ryāpāra-kṛitam as an inverted śaṅkha-vṛīhi (Pāṇini II. ii. 37) ; but it might be construed as "caused by the activity."

(Verse 20)—So that it may be said that the Moon-bearer [Śiva], whose lips are like lotuses, rested (there) when taking covert from the breaking open of the primitive mountains, the Koṇḍaligeṛe Tank, an (?) abode of the sun, which lends splendour to the Lady Earth and is a new girdle (for her), like the Ocean, radiantly displays itself in magnificence combined with dignity.

(Verse 21)—[This is mostly illegible : but it contains some further praise of the Koṇḍaligeṛe Tank of Kāḍiyūr.]

(Verse 22)—The temple of Śiva of Kalidēvasvāmin removes defilement . . . it is impossible even for the Lotus-born [Brahman] and the Snake-king to praise (it adequately).¹

(Verse 23)—Containing all (kinds of) water-dwellers, displaying indeed a multitude of the forms of bright white kine in union, it appears like a crore of storehouses described as being of exceeding magnificence.

(Verse 24)—How the god's dwelling, (accommodated) for the four seasons, does display itself, in due order possessing an enclosure, arising in massive height, and shewing elegance, while the worship there, the very eminent holy men there, the right glorious magnificence there, the line of banners fluttering on all sides as they combine in splendour there, are altogether most brilliant !

(Verse 25)—Are there not combined in Kāḍiyūr a surrounding sanctuary, an assembly-hall, a refectory, a fountain, and brilliant dispensation of lore, if any observe ?

(Lines 41-47)—Moreover,² baḍivudu [trouble, or striking] and biḍuvudu [desertion, or discharge] occur there (only) in the art of archery; artificial and transient shows (only) in jugglery; kaḍiṅguvudu [lust, or thickening] and . . . (only) in the masses of the clouds; saraḷate [sickness, or straightness] and baḍatana [poverty, or slenderness] (only) in women's waists; naḍuka [fear, or quivering] and māraḍi [hostility, or ? different stalks] (only) in the flower-clusters of the mangoes; kundu [defect, or waning] and kaḷaṅka [blemish, or moon-spot] (only) in the deer-pictured [moon]; urku [pride, or steel] and kampa [trembling, or agitation] (only) in scimitars; sere [confinement, or state of check] and ēru [wounds, or casting] (only) among dicers; lobha [meanness, or attraction] . . . (only) in the splendour of tender sprigs; nirōḍha [constraint, or spiritual self-suppression] and nishparigraha [destitution, or lack of worldly ties] (only) in the practice of austerities. It attracts the mind by its folk, who possess loyalty to the paksha [cause] of the (Divine) Unity like the paksha [wing] of Tārkaśya [Garuḍa], which is found in no other place; maryāda [rule of conduct, or shore] like the sea-monsters' home [the Ocean]; pratipannata [enlightenment, or loftiness] like the King of Mountains [the Himālaya]; patience like the earth; elegance like the power of expression of an emperor of poets.³

(Verse 26)—Do any other towns approach Kāḍiyūr, as it displays lofty eminence on the sea-girt earth ? The men of that place are sages, bright with the holy spirit filling them, lacking in naught (?), generous, learned in the Āgamas, versed in faultless principles, virtuous all of them.

(Verse 27)—The Two-hundred, who are accomplished in faultless Vedic lore, well accomplished in the very difficult science of grammar and the Āgamas, are a Brāhmaṇa tribe of excellent conduct, elegantly adorned.

³ Kavi-rāja-rāja : here the author pays himself a compliment, for his literary name was Kavi-rājarāja (see l. 74).

(Verse 28)—By its display of manifold fruits Kaḍiyūr has been able to put to shame (other) Brāhmanic villages that appear on the ocean-girt earth; in it (are found) the Two-hundred's study of lore, the Two-hundred's perfection of brilliant conduct according to rule, the Two-hundred's bounty, the Two-hundred's splendour of stainless fame,—a splendid, holy thing.

(Verse 29)—Ereyana-Kaḍiyūr—in which shines resplendent the Lotus-born [Brahman], who, perfectly affluent in beauty, as if putting together brilliant jewels, has gathered and joined them together into a collected mass for men to scan carefully, deeming it a thing of peculiar importance—and the distinguished Brāhmins of that place, appear in stately show.

(Verse 30)—Grammar, the series of works on polity, the science of literary composition, legendary lore, the great logic of Ēkākshara Muni, writing of interpretations, all do they practise.

(Verse 31)—The Vēda being their authority, the Fire their great deity, the skilful Brāhmins of Kaḍiyūr are learned in the good Vēda that bears investigation, oceans of all lore.

(Verse 32)—As there is no subject that has not duly entered into their hearts . . . no Vēda that is not fulfilled in their noble conduct, and as the great course of the stainless Āgamas, the fulness of highly eminent knowledge, (and) glory of high . . . race are theirs, highly distinguished are the scions of the lineage of the Lotus-born [Brahman] in the surpassing Ereyana-Kaḍiyūr.

(Verse 33)—As the most eminent praise them as being superior to Mēru, to the Earth (and) to the Ocean (respectively) in solidity, in lack of conceit, (and) in profundity, the Two-hundred, who are renowned among Brāhmins, displaying to an exalted degree greatness, patience, (and) firmness, are men of high distinction who are a home of true fame.

(Verse 34)—The Two-hundred, when one observes, conduct themselves so that the whole glorious Brāhman race extols them with exceeding zeal, (and) so as to display their dignity, their brilliant truthfulness, their propriety, their strength, their good behaviour, their purity, their high degree of culture, their possession of all (virtues).

(Verse 35)—As religious discipline finds a home among them, the course of the six practices¹ is fittingly resplendent among them, the duties of humanity are present with them, (and) fame, pronouncing its verdict, manifests itself amidst them and travels with a burden of brilliant white lustre to the ocean, thus the Two-hundred are splendidly illustrious on earth.

(Verse 36)—As (in their case) praise for being prudent, praise for being void of passion, manifold praise for being a company of great poets, (and) praise for being Brahmins, fittingly combining in the series of the precious gems of their virtues, are brilliant like a beauteous girdle, the Two-hundred, possessing true glory, have become famed over the earth, and have all alike with great distinction fulfilled their duties.

(Verse 37)—“(Their) enlightenment has become perfect; (their) happy conduct as men of fulfilled duties has become world-renowned; (their) courses of divers labours in appropriate Vedic lore are a great study; the position taken up (by them) is distinguished by unfading virtues:”—as others constantly extol them in this strain, the fortunate Two-hundred have become illustrious.

(Lines 66-72)—The Two-hundred Mahājanas, thus described, who are observers of . . . scripture-reading, meditation, spiritual concentration, and the practice of silence, skilled in Vedic lore, born of the Brahman who arose from the navel-pit of the Lord of Lady Fortune [Vishṇu] able in rites maintaining all religion and competent for honourable and righteous conduct; accumulations of great virtues, such as the spirit of tranquillity; highly exalted by success in (attaining) the spirit of sacred formulæ; duly meeting in harmony on the occasion of fixing their constitution (?) at Brahmésvarapura¹ for the Koṇḍaligero Tank having made a sale of the fees for penitential rites,² the aṅka-vaṇa, (and) the pasumbe-vaṇa,³ and [decided to apply?] the sum realised [assigned] for as long as moon and sun endure 12 gadyāṇas for the cult of the god 12 gadyāṇas for stipends of professors, (and) 2 gadyāṇas for the assembly-hall, amounting to the sum of 26 gadyāṇas, in gold of fixed revenue shall preserve: happiness!

(Lines 72-73)—If of his good will one shall maintain this (foundation) in its ancient order, he will gain the same reward as if he worshipped with gold coins at Arghyatīrtha a crore of kine ! He who willingly shall destroy it will obtain the reward of endless guilt (namely) hell, as if he should destroy the same crore of kine and crore of Brāhmanas at the same holy place!

(Line 74)—The excellent sage Kavirājarāja has brilliantly described in new eulogy the blessed Kāḍiyūr and the eminent persons of the lineage of the Lotus-born [Brahman] who are there.

(Lines 74-76: two common Sanskrit admonitory verses.)

No. 30.—WALA PLATE OF GUHASENA: THE YEAR 246.

BY LIONEL D. BARNETT.

This plate was originally edited by Professor Bühler in the Indian Antiquary, vol. IV (1875), pp. 174 ff., and is registered as No. 465 in Professor Kielhorn's List of Northern Inscriptions (above, vol. V). It was discovered in or near Walā in Kāthiāwād, and was given by the Kārbhārī of that town to Lieutenant F. B. Peill, of the 26th Regiment Bombay Infantry, from whom it passed into other hands, and was sold in 1890 to the Trustees of the British Museum, where it is now preserved in the Department of Oriental Printed Books and MSS., registered as "Oriental Charters No. 48." Having recently cleaned it, as far as was possible, and compared it with Bühler's text, I now give a revised transcription, with a facsimile.

The record is a rectangular plate of copper, which when perfect measured 12 $\frac{5}{8}$ " in width and 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ " in height. When it came into Bühler's hands, it had already suffered some damage at the corners, and in the interval between 1875 and 1890 some more small pieces at the edges were lost, as may be seen by comparing Bühler's text with the present transcript. The rest of the plate is fairly well preserved.—The character is a good Gupta hand of the period, shewing both the jīhva-māliya (l. 6) and the upadhmāliya (l. 16).—The language is Sanskrit, in prose, except for two of the usual admonitory verses.

The plate is the second and concluding half of a document of king Guhasēna of Valabhī, conferring certain villages for the maintenance of the Buddhist monastery in the neighbourhood founded by Duḍḍā, which is known from other records of the period. It was written out by

² Another example of fees for penitential rites is found in I. A., vol. XII, p. 223.

³ The aṅka-vaṇa occurs also in the three spurious records in Mysore Inscriptions, pp. 233, 239, 296. Pasumbe-vaṇa seems to mean an octroi on "bagmen" or pedlars, from pasumbe, a large bag.

The image shows a fragment of an ancient inscription on a dark, irregularly shaped plate. The text is written in a cursive script, likely Pali or Sanskrit, and is arranged in approximately 18 horizontal lines. The fragment is heavily damaged, with significant portions missing, particularly along the top and right edges. The text is difficult to decipher due to the poor condition of the original and the quality of the reproduction.

the minister Skandabhata, and is dated in the dark fortnight of Māgha in "the year 246," meaning the Gupta-samvat or Valabhi-samvat 246.¹

With the exception of Valabhi, which is the modern Walā, none of the places mentioned have been identified.
